

Aggies Shaping Up For SMU

Injury Picture Improving

By GARY SHERER
Battalion Sports Writer

The Aggies, perhaps in their best shape since the opener with Georgia Tech, travel to the Cotton Bowl Saturday for an afternoon encounter with the SMU Mustangs.

Coach Gene Stallings reports that Lloyd Currington, who has missed the last six games, should be ready for action. Stallings also noted that Bill Sallee will be ready for full time duty and Jim Singleton, a casualty in the LSU game, possibly ready.

The senior-laden Mustangs have also reported some injuries, but Stallings expressed some doubt that they would be going at less than full strength. The injured players mentioned are Jim Hagle, fleet halfback, and Pat Gibson, a defensive back.

The 2 p.m. encounter will be the 49th meeting between the Mustangs and A&M. The Ags hold an edge in the series with 23 wins against 19 for SMU, with six ties. The Aggies will be seeking revenge for a 10-0 loss suffered at College Station last year.

The Southwest Conference has narrowed down to a three-team race, with the Aggies, SMU and Arkansas given chances to take the crown. The favorite right now is Arkansas, but this game between the Maroon and White and the Mustangs will have a lot to do with determining a winner.

SMU is now in first place with a 3-0 record, while the Aggies are tied with Arkansas for second place, with 3-1 records. The Mustangs are 5-1 overall and the Aggies stand at 3-3-1.

Coach Stallings expects to go with his regular defensive alignment. Grady Allen, 200, and Tuffy Fletcher, 210, will be at the ends and Harvey Aschenbeck, 210, and Rolf Krueger, 225, at the tackles. Ken Lamkin, 192, completes the forward wall at middle guard.

Bill Hobbs, 190, and Robert Cortez, 200, will be at linebacker; Joe Wood, 195, rover; the defensive secondary will be made up of Lawson Howard, 185, and Dan Westerfield, 170, at halfback. Curley Hallman, 180, completes the lineup at safety.

The offensive lineup may change some because of the injured players returning. Definite starters should be: Tom Buckman, 215, and Tommy Maxwell, 190, at the ends; Maurice (Mo) Moorman, 252, and Ed Breeding, 217, at the tackle spots; Don Koehn, 215, is at one guard position, with either Gary Kovar, 208, or Mark Weaver, 210, at the other guard slot.

Kovar is also considered for the center position along with Emil Farr, 200. This could all change if Singleton is ready to go.

The backfield is also blessed with some depth for a change. Edd Hargett will, of course, be at quarterback. Wendell Housley and Sallee will run at strong back, with Bob Long and Currington ready at weak back. Ronnie Lindsey should get the nod at full-back.

On Target... With Hargett

If the Texas Aggies didn't already have a slogan, "Make Something Happen," they could come up with another, like "On Target... With Hargett."

Edd Hargett is one of the prime reasons the Aggies are even after seven games with a 3-3-1 mark and 3-1 SWC record.

As the Aggies approach this week's game with SWC leader SMU (3-0) in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Hargett has three reasons for qualifying for the 'century club.' He has gained 100 yards this season rushing and he has lost 100 yards for a net zero and he has completed 100 passes (199 attempts).

His accurate right arm has carried the Aggies a long way. His 100 completions have netted 1,192 yards and eight touchdowns. His longest completion went for 55 yards. His completion percentage is 50.3 and the enemy has intercepted 10 in seven games.

Edd credits his mates for his success. "My offensive line has given me great protection and my receivers have made me look good with some great catches." Edd isn't particular about his receivers. He has completed passes to 10 different receivers.

HOUSTON DUO

Halfback Lloyd Currington (right) will be back in the Aggie lineup Saturday, along with fellow Houstonite Gary Kovar who won praise from Coach Gene Stallings for his play in the Arkansas game.

F-2 Wins Class B Intramurals

Tuesday was a big football day for intramurals with Classes A & C beginning and Class B concluding with its championship game.

Interceptions were the rule, rather than the exception in the Class B tilt. F-2 came out on top, both on the scoreboard, 16-0, and with interceptions.

C-2, the losers, managed to cross mid-field only once, that coming in the first half.

F-2 used its two swipes to lead to both of its scores. C-2 penetrated to the 8 in the first half but F-2 managed to come up with one of its steals and parlayed it into a quick touchdown.

Fish To Host Rice Tonight

By BOB BATSON

Texas A&M's Fish will host the Rice Owlets in the first home game of the season on Kyle Field tonight at 7:30.

Slated for probable offensive positions in the Fish backfield are quarterback Barney Harris, weak back Brian Christen, strong back Ross Brupbacher, and fullback Bruce Kempf.
