FOOTBALL CONDITIONING

Maurice Moorman, left, promising Texas A&M footballer, and Barney Welch, Aggie grid record holder of the '40s, square off for a game of handball on one of 14 courts in DeWare Field House. Moorman's 6-foot-5½ and 250-pound presence on the small court may seem incongruous, but he gets around in fashion the Aggies hope will prove advantageous on the gridiron. But "Big Mo's" handball will soon be curtailed. The twice Prep All-American, three-time Kentucky all-stater, all-south and all-city griddler at St. Xavier in Louisville begins football spring training this week.

Handballers Show Competitive Spirit

The splat of handballs in Texas A&M courts attest competitive intensity of an Aggie club.

Three dozen members of the A&M's U. S. Handball Association club compete four ways. While matching one another in challenge play, members compete in singles and doubles tournaments and intercollegiate matches.

Organized for recreational purposes, the club holds few formal meetings. Members congregate at DeWare Field House courts other times for ladder-challenge competition that has Barney Welch, of College Station, Glynn Donahoe of Houston and Bill Stuermer of Brownsville heading three classes of players.

Welch, A&M punt return record co-holder and 1945 graduate, has been with the club since 1948 when matches were played in a small intramurals building.

He and cat-like 250-pound Maurice Moorman of Louisville, Ky., were beaten for the doubles championship by a duo including the club president. The massive Moorman, prize interior lineman for the Aggie football team, becomes eligible for varsity competition this fall.

Students and faculty participate in the sport advocated by Art Linkletter, but the more athletic occupy top spots on the challenge-ladder.

Hector Diaz, senior from San Antonio, is second among Class A players and club president. He and George Behrendt of Seattle, Wash., bested Moorman and Welch for the doubles crown.

In the ladder system, Diaz is open to challenge and replacement on his rung by Ozzie Burke of College Station, Gerald Coco of Beaumont or Kenneth Kennerly of Odessa. A player may challenge any of the three men ahead of him on the ladder. Diaz may challenge only Welch.

Class B players are well-advanced handballers and Class C includes better beginners. Burke, Diaz and a prof, Stan Lowy, won 1965-66 singles.

An exceptional wind-developer, handball involves a ricocheting sphere of hard rubber propelled by hand at speeds 60 to 70 miles per hour.

Object of the contest is to return the 1½-inch diameter ball against the front wall. It may be played off walls, ceiling, and floor after one bounce. Games are 21 points and best two-of-three set- tle a match.

Play is in one of A&M's fourteen 20-by-40-by-20 foot wood-walled courts in DeWare.

Lowy, professor of aerospace engineering, is advisor to the club.

Cain Olympic Pool To Open Saturday With Aquatic Show

An aquatic show featuring the Shamrock-Hilton Corkettes will hail the opening of the Cain Olympic Pool Saturday at Texas A&M.

Texas A&M Swimming Coach Art Adamson said the 4 p.m. performance will spotlight A&M's varsity diving team and junior national champion water polo team.

"The Corkettes," Adamson pointed out, "are a nationally known synchronized swimming group. They place high in national AAU competition each year."
