

AAUP Elects New Officers

Physics Professor Dr. Melvin Eisner has been elected 1966-67 president of the Texas A&M chapter of the American Association of University Professors. Other new officers include Dr. John Nuttall, associate professor of physics, first vice president; John M. Glasgow, assistant professor of economics, second vice president, and Dr. Davis Fahlgvist, assistant professor of geophysics, secretary-treasurer. Dr. John Treacy, associate professor of economics, is retiring president of the 150-member chapter.

Air Force Captain Joins Judo Staff

USAF Capt. Gibbs Dibrell joins Dr. George Blanton as instructor in the A&M Judo Club for the coming year. Officers include Don Scafe, president; Dale McKinney, vice-president, and Lyle Baie, secretary-treasurer. Lt. Col. Thomas F. Hines returns as club sponsor.

Lamar State Holds Seminar Saturday

The second meeting of a Texas A&M-sponsored Community Service Seminar will be held at Lamar State College in Beaumont Friday and Saturday. Administrators and managers from 10 Texas cities will meet with faculty members from Lamar State and A&M to study community problems, solving

Americans Like Bicycles Best

Fifty-seven million Americans—which is almost one out of three—pedaled away in 1965 and made bicycling one of this nation's most popular participant sports, says Miss Lucille Moore, Extension recreation specialist at Texas A&M University. If you want to whirl off to join them, you should know something about what kind of bicycle to buy.

There are three distinct types: (1) Middleweight bikes have tires 1 3/4 inches in diameter and are lighter than the old balloon-tired heavyweights, now nearly extinct. Middleweights are sturdy and good for kids, but other riders find them cumbersome and tiring. (2) Lightweights come in 3, 5, 10 and 15 gear speed models. Unfortunately, some lightweights are light in name only. Heft them and compare the weights. (3) The fad bikes, such as the currently widely popular "high-rise" and folding models make up the third group.

Poultry Science Plans Trukey Sale

Sidney Coufal, president of the Poultry Science Club, announced today that the club will sponsor a smoked turkey sale again this year. Coufal said for the past six years the profits from the sale has been used to send the junior and senior poultry judging teams to the national contest and to aid in the support of other club activities. The club purchases U. S. government-inspected "Grade A" turkeys and has the Oak Ridge Smokehouse of Fredericksburg smoke them. These turkeys range in size from nine to twelve pounds. They are packaged in Cry-O-Vac bags so they can be frozen and stored. Last year the club sold more than 300 turkeys. This year, information can be obtained from the Poultry Science Department or the birds may be bought at the Poultry Science Farm.

Five University English Staffers Due At Workshop

Five members of Texas A&M's Department of English will attend the Fall Workshop of the District I meeting of the Texas Joint Committee on English for Schools and Colleges at Sam Houston State College in Huntsville Saturday. Attending will be Dr. Lee J. Martin, head of the Department of English and director of educational television at Texas A&M; Professors Harry Hieth and Richard Ballinger; Associate Professor H. L. Kidd; and Assistant Professor Frank Peirce. Dr. Martin will present a demonstration of the overhead projector in the teaching of composition, a technique which he pioneered. It is in widespread use in both high schools and colleges and universities throughout the state. TJEC was organized a number of years ago at the instance of the late Dr. T. F. Mayo, then head of the Department of English at Texas A&M and other university and high school English teachers who understood the need for close cooperation between high schools, colleges and universities in the teaching of English.
