

A&M Boat Club To Organize

A sailing club is to be organized at a meeting in College Station tonight.

The 7 p.m. meeting is tentatively set for the Presbyterian Student Center, announced Don Rowe, one of a group of Texas A&M students who met recently to determine organization interest.

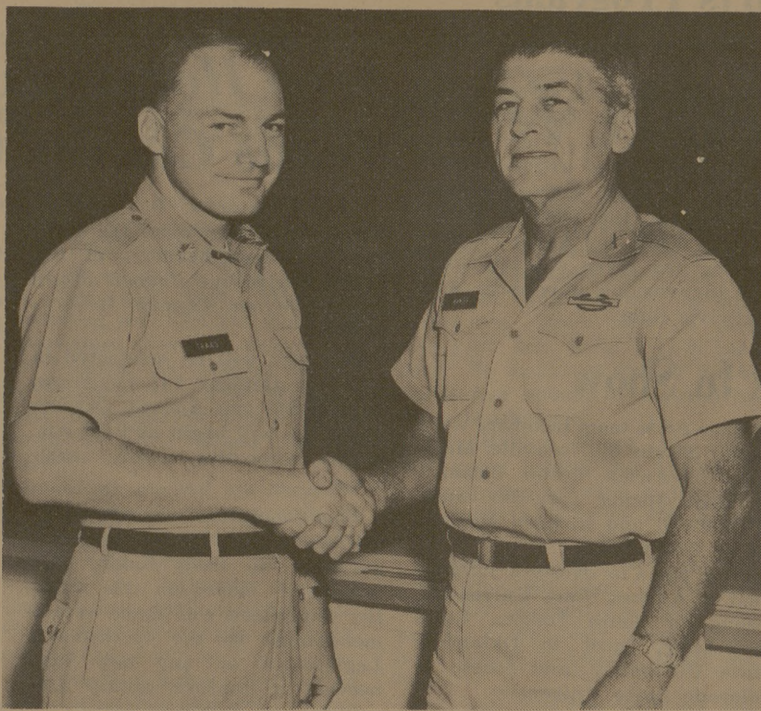

Tonight's agenda includes election of officers and setting up a constitution, he said. Boat storage problems will be discussed.

Eighteen boats were owned by persons present at the first meeting, but boat ownership is not required for membership, Rowe said.

A&M students Don and Paul Rowe of San Antonio and Kelvin DeGinder of Austin called the meeting.

Somerville Reservoir, when completed, will be used for club functions, DeGinder noted.

The Texas Maritime Academy of Texas A&M University is one of only six such schools in the United States.

CLASS INTERLUDE

Maj. Adrian G. Traas, left, received his promotion Tuesday during a military history class he was instructing at Texas A&M University. Col. D. L. Baker, A&M commandant, pinned the new gold leaf while Maj. Traas' class looked on.

Army Captain Goes To Class, Comes Out A Major

Adrian G. Traas of the Military Science Department at Texas A&M University went into class Tuesday as a captain and came out a major.

Orders promoting the Regular Army officer were read during a military history class he was instructing. Col. D. L. Baker, A&M commandant, pinned the gold leaves on Traas before his class of 43 sophomore ROTC cadets.

Major Traas, 32, came to A&M in September, 1965, from a tour as post engineer at Verona, Italy.

A graduate of the Officer Engineer's School at Fort Belvoir, Va., the new major also served in Korea. He completed courses at the Chemical Corps School at Fort McClellan, Ala., and is a 1957 graduate of the Marquette, where he received a degree in history.

Traas is originally from Milwaukee, Wis., but now calls St. Petersburg, Fla., home. The bachelor resides in the Normandy Apartments in College Station.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian E. Traas, 8095 - 33rd Ave. North, St. Petersburg.

Major Traas completed instruction of the one-hour military history class following his promotion.

Thomas Selected For NSF Panel

Dr. Richard Thomas of Texas A&M University will serve on a National Science Foundation proposal evaluation panel in Chicago Thursday and Friday.

The aerospace engineering professor is one of 40 scientists invited to serve on the team which will evaluate proposals for undergraduate research. Proposals are submitted to NSF by universities and departments throughout the U. S.

At A&M, Dr. Thomas supervises Gas Dynamics Laboratory shock tube operation and design of two new wind tunnels for the Aerospace Engineering Department.

Honors Chairman To Attend Meet

Dr. Richard H. Ballinger will represent Texas A&M University at the first conference of the National Collegiate Honors Council in Lawrence, Kan., Monday and Tuesday.

Selection of honors program students and teachers, program administration and motivating factors will be subjects of council study.

Dr. Ballinger, English professor, chairs the A&M honors program, which is now in its third year. More than 100 selected freshmen were brought into the program this year.

Government Job Exams Scheduled

A nationwide competitive examination for summer jobs with the federal government will be given this school year at about 1,000 locations.

There will be three test dates for the examination. Those wishing to take the test on Nov. 26 must file by Oct. 21; filing deadline for the Jan. 7 test is Dec. 9; and for the Feb. 4 test, application forms must be filed by Jan. 9.

The examination includes written tests for jobs in grades GS1-GS4. Salaries range from $69 to $92 per week. The test, approximately two hours long, covers clerical skills, vocabulary, reading comprehension, abstract reasoning, and table and chart interpretation.

Anyone who wants to take the test may apply at the Placement Office and fill out Civil Service form 5000-AB, according to Placement officials. The completed form should be sent to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., 20415.

Those who pass the written test may file job applications with the inter-agency boards of civil service examiners in areas where they want to work. If an individual desires to work in the Washington, D. C., area, he must also file an application with the Washington inter-agency board.

This test is not for employment under the President's Youth Opportunity Campaign for disadvantaged youths, according to the officials. It does not cover any blue collar jobs, specific positions in grades GS-5 and above, other positions in the Departments of Interior and Agriculture, or post office temporary jobs. A separate nationwide examination will be announced in January 1967 to select persons for seasonal assistant jobs with the Post Office Department.

Mrs. Gladys Bishop, Placement Office secretary, said that in the past quite a few students from Texas A&M had worked for the federal government under this program. She urged those who are interested to come in and get all the details.

Anyone who cannot find all the information he needs in reference to this program from the Placement Office, may write to any inter-agency board of United States Civil Service examiners or to the College Relations and Recruiting Office of the Dallas Civil Service Region, Mrs. Bishop said.
