Liz bites Burton

Elizabeth Taylor bites Richard Burton. She pulls his hair, screams at him and spits in his face. This is the way Shakespeare wrote "The Taming of the Shrew," and this is the way Liz plays it in the movie the Burtons are making in Italy. Get an intimate, on-the-set peek—watch the tempers flare and feathers fly—in Russell Brandon's piece in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post. Is Liz, the shrew, really overpaid, overweight and under-talented? Study her picture on the cover! Also read John Pfeiffer's account of his African visit to Drs. Louis and Mary Leakey, who are digging for traces of our pre-human ancestors of 15 million years ago. (This article is a short course in Prehistory and Paleontology.) Follow navy flier Lt. j.g. Dieter Dengler in his 22-day escape from a Vietnam prison camp. Wind up with the story of Joe Namath, the $400,000 Alabama quarterback of the N.Y. Jets, who at age 23 is thinking of retirement. All this and more in the December 3 issue of the Post. Buy your copy today.

Fish, Shorthorns Tie, 17-17

By GARY SHERER
It was a battle of San Antonio products Saturday afternoon as the Texas A&M Fish and the Texas Yearlings played to a 17-17 stand-off at Kyle Field.
A&M's Barney Harris from San Antonio MacArthur and the Shorthorns' Pat Sheehan from San Antonio Lee provided most of the heroics in a hard-fought battle before some 3,000 fans.

The game, sponsored by the Brazos Valley Shrine Club, saw the Fish take a 17-10 first-half lead and then hold on as the Yearlings came roaring back for a third-quarter score to leave it in a tie.

Building up a 17-0 lead early in the second period, the Fish threatened to make the game no-contest as they held the Yearlings at bay. Then, led by the passing and running of James Street and the running of Sheehan, the Yearlings put 10 points on the scoreboard in the final three minutes of the first half.

Gary Gruben, Fish linebacker, personally put an end to the Yearlings' first series of downs, when he intercepted a Street pass at the Fish 43.

From that point, behind the passing and running of Harris, the Fish moved the ball to a first down on the Yearlings' 12. After a holding penalty put the Fish back to the Shorthorn 26, Harris hit Larry Stergent with a 16-yard pass, giving them a second down on the 10-yard line.

Two plays later, they were faced with a fourth down on the Yearlings' six and Fish Coach Jake Helms decided to go for a field goal. Mark Moseley did not disappoint his coach, splitting the uprights from 14 yards out, making the score 3-0.

The Fish stopped the Yearlings cold and got the ball back on their own 41. In eight plays and 59 yards they had another score, with Harris, after being trapped on the left side, reversed his field and hit paydirt with an eight-yard jaunt around the surprised Texas right side.

With Ross Brupbacher chewing up most of the yardage, the Fish scored again with 6:56 left in the first half. Brupbacher hit the left side for the tally and Moseley's kick made the score 17-0.

Led by Street's passing, the Yearlings stormed back and reached the Fish 16, where Sheehan hit up the middle for a speedy touchdown run.

After the Fish stalled, the Yearlings staged another drive capped by a 24-yard field goal by football great Bobby Layne's son, Rob, with four seconds left in the first half.

The second half started with the Yearlings fumbling the ball to the Fish on a jarring tackle by Jimmy Piper. Lee Roberts recovered on the Yearlings' 37.

Two plays later, the Yearlings' Joe Norwood picked off a Harris aerial on the Texas seven and the Shorthorns went into business from that point. Then, 82 yards and 17 plays later, the Yearlings had a fourth and goal from the Fish one. Ted Koy, younger brother of former Longhorn great Ernie Koy, tried the right side of the Fish line and was stopped cold by Winston Beam and Gruben.

Unable to move, the Fish were forced to punt and the Yearlings took over on the Fish 39. The great goal-line stand was made to look insignificant as Sheehan slashed off left guard on the first play for a 39-yard TD run. The kick made it 17-17.
