Vet Conclave Attracts Top Speakers

Speakers from California, Alabama and the U. S. Air Force are among the top attractions during the 19th annual Texas Conference for Veterinarians which runs through Saturday at Texas A&M. They are Major Jerry Fineg, chief of the Bio Effects Division, Holloman AFB, New Mexico, who will talk on sub-primate care and handling; Dr. W. D. Ommert of Monrovia, Calif., whose topic is horse practice; and Dr. Carl H. Clark of Alabama's Auburn University, who will discuss small animal laboratory diagnoses and diagnostic aids.

Fineg's presentation describes care of animals used in the nation's space program. His talk will be illustrated with a sound film.

Dr. R. D. Turk of the A&M College of Veterinary Medicine, program chairman, said about 250 persons are attending the conference in the Memorial Student Center. The program marks the 50th anniversary of the College of Veterinary Medicine.

The conference also honors the surviving members of the 13 young men who enrolled in veterinary medicine when the college first opened in 1916. They are Dr. R. H. Harrison Jr., of Bryan, Dr. R. R. Childers of Jasper, and Dr. Archie Stallings of Montgomery.

Dr. M. T. Harrington, A&M's coordinator of International Programs, will speak on the history of the College of Veterinary Medicine during a smorgasbord dinner at 6:45 p.m. Friday. Harrington is past president of A&M and former chancellor of the A&M System.

Another function of the conference, Turk said, is to hold A&M veterinary alumni reunions. The classes this year are of 1926, 1936, 1946 and 1956.

Overall activities start at 7:30 p.m. tonight with a reception and coffee. Talks begin at 9:30 a.m. Friday with an address of welcome by Dr. A. A. Price, dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Subjects to be discussed on the second day, in addition to the talk by Clark, are large animal problems by Dr. Donald Walker of Auburn University; exotic diseases, Dr. K. L. Kuttler; small animal problems, Dr. G. M. Gowing; and the precipitin test and infectious anemia, Dr. H. E. Redmond, all of A&M.

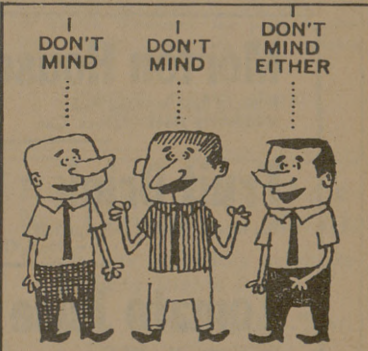

Fineg and Ommert will give their talks Saturday. They will be preceded by Dr. King S. Gibson, Houston practitioner, who will outline a survey of canine tumors.

Conference members will shift to the Veterinary Hospital that afternoon for closed television demonstrations on large and small animal procedures.

Lott Inc. Makes 3rd Gift To A&M

H. A. Lott Inc. of Houston has made a third gift of $500 to Texas A&M for a freshman scholarship.

"We highly value this scholarship for one of our engineering or architecture students," said President Earl Rudder in announcing the gift.
