

AP Staffer Discusses 'Crisis Reporting'

BATTALION CLASSIFIED

A&M Utility Chief To Attend Meeting

Leon R. Holbert, chief instructor of Water Utilities Training for Texas A&M's Engineering Extension Service, will participate in a sectional professional meeting Oct. 16-20 in Austin.

Holbert, chairman of the education committee of the Southwest Section of the American Waterworks Association, said more than 600 persons from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana are expected for the annual meeting at the Driskill Hotel.

Veterinary Grant Aids Swine Study

The Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine has received a $40,302 grant to assist in studies of anti-malarial drugs in swine.

The grant was approved by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Dr. Wallace W. Bay of the A&M Veterinary Pathology Department, chief investigator on the project, said the funds will be used for furnishings and laboratory equipment.

He said a previous grant of $181,000 from the U. S. Army Medical Research and Development Command in Washington, D. C., is being used to conduct the study and partly equip the research laboratory.

Dr. Bay said the investigation involves the toxicity of anti-malarial drugs in swine. The drugs are believed to be capable of suppressing or curing malaria in humans, but the materials must first be tested on animals.

Swine are used in the tests because their digestive system and skin are similar to that of humans, the veterinarian said.

Pinkie Says...

Thirty-six patients from the Veterans Administration Center at Temple will be guests of Texas A&M Athletic Department for the Aggie-TCU football game Saturday night.

P. L. (Pinkie) Downs Jr., official A&M greeter, said the visit will be the 21st here for VA Center patients.

The veterans will sit along the cinder path near the Aggie bench and be welcomed by A&M President Earl Rudder.

Eddie Maas, VA supervisor, will accompany the patients.

TPA—Robert Heard, Associated Press reporter in Austin who was wounded in the University of Texas sniper tragedy, will be one of the major speakers at Texas Press Association's Second Annual News Clinic.

Set for November 19 in Austin, the clinic is co-sponsored by the Department of Journalism, University of Texas.

Heard's timely and vital topic will be "Crisis Reporting," a field in which he bears the scars of experience.

An attorney-turned-newspaperman, Heard holds his law degree from Baylor University. He did graduate work in history at Baylor and at U.C.L.A. During the Korean War, he served as a U.S. Marine.

Before entering the news field, Heard practiced law two years in Houston with Royston, Rayzor and Cook.

His first newspaper job was as copy editor for the Waco News-Tribune in 1957. He moved to California in 1959 and worked for the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram before joining the AP at Los Angeles in 1964.

He was with the AP bureau in Houston a year and a half, and was transferred to Austin early in 1966.

Heard is only one of a number of prominent newsmen who will speak or lead discussions in every realm of the news side of newspapering, said John Taylor, Seguin Gazette publisher and program committee chairman.

Co-chairman with Taylor is Dr. Norris Davis, head of the UT journalism department.

Dr. Davis is scheduled to talk on libel and law as it pertains to modern-day newspapering.

He is author of "The Press and the Law in Texas" and co-author of "Modern Journalism."

Dr. Davis has worked on the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, Austin American-Statesman, Minneapolis Tribune and Texas Co-Op Power.

A new member of his journalism staff, Dr. Bill Mindak, professor of communications, will speak on "The Age of Noise" at the one-day press seminar.

For eight years, Dr. Mindak was on the University of Minnesota journalism staff. During two summers, he served as marketing consultant to Thomson Media Group in England.

Dr. C. Richard King, associate journalism professor at the University for nearly 10 years, also is scheduled for a talk.

Born in Gorman, Dr. King received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Oklahoma and his Ph.D. from Baylor.

He served one year as director of news for Mary Hardin-Baylor College, and was on the faculties of both Tarleton State College and East Texas State.

He has authored more than 450 magazine articles for all types of national magazines. Among his books are "Manana with Memories" and "Ghost Towns of Texas."

Dr. King began his newspaper career as a reporter for the Stephenville Empire-Tribune.

Also on the clinic program from UT will be Olin E. Hinkle, associate professor since 1946. A graduate of West Texas State University and the University of Missouri, Hinkle will talk on the smalltown newspaper's local column.

He formerly was managing editor of the Pampa Daily News and the Lexington (Ky.) Herald. At one time he was president of the Panhandle Press Association. Now in its second printing is the book, "How to Write Columns," co-authored by Hinkle.

Smith To Attend Firemen's Meeting

Chief Henry D. Smith and instructor John Rauch of Texas A&M's Firemen's Training Division will participate in a Friday and Saturday planning committee meeting in Austin for a national conference of the International Association of Arson Investigators.

More than 300 IAAI members will participate in the annual conference at Austin this spring. Specific dates have not been determined.

Nuclear Head To Ignite Reactor

Dr. Robert G. Cochran, head of the department of nuclear engineering, will help start up a new nuclear reactor at the University of Missouri.

Dr. Cochran is in Columbia, Mo., where he will serve as a visiting consultant. Loading of nuclear materials into the reactor will commence Wednesday.

"The first loading of a nuclear reactor is extremely hazardous and requires trained and experienced personnel to assist," Cochran said.

This reactor, operating at five megawatts, is one of the largest on a college campus. Its full capacity, expected to reach 10 megawatts, would make it the largest university reactor.

"It is really an honor to be invited to assist in the loading and starting up of a reactor of this type," Cochran said. "It indicates the fact that other colleges recognize the competent faculty in nuclear engineering here at A&M."
