

Fish Drill Team Captures Second In Nation's Capital

CAPITAL PERFORMANCE
The Fish Drill Team, which took honors as the nation's second best in Cherry Blossom Festival-sponsored national drill championships, is shown on the Ellipse south of the White House.

Texas A&M's mark was left on the nation's capital at the annual Cherry Blossom Festival.

The Freshman Drill Team, which took honors as the nation's second best in Festival-sponsored national drill championships, acquainted half a million people with A&M.

The team collected the second-place drill trophy and fifth in the Festival parade on Constitution Avenue.

Judges picked A&M tops among marching organizations of the initial 130 units in the parade, viewed by more than 40,000. A later group took first. In excess of 650 bands, floats and marching units participated. Thirty-three coed and male drill teams, plus other units competed for best marching unit.

The Fish, commanded by Justo Gonzales of San Antonio, beat Villanova in the parade. Villanova's "Whiskey Company" won first in drill competition.

"I thought the team represented A&M better than at any time I've been working with them" declared Maj. Calvin Reese, sponsor. "The kids knew we'd be against top competition at Washington, and were out to beat it."

The Fish held the drill championships lead with 877 points of 1,000 possible until Villanova tallied 897 in the afternoon. Two other Southwest teams entered the nationals held in the shadow of the Washington monument, for which the trophies were patterned.

Sam Houston scored 683, Northwestern Louisiana State 740. Sam's Loman Rifles won the parade trophy for the best marching organization.

The Fish marched up Independence Avenue following drill competition to tour the House of Representatives as guests of Congressman Bob Casey of Houston. Passers-by clicked shutters as the black-helmeted team marched past, sending cadence counts echoing along the Mall.

The team stopped by the Tidal Basin for pictures with a cherry blossom background Sunday. As the squads formed, a crowd gathered.

An impromptu drill near the Japanese cherry trees memorial was applauded by more than 500.

Congressman Casey's neighbors gaped in admiration late Saturday as the Fish performed for the representative. They put on the show at 10 p.m. after a barbecue provided by the congressman and his staff.

A 1,021-signature telegram from the campus sparked the team along. The 30-foot long message arrived two hours before the drill competition.

Waiting for transportation to Dulles Airport Sunday morning, the FDT drilled at the National 4-H Center, with 200 incoming Kentucky 4-Hers looking on.

The team's attitude was summed up Sunday during tours of national monuments, including the Iwo Jima statue, across the Potomac from Lincoln Memorial.

Two of the fish surveyed the weathered brass memorial.

"Just think what a dozen freshmen and a quart of Brasso would do for that," one commented.

Officials Make Housing Changes

By MIKE PLAKE
Battalion Special Writer

Texas A&M civilian students and Cadet Corps members will be segregated by dormitory areas in the fall semester of 1967.

Allen M. Madeley, housing manager, said Cadet Corps members will be occupying dormitories 1-12 in the Duncan area and ramps G, H, I, and J of Hart hall in the Sbsia area.

Civilian dormitory students will reside in the remaining ramps of Hart, Puryear, Law, Mitchell, Legett, Milner, and Walton halls. With the exception of part of dormitory 15, all of the renovated and new dormitories (13-22) served by Sbsia will be occupied by non-Corps members.

"Students who expect to live in civilian dormitories next year will report to the housing office and reserve rooms on a pre-arranged schedule," Madeley said.

"Civilian student reservations started Monday at 8 a.m. and will continue through April 5 p.m. April 26," Madeley explained.

"Beginning at 8 a.m. April 27, students now living in ramps G, H, I, and J of Hart hall will have first choice of rooms not previously reserved by their present occupants."

All students not signed up by April 28 may reserve rooms on a first-come, first-served basis, starting at 8 a.m. May 1 through 5 p.m. May 12.

Preference to graduate, foreign, and veterinary medicine students will be given in Dormitory 22 and in ramps E, F, G, and H of Walton Hall. Pre-medicine and pre-dentistry students will have reservation privileges in the third and fourth floors of dormitory 20.

"Room reservation cards will not be mailed with grade reports as in past semesters," Madeley continued. "Students who haven't signed up at the designated times within the next two weeks will have to write the registrar on an individual basis for reservation cards."

"These students will be in competition with students not currently registered."

Madeley said students who sign for a room but later wish to cancel it must notify the Housing Office by Aug. 15.

"This is the only way to recover their $20 room deposit fee," Madeley pointed out.

"This includes students dropped for academic reasons, and those who cancel to become day students."

Single undergraduate students must live on campus unless living with their families. Any students seeking a day student permit to live off-campus must apply to the Department of Student Affairs.

"These students (under 21) must have a letter of consent from the parents requesting this arrangement," Madeley said.
