Britain Proposes Rhodesian Plans

By MILTON BESSER
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Britain proposed Thursday that the U.N. Security Council invoke mandatory economic penalties and an arms embargo against Rhodesia to bring down the 13-month-old white minority regime.

In a speech to the 15-nation council, British Foreign Secretary George Brown offered also to accept a limited oil embargo — one that would not involve South Africa. He made clear that as far as Britain was concerned, Rhodesia should be the sole target of council action.

As Brown spoke the House of Commons in London supported the Labor government's appeal to the United Nations. At a rosy session, the House voted 353 to 244 against conservatives and some Labor defectors to back the appeal.

U. S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg quickly announced support of a British resolution submitted to the council by Brown. Goldberg said it reflected the U.S. stand for a peaceful solution to the Rhodesian crisis.

The council adjourned after hearing Brown and will resume its debate at 11 a.m. Friday.

The resolution called for selective mandatory penalties and an arms embargo.

In response to demands from African members of the British Commonwealth for an oil embargo as well, he said: "We have been consulting very widely, both before and since I came here, and I appreciate the strong measure of support that exists for the inclusion of oil in the mandatory sanctions."

"If an amendment in this sense was to be made in acceptable terms my delegation would not oppose it."

'Bat Nets' Make Unusual Catches

Bat researcher Dr. W. B. Davis of Texas A&M's Wildlife Science Department made some unusual catches in his bat nets in Central American caves during a just completed two-month outing.

He caught several four-eyed fish, cuatro ojos, in bat nets set near the mouths of caves.

"These fish, about eight to ten inches long, get excited sometimes and jump over the surface of the water," Dr. Davis explained. "Since I set nets very close to the water to trap bats, the fish became entangled in the net and their weight pulled the net further down into the water. As a result, I caught even more fish."

To the professor's dismay, the fish were inedible.

Dr. Davis was accompanied on the 6,700-mile jaunt by Mrs. Davis, who made a hit with 4-H participants in Jutiapa. Mrs. Davis spoke to the club, similar to 4-H clubs in the United States, about sewing. She once did 4-H work in Washington.

At a reception following the program, Dr. Davis met Jutiapa Governor Antonio Barrutia, who tried to give Davis his hat.

"I admired his hat and told him so," Davis chuckled. "But it sat on the top of my head like a beanie. I wear a size seven and three-eighths. They just don't make hats big enough down there."

Dr. Davis collected 300 specimens of bats, among them several unique types. He's not claiming any rare finds without additional inspection in A&M laboratories.
