The Serge Jaroff Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers will charge into Aggieland for a Town Hall performance in G. Rollie White Coliseum April 19.

This will be a regular Town Hall performance at which activity card and season ticket holders will be admitted free.

Operating on stage under military discipline, the 24 White Russian giants sing to the direction of their four foot ten inch lieutenant, Serge Jaroff.

Traditionally the finest fighters and singers in Russia, the Cossacks feature a variety of numbers.

The group was formed in 1923 while they were living in Bulgaria after failing to defeat the communists in the White Russian counter-revolution. The group first toured Europe and then finally the U.S.

The cossacks are on their 35th cause his family thought he was too small to fight, Jaroff studied music until World War I brought him a lieutenant's commission.

Coed Enrollment Shows Increase

Coed enrollment this semester is up 60 per cent over the 1966 spring semester.

The 628 women attending classes now account for only 6.4 per cent of the total enrollment, Registrar Office figures show. The ratio of men to women students is 16-to-1.

The present semester female enrollment is 17 per cent higher than the fall semester, when a record 10,700 students were enrolled. There were 539 women in class at A&M last semester and 392 during spring, 1966.

Women attending A&M include relatives of faculty-staff and students and special enrollees. About one-third of the student body is made up of married students.

MARY ANDERSON
 Mary is a math major from Garland. The 20-year-old junior enjoys dancing, cooking, singing, and talking. She dates Aggie senior Tommy Bartlett.

24 Architects Attend Meeting

The Urban and Regional Planning Department of the School of Architecture will be represented Saturday through Wednesday at a national planning congress in Houston.

Prof. Joseph McGraw, director of the Urban and Regional Planning Department, said 24 graduate students and two faculty members will hear lectures and participate in workshops and roundtables.

McGraw said primary purpose of the American Society of Planning Officials' conference is to discuss innovative policies and techniques which must be devised and applied to cope with explosive pressures during the next ten years.

New Architecture Librarian Announced By Library Chief

A widely traveled and educated librarian, artist, linguist and writer, Mrs. Albert Jadot, has been appointed architecture librarian at Texas A&M, announced Dr. James P. Dyke, Cushing Library director.

Mrs. Jadot came to A&M March 15 from UNESCO Headquarters in Paris, where she served with the education department and library division.

At UNESCO, she was major editor of "International Guide to Educational Documentation, 1955-60."

A graduate of Mount Holyoke College where she majored in art, Mrs. Jadot also holds a degree in library science from McGill University and a masters from the Middlebury School of France.

In addition, she has earned the Diplome des Hautes-Etudes at the University of Toulouse and the Certificat d' Etudes Francaises at the University of Grenoble.

The architecture librarian has led a varied career. She first served as a French instructor at Ward Belmont College in Nashville, Tenn.

During World War II, she was a translator with the Free French Army and later served with the Army Air Force instructing cadet units. Before joining UNESCO, Mrs. Jadot was an accountant with the office of the Foreign Liquidation Commissioner.

Assignments have taken the Williamstown, Mass.-born educator to every part of the world. She is personally familiar with Europe and has traveled in the Balkans, India, Africa and the Caribbean. She speaks fluent French and is familiar with Serbo-Croatian, Spanish and German.

Mrs. Jadot's interests fit her background. Hobbies include swimming, travel, arts and crafts of the Balkan Countries and making and viewing tapestries.
