

Go! Snowball, Go!

A snowball is gathering both size and momentum as the Aggies continue to fight their way upward in the national standings.

This snowball is the student spirit that follows the Aggies on the field, and "squeezes" with them through every play.

Aggieland has had a rebirth of student enthusiasm during the last 3 weeks.

Everyone is talking about the next "big" game. The midnight yell practice for the TCU game has been termed the "best to this date" with minimum of confusion and maximum student body cooperation and spirit.

The campus air is filled with an "electrical" excitement. The game Saturday could very well be the one that decides the championship of the Southwest Conference. Forecasters say it is a "toss-up."

Aggies are reminded to show the same great sportsmanship in games away from home as they do for home games.

Let's keep that snowball rolling and bring home a Victory from Waco!

Community Forum To Voice Ideas

A Community Progress Forum, designed to give individual residents an opportunity to voice ideas for new civic and economic programs for the local area, will be conducted by the Bryan-College Station Chamber of Commerce Oct. 26-27.

Chamber President James D.

Fish To Lead Yells Chosen

Five members of the Texas A&M class of 1970 have been selected freshmen yell leaders, announced Thomas C. Stone of Donna, head yell leader.

LEADING YELLS at "fish" football games will be John Cassell Jr. of Dallas, James Ellis of Tyler, Joe Spears of Alice, James Stanley of Baytown and Paul Tannehill of Richardson. Clint Bracher of Uvalde was named an alternate.

The fourth-classmen work their first football game at Waco Thursday, at the Fish-Baylor Cub clash. The Aggie frosh play their first home game Nov. 3 against Rice.

SELECTION BY junior yell leaders was based on appearance, knowledge of yells and A&M traditions, Stone said. Upperclass yell leaders are screened by a committee and elected by classes. Selection as fish yell leaders does not qualify students for future duty, though two of this year's varsity yell leaders, Michael Beggs and Gene Riser, led fish yells.

Ingram said invitations to participate in the forum are being extended to more than 1,200 Bryan-College Station citizens, including 350 non-members of the Chamber.

The forum, to be held at the Chamber offices, will consist of 12 one-hour sessions — six each day. Each individual need only attend one session, Ingram said.

Purpose of the forum is to bring Chamber members and other interested citizens together and obtain ideas for setting up more effective community programs for 1967 and future years, notes Forum Chairman J. B. Hervey.

"We are not going to try to solve any problems at this forum — that will come later," Hervey said. "We are simply trying to get ideas."

He said it will be an old "town hall" type session.

Each of the sessions will be moderated by a different local civic leader. Participating in this capacity are Alton Bowen, Harry Gillam, Rex Bailey, Dick Holmgren, Ridley Briggs, F. A. Walters, Gus Ellis, Clark Munroe, Don Dillon, Lloyd Joyce, Wally Anderson and Russell Hillier.

Alf Jernigan of Longview, assistant general manager of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, will assist in the forum in an advisory capacity. Hervey said Jernigan has gained a great deal of experience in conducting similar programs for other Texas cities.

"I like to think of it as a positive approach in a negative manner!"

NYU Law Scholarship Available

New York University's School of Law is accepting applications from top students across the nation for the Root-Tilden Scholarship Program, seeking young men "who show promise of becoming outstanding lawyers in the best American tradition."

The deadline for applications is Dec. 31. Successful applicants will receive grants of $3,300 a year for three years of study at the NYU School of Law. Twenty winners, two from each of the 10 Federal judicial districts, will be chosen and will begin classes in September, 1967.

The Root-Tilden Scholarship Program was established 15 years ago by the late Dean Arthur T. Vanderbilt, former Chief Justice of New Jersey. Since its inception, some 300 graduates of more than 100 colleges and universities in 40 states have gone on to complete the law honors course.

The program is named in honor of two famous NYU alumni. Elhu Root, class of 1867, was Secretary of State for President Theodore Roosevelt, and Samuel Tilden, class of 1841, was governor of New York and unsuccessful candidate for the Presidency against Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876.

"Both Root and Tilden were able advocates, wise counselors, leaders in the organized bar, distinguished public servants and molders of public opinion. We are seeking men who have the ability and the ambition to follow in the footsteps of these great men," declared Dean Miguel de Capriles of the School of Law.

The Root-Tilden scholars study under a special tutorial program that augments the traditional law curriculum with seminars in other disciplines. In addition, the scholars take part in a series of forums on topics of current interest, designed to stimulate their interest in public affairs and to develop an awareness of their professional responsibilities.

Program Insures Equal Services To Handicapped

A new state-wide Easter Seal treatment and service program, which will ensure equal rehabilitation services to all crippled children and adults in Texas, will be presented during the annual convention of the Texas Society for Crippled Children and Adults to be held October 21, 22 and 23, in McAllen, Texas.

Robert W. Milam, M.D., chairman of the Society's Treatment and Service Committee will present the new program on the second day of the convention.

Opening session of the convention, Friday at noon, will be highlighted by a panel discussion and demonstration of new development in treatment of brain damaged children. Three outstanding physicians, Dora Chao, M.D., of Houston; Kenneth Reidland, M.D., of McAllen; and Alfonso Tohen, M.D., of Mexico City, have been working on developments of treatment for brain damaged children. The panel discussion will be on findings in this field.

Rehabilitation speakers from across America will lead sessions during the convention. Featured speakers include Joel Stark, Ph.D., Associate Director of the Division of Speech Pathology and Audiology, Stanford University School of Medicine; Leigh Rooke, Ed.D., Associate Director of the Medical College of Virginia, School of Hospital Administration; Margaret Road, Director of the Department of Physical Therapy, University of Southern California; and Harold Weiner, Executive Director of the National Public Relations Council of Health and Welfare Services. Doctor Stark will speak at a Sunday morning breakfast for speech therapists.

Doctor Rooke will address special education teachers in a Sunday session, and Professor Road will address physical therapists in a similar Sunday session.
