Economics Profs Author Papers

Two Texas A&M Department of Economics faculty members are authors of articles published in professional journals.

Dr. M. L. Greenhut, department head, wrote "Size of Markets and Location Surveys and Theory," published in the British Journal of Industrial Economics.

The article also will be published in a book titled Readings in Physical Distribution, edited by N. E. Marks and published by Wiley and Co., New York.

Dr. Alfred Chalk wrote an article about Bernard Mandeville published as the lead paper in the July 1966 issue of the Southern Economics Journal. Title of the paper is "Mandeville's Fable of the Bees: A Reappraisal". It is a continuation of earlier research by Professor Chalk in pre-classical economic thought.

Davis To Join Cyclotron Post

J. A. Davis, a health physicist since 1961 at Texas A&M, assumes a new post with the Cyclotron Institute Sept. 1.

Davis will be health physicist for the Radiological Safety Office at the Cyclotron Institute. He is a 1959 mathematics graduate of the University of Texas.

Before coming to A&M, Davis worked as a research scientist for the Radiobiological Laboratory of the U. S. Air Force and the University of Texas.

Prof. Student Visiting Here

Prof. K. N. Stanton and graduate student James Moore of Purdue University are visiting the Electric Power Institute at Texas A&M.

John Denison, Electric Power Institute director, said the visitors are talking with A. D. Patton and other members of the EPI staff regarding calculations of electric power systems reliability.

Bush Named Top Cadet

Texas A&M Army ROTC cadets were the elite of Fourth and Fifth Army Area summer camp at Fort Still, Okla., paced by Joseph K. Bush of Temple.

The 1966 A&M graduate was selected No. 1 from 1,800 cadets in attendance.

No. 2 cadet was Eloy Garcia of Laredo. In addition, cadets Kenneth W. Korb and Gary W. Menzies of San Antonio, William E. Markham of Orange and Terrell Mullins of Garwood were among the top 10 outstanding cadets.

Of 10 cadet companies, six Aggies were rated No. 1 and four placed second. Eleven A&M students placed first in their platoons and 15 ranked No. 2.

"Over 60 per cent of the A&M representatives were in the upper third of the 1,800-man camp," said Col. D. L. Baker, Military Science Department commandant.

Bush, who reports to Fort Sill in two weeks for the artillery officer basic course, and 11 other Aggies were commissioned second lieutenants on the last day of camp by Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Dunn, Commanding General of the Fourth Army.

Achievements and relative class standings at camp are vital for appointment as Distinguished Military Graduates and Regular Army officers. High academic standing, rank in the upper third of their unit and demonstrated leadership qualities are also essential.

Asked how long he would be on active duty, Bush quickly replied: "Thirty years."

Fire Causes Minor Damage

Fire caused an estimated $1,000 damage Tuesday to the air conditioning duct system on the third floor of Texas A&M's Space Science Center under construction.

University Fire Chief Gilbert Eimann said the 12:54 blaze was ignited by the arc from a spot welding machine. Two campus fire trucks sped to the scene. The fire was controlled in a matter of minutes.

Eimann said the fire caused no damage to the rest of the $2.25 million structure.
