

Houston To Play At Home Monday

The Houston Astros open a 13-game home stand on Monday that will bring the Atlanta Braves, Cincinnati Reds, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs into the Astrodome for their final 1966 appearance.

The long home stand will be highlighted by many extra attractions.

The Braves meet the Astros in three night games Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Monday night will feature a home run hitting contest among Hank Aaron, Joe Torre and Felipe Alou, three of the leaders in home runs this season, and John Bate-man, Dave Nicholson and Chuck Harrison.

Tuesday will be family night

Astros Feature '40's Stars

A pitching staff of Howie Pollet, Harry Gumbert, Red Mungler, Red Murff and John Berly will pitch to the Mancuso brothers, Gus and Frank, and Hal Smith for the Houston Oldtimers in the second annual Oldtimers game Aug. 20 in the Astrodome.

The former American and National league stars now living in Houston will play the Stars of the Forties in a game of "remember when" prior to the game at 7:30 between the Houston Astros and the Cincinnati Reds.

There are plenty of good seats available for this game.

Pollet, now a successful insurance man, was one of the all-time great lefthanders on the St. Louis Cardinals. He also played for the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs during his major league career from 1941-56 and posted a 131-116 major league career record. He helped the Cardinals to win the 1946 pennant and World Series, winning 21 games, and posted an earned run average of 2.10, both top marks for the league that year. Pollet pitched for the Houston Buffs in 1939, 1940 and 1941, winning 12 straight games in 1940, and a no-hitter in 1941.

Gumbert pitched for the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates in a 15-year major league career. He had a 143-113 career record and pitched in 507 games, 2,156 innings. Gumbert led the National League in games pitched in 1948, with 61, and he pitched in six World Series games, with the New York Giants in 1936 and 1937, and with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1942.

Mungler, who is a native Houstonian, played professional baseball from 1937 through 1951, including the last eight years with the St. Louis Cardinals. He missed all of 1945 and 1946 seasons due to military service. He had a 74-48 major league record. Murff, now a scout for the New York Mets, pitched six years of minor league ball, 1950 through 1955, including three years with Dallas in the Texas League. He was with the Milwaukee Braves for the 1956 and 1957 seasons in a total of 26 games before retiring.

Berly, a successful insurance man in Houston, pitched in the majors in 1924 with the St. Louis Cardinals, then again in 1931 with the New York Giants and finished his major league career in 1932 and 1933 with the Philadelphia Phillies, appearing in 65 big league games with a 10-13 career record.

Gus Mancuso had 18 seasons in the majors, catching 1,460 games with the St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants, Chicago Cubs, Brooklyn Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phils. He had a lifetime batting average of .265, and caught many of the game's great pitchers. He batted .298 or better in four seasons, including .366 in 76 games in 1930 and .348 in 52 games in 1938.

Frank Mancuso, a Houston city councilman, played four seasons in the majors with the St. Louis Browns and the Washington Senators, batting .241 in 337 games.

Hal Smith, who had nine seasons in the majors, was considered one of the best defensive catchers in baseball in his years with the Baltimore Orioles, Kansas City Athletics, Pittsburgh Pirates and Houston Colt 45s. Smith probably is best remembered for his dramatic home run for the Pirates in the 1960 World Series to put the Pirates in the 9-7 eighth inning lead in the game in which Bill Mazeroski hit the series-winning homer.

A&M's Camilli Selected To Baseball Team

Lou Camilli, 19-year-old El Paso junior at Texas A&M, has been selected to play on the All-American baseball team.

The elite diamond unit will face the combination Hawaiian-Japanese All-Stars Aug. 19-27 in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The Aggie third baseman was elected to the 1966 All-Southwest Conference baseball team and was a draft choice of the Washington Senators of the American League, but has not signed a contract yet.

"Lou will return to A&M in September to begin his junior year," A&M baseball coach Tom Chandler said.

Chandler, at the same time, announced the signing of Richard Backest of Paris Junior College. Backest was an All-American Junior College infielder and led his team to the Junior College World Series this past season, Chandler said.

Backest, a graduate of Denison High School, will major in biology at A&M.
