

Scovell Made Techsans Forget Old Quarterback

Observers generally agreed that Tom Wilson, the 1965 all-Southwest Conference quarterback for Texas Tech, would be the departing senior most difficult to replace.

After two games this season, John Scovell, son of a former Texas A&M player, has made Techsans forget Wilson.

All Scovell has done in the two games is lead Tech to a victory over Kansas and a near-miss over the Texas Longhorns. In the two games, the Red Raider quarterback completed 27 of 57 attempts for 375 yards, second only to Baylor's Terry Southall in the SWC, but in total offense Scovell leads the league with 415 yards.

Scovell said before the season started that there wasn't "any way in the world" he could fill Wilson's shoes. After the Kansas victory and the fine performance against Texas, Scovell said:

"I'm mighty happy with the victory and with the overall performance of the team. Tom and I are different type ball players, but if I can do half the job Tom did, then I will have quite a year—not just for myself but for the football team as well."

The former Aggie's son thinks his greatest improvement this fall was in his passing, and he gave all the credit for his progress to Wilson.

What does Scovell think of this year's Red Raiders?

"We have a lot of experience in our line, which is probably the best in the conference. There's (Phil) Tucker and (Jerry) Turner, both picked to be all-conference. Then there's Stanley (Edwards), who was a good tackle as a sophomore last year, and Ronnie Pack, who is off to a good start. Don King is the only rookie in the line, but he can go."

Of course, replacing Scovell was not the only major replacement the Red Raiders had this year. Donny Anderson is now gone, but Scovell thinks that a replacement has been found.

"Mike Leinert is a good runner and has great potential," he said. "He will really hit you."

TEXAS TECH INVADERS

John Scovell, son of Aggie-ex Field Scovell, will lead the Texas Tech Red Raiders when they come into Kyle Field Saturday to meet the Aggies. Scovell is the Southwest Conference's total offense leader with 415 yards, 375 passing and 40 rushing.
