Indians, Astros Exchange Two Outfielders

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Indians obtained Lee Maye and Jim Landis went to the Houston Astros Wednesday in an exchange of 32-year-old outfielders by the two clubs. Three minor league players also were involved in the deal. Houston sent catcher Ken Retzer from its Oklahoma City farm club to the Indians' Portland farm team in exchange for pitcher Jim Weaver and catcher Doc Edwards. The trade was completed after Maye and Landis had been waived out of the National and American Leagues, respectively, as the interleague trading deadline was Dec. 15. Landis left the Indians after only one season with the club, in which he batted .222 in 82 games. The Indians obtained him from the Kansas City Athletics for catcher Phil Roof.

Super Bowl — Super Flop?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A super debate is developing over whether the Super Bowl football game, first clash between the champions of the American and National Football Leagues, will be a super success.

Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle clung Wednesday to his prediction that the clash between the Green Bay Packers of the NFL and the Kansas City Chiefs would sell out the 93,000 seats in Memorial Coliseum on Jan. 15. The stadium's general manager, Bill Nicholas, regarded as an expert in the art of gate estimating, agreed with Rozelle.

There were others less optimistic, however, and there was no doubt that thousands of fans are aghast over the television blackout in this vast metropolitan area.

There was also grumbling that choice seats would not be available for such patrons as the Los Angeles Rams' regular customers.

Out-of-town and state applications for tickets undoubtedly have been heavy but local reaction to the ticket scale—$12, $10 and $6—has been everything but happy.

If a busy telephone switchboard is any indication, fans' interest has quickened in the past two days.

"We were flooded with calls all day Tuesday when we opened after the holidays and it's been the same today," Nicholas said. The Coliseum is the main base of ticket selling operations.

"We sold some 26,000 tickets last week even before the fans knew which teams would be in the game," said Rozelle.

Identity of the opponents was not decided until last Sunday when Green Bay defeated the Dallas Cowboys and Kansas City routed Buffalo.

The 26,000 included options to buy for Ram fans. An additional 20,000 tickets are out on consignment to the 18 clubs in the two leagues and the commissioner's office.

"We firmly believe the game will be a sellout," Rozelle continued. "Green Bay is certainly well known here and you can't underestimate the Kansas City Chiefs here with Mike Garrett."

He referred to the Chiefs' rookie halfback who dazzled fans when he played for Southern California's Trojans and earned All-America and Heisman Trophy honors as a senior in 1965.

Rozelle defended the television blackout. He argued that the telecast of a World Series in baseball is no parallel because fans have a home team to root for and watch in person, whereas in the Super Bowl, two non-resident teams are involved.

He said there has been no decision about the site or sites of future Super Bowl games.

The Kansas City squad, meanwhile, arrived at nearby La Brea Beach to continue preparation for the contest. The weather is sunny and warm. The Chiefs are quartered at the Edgewater stadium and will work out at Veterans Stadium.

The Packers are staying in Green Bay until next Sunday when they plan to fly to San Barbara, Calif., for further training.

Former Cardinal Pitcher Honored

Dean, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, has been chosen for the game in radio and television since his retirement from play days.
