

Management Seminar Draws 31 Executives

The first of two management seminars sponsored by the School of Business Administration is scheduled for Sunday through May 28 at the Ramada Inn.

"The primary objective of this training is to help managers become more effective in their present jobs and to show them how they can develop their abilities for advancement into positions of greater responsibility," Dr. John E. Pearson, director of the school, said.

Small group discussions, case studies and lecture-discussions will combine to form a teaching-learning program with over three-fourths of the time devoted to discussion and interchange of ideas and experiences.

Featured speakers include D. B. Campbell, manager, plastic department, Sabine River Works; J. P. Abbott, professor of English; William Oncken Jr., senior partner, Oncken, Haydrick and Company, consultants to management, New York City; Edward J. Green, president, Edward J.
