

Geosciences College Adds 8 Faculty Members

Appointment of eight professors, including Dr. T. W. Spencer as head of the Department of Geosciences, has been announced by Dean Horace R. Byers. Spencer, 36, was senior research physicist with Chevron Oil Co. before accepting the department head position. His professional experience includes seismic and theoretical seismogram work. Member of the Society of Exploration Geophysicists, Spencer received the B.A. degree from the University of California in 1952 and his Ph.D. at Cal Tech in 1956. He joined Chevron immediately afterward. Drs. James E. Case, David K.

Davies and Thomas Tieh were appointed professors in geology and geophysics. Case, associate professor in both departments, has been with the U. S. Geological Survey since 1955, coming to A&M from Denver. He studied for B.S. and M.S. degrees at Arkansas where he was observer in charge of the Fayetteville Seismograph Station. Case, 33, instructed at Lamar State. Davies and Tieh are geology assistant professors. British-born Davies, 25, has been teaching and working on his Ph.D. at University College in Swansea, Wales. He also studied for the bachelor degree at Swansea and obtained his masters at LSU, where he taught and held a Fulbright Scholarship. Tieh, from San Jose State, studied at Illinois and Stanford. He taught at Stanford and Hawaii. The 32-year-old professor was born in Peiping. New meteorology professors are Drs. Dusan Djuric and Akira Kasahara of the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Denver. Senior research scientist at NCAR, Kasahara was named affiliate professor. They will spend at least a semester each for three years at A&M. Djuric, 36, earned degrees at Belgrade University, taught there, at Stockholm and Darmstadt, Germany.

Associate professors named in oceanography are Drs. A. H. Bouma and Leo D. Berner. An administrative and research scientist at A&M two years, Berner previously served with the Scripps Institution, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Oregon University and the National Science Foundation. The 44-year-old scientist received degrees at Pomona College and University of California. Bouma, 33, comes to A&M from field work in Surinam. He was a research assistant at Scripps and a research fellow at the University of Utrecht, where he obtained the Ph.D. in 1961. His undergraduate work was at the University of Groningen in the Netherlands, where he was born. All eight faculty members are members of professional societies and have published research in scientific journals. SALES TAXES IN 41 STATES CHICAGO (AP) — State sales taxes, the chief revenue raiser for state governments, now are imposed by 41 states and the District of Columbia. Massachusetts and Virginia now join the list of states employing this form of levy which in 1965 accounted for $6.7 billion, or nearly 26 per cent of the total state tax take of $26.1 billion.

PHILLIPS GRANT
President Earl Rudder, center, accepts a $4,000 Phillips Petroleum Company grant for students and faculty in engineering, business, arts and sciences. Joining in the presentation are James P. Jones, left, director of Phillips' Recruitment and Placement, and M. R. Hayes, General Services Department Manager. Phillips' Professional Development fund was established this year. Jones and Hayes are from Phillips' headquarters at Bartlesville, Okla.

6 Professors Join Psychology Staff

Six new education and psychology instructors have been announced by department head Dr. Paul Hensarling. The instructors are finishing doctoral programs. They will teach educational psychology, education, freshman courses and deal in departmental services. They are: John R. Hoyle of Tulsa, Okla.; educational psychology and American education foundations. A junior high principal at Midland, he transferred work from the University of Colorado and is in his third year for a doctorate in educational administration. Arnold D. LeUnes of Texas City, psychology, a 1960 graduate of A&M, and doctoral student at North Texas State, where he instructed psychology. Norvell W. Northcutt of Camp Wood, educational psychology lab. All work at A&M including B.S. in education in 1963. Northcutt's doctoral program has emphasis in math education. He has been active in teaching modern math in the teacher's area. Paul L. Stevens of Fort Worth, pupil personnel services. Former superintendent of Hereford Public Schools and special services director at Galena Park. In third year of doctorate in educational administration. Undergraduate at A&M (1942), M.S. at University of Houston. William C. Swindle of Tuscola, improvement of learning. A chemistry teacher at Odessa and instructor at A&M's Junction Adjunct. Undergraduate at North Texas State, master's at Eastern New Mexico, studied at Texas Tech and in second year of doctoral program.

CS-B Area Aggie Exes Give More

Former students in College Station-Bryan doubled their giving to Texas A&M in 1966. The twin-city campaign for the Association of Former Students' Development Fund drew $8,002.35 from 528 alumni through August 31. Royce E. Wisenbaker of Tyler, association president, praised chairman Sidney Bergoon of Bryan and Hoy Richards of College Station for campaign leadership. "These two young men sparked the best Development Fund campaign ever in College Station-Bryan," Wisenbaker pointed out. "Total dollars increased $3,000 and, of greater importance, participation almost doubled. Brazos County can be proud of their former students for this fine support of Texas A&M." The Bryan effort included gifts from 237 men, 57 per cent of the former students in the city. Average gift was $16.93. In College Station, 291 (79 per cent) of the graduates made contributions to the fund. Average gift was $13.61. In 1965, 29 per cent of the A&M men in each city participated in the fund. Gifts from these 381 men totaled $5,264.

More Housing Needed For A&M

The Housing Office is seeking new listings of rent property for students and faculty members. Housing Director Allan Madeley said all Bryan-College Station residents who had not been contacted by his office through an August telephone survey are asked to call his office. Increased enrollment and faculty-staff additions for the fall term prompted Madeley's request. He said houses, apartments and individual rooms will be listed by his office. The Housing Office telephone number is 846-5713.
