earlier termination date if a reduction in those expenditures permits it."

Exempt from the surtax, which officials hope will go into effect with the start of the new fiscal year this July 1, would be single people who do not earn more than $1,900 a year and married couples in the lower income brackets. A couple with two children, for example, would be exempt provided their income does not exceed $5,000 a year.

THE SURCHARGE, Johnson said, would raise federal revenues by about $4.5 billion in the first year. Officials said that during a full tax year the added receipts would come to $5.7 billion.

Johnson also disclosed revised budget estimates for the current bookkeeping year that ends June 30, and announced the size of the new budget for the following 12 months, which he will send to Congress later in January.

The new budget, he said, will project spending of $135 billion, revenues of $126.9 billion, and a deficit of $8.1 billion.

For the current year, he said spending now is likely to total $126.7 billion compared with revenues of $117 billion. That would leave a deficit of $9.7 billion.

SEVERAL TIMES in his text, Johnson spoke of "a time of testing" for the nation.

"Abroad, the question is whether we have the staying power to fight a costly war, when the objective is limited and the danger to us seemingly remote."

Government Prof Presents Talk On 90th Congress

Claude Davis, assistant professor of government, will present an informal discussion on "Issues Before The 90th Congress" Friday noon in room 309 of Na₆₁₆ Hall.

This is the second in a series of informal presentations sponsored by the Political Forum Committee. The discussion is open to members of the forum and all interested students and faculty members.

Sandwiches and cold drinks will be made available at a nominal charge.

Bill Preston, recording secretary of the Political Forum Committee, said these presentations are only a small part of the effort put forth by Political Forum members in attempts to bring a greater awareness of political events to the A&M community.

CONNALLY SAYS

planned in the wake of polls reflecting declining popularity."

CONNALLY SAID he was breaking his and Mrs. Connally's three-year silence on the details of Kennedy's trip because "the intensity of our personal feelings and sense of helplessness as participants left deep emotional scars which we felt were best borne in silence."

This choice was no longer possible because of Manchester's book, he said.

In the interests "of unmanaged history," Connally said, "I have concluded that we have no choice but to assemble and present the facts and details as we know them . . . in the hope that present-day writers and legitimate historians might find them useful in reaching objective judgments."

CONNALLY DID not say, or give newsmen a chance to ask, if he had read the book or the magazine or if he was basing his remarks on news reports of Manchester's book.

His statement was the third of the day by high-ranking Texas politicians on the assassination.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., revealed from his Washington office that he had received a fake bomb in the mail after the assassination, apparently sent by someone who thought conservatives were responsible for Kennedy's death. Police asked him at the time not to disclose the matter, Tower said.

Dallas Mayor Erik Jonsson said Manchester's characterization of Dallas as a city with a "disease of the spirit, a shrill, hysterical note suggesting a deeply troubled society" was incorrect.

"DALLAS WAS a town glad to see its President on that day," Johnson said. "We were concerned with entertaining him and the most elaborate methods were used to make him welcome."
