Economist Centers Talk On Problems Since WW II

Galbraith Says Poor Are Poorer

By BILL ALDRICH
Battalion Staff Writer

World economist Dr. John Kenneth Galbraith spoke before a turn-away crowd Tuesday night in the Memorial Student Center Ballroom.

Dr. Galbraith spoke on "Economic Policy: The Prospect in Light of the Recent Past." His talk centered on the problems that have arisen since World War II in the world economic situation.

ONE OF his main points was that the rich countries have become richer and the poor have stayed poor despite their attempts to change. He stated that "the disparity between the rich and the poor countries of the world has widened in the last 20 years."

He demonstrated his case with a comparison of the economic philosophies of Germany and Norway since the end of World War II. He explained that West Germany has professed an economic policy of total free enterprise, while Norway has gone more to a socialistic form. In reality, he noted that Germany has more of a socialistic economy than that of Norway.

Dinner Scheduled For Faculty, Staff

Texas A&M's staff-faculty-board dinner will be April 24 in Sblisa Hall.

Robert G. Cherry, assistant to A&M President Earl Rudder, said the stag banquet will include a 6:30 p.m. reception with dinner at 7:15.

Cherry said all members of the Texas A&M University System Board of Directors plan to attend and will be in the reception line.

The program includes brief remarks by Board President H. C. Heldenfels with Rudder presiding. Tickets are $2.50 and available through department heads and directors and at the Memorial Student Center, beginning Thursday.

While listed as stag, Cherry emphasized that women members of the university are invited.

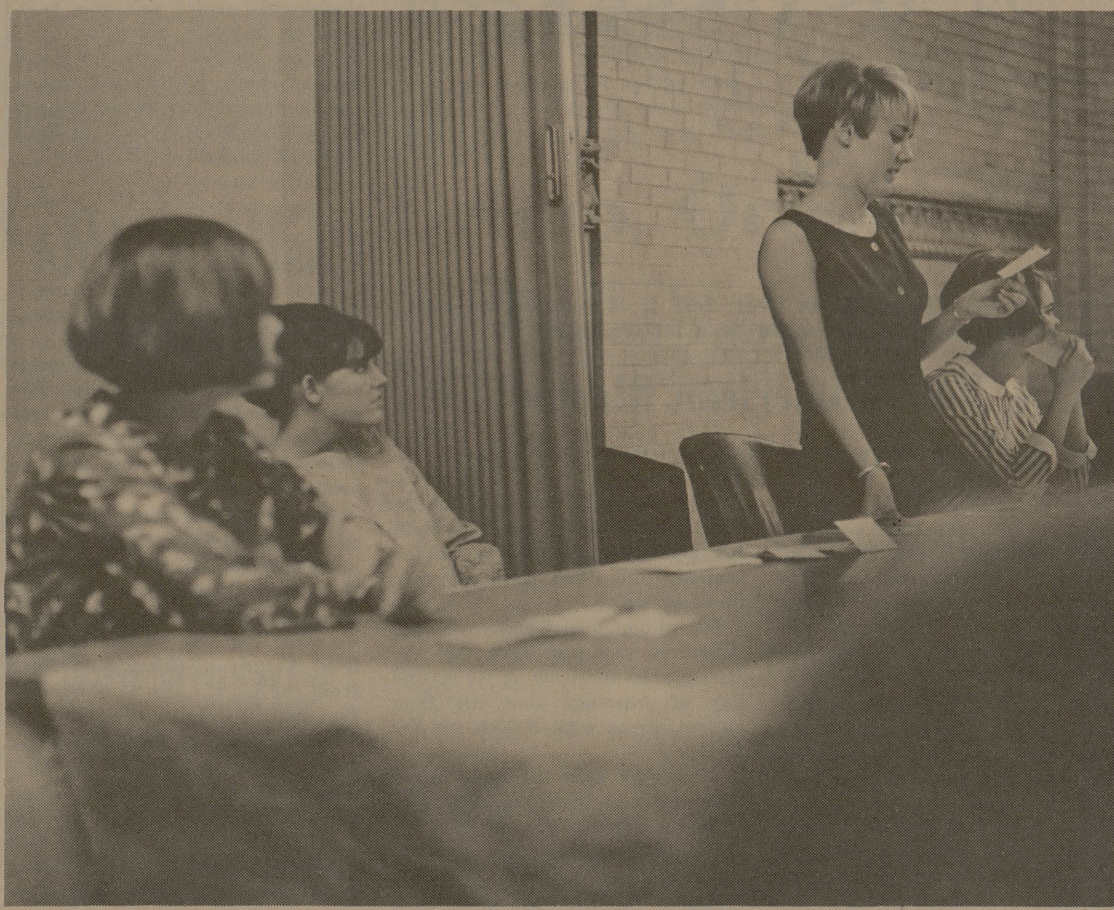

ANOTHER MAJOR portion of Dr. Galbraith's address was focused on the public's influence on economic change. Galbraith feels that if the public were "given their heads, they would demand too many concessions on the economy." However, he also stated that he felt the public served to "lend security to the economy" in a sort of checks and balances system. He said that in the future a difficulty would arise in convincing the public that the economy should be slowed down rather than expanding at its current rate.

On more domestic matters, Galbraith noted the recent crisis in the balance of payments. He concluded that European countries have gained confidence in the world market because of the inflow of American gold into their treasuries. He felt that the "tendency to do nothing is the course that will probably be followed... which is very dangerous."

DR. GALBRAITH is a former United States ambassador to India under President Kennedy. He has acted as an economic advisor to the countries of India and Pakistan. He received his Ph.D. from California in 1934. He has since taught at the University of California, Princeton and Harvard. He is currently the Paul M. Warburg Professor of Economics at Harvard, and has been at the university since 1948. In addition, he was a social science research council fellow at Cambridge University.

The lecture was sponsored by the University Lecture Series, the Memorial Student Center's Great Issues Committee and the Agricultural Economics and Sociology Department.

IN ADDITION to being one of the more noted economists of the day, Galbraith is an outspoken liberal. He is the newly elected chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action. In the past few years, Galbraith has been the voice of the American liberals in both foreign and domestic economic policy.

'Don't Try To Snow Date,' Says TWU Manners Panel

By NEAL COOK
Battalion Staff Writer

"Don't try to snow the girl when you call her, after all she is already snowed by your calling her."

This was the advice of Kris Holmberg, a freshman at Texas Woman's University, when she spoke at the YMCA's Man Your Manners program Tuesday night.

MISS HOLMBERG, a history major from El Paso, was one of the panel of four students from TWU who discussed "Dating Etiquette."

The other girls on the panel were Kathi Austin, the Aggie Sweetheart and a senior nursing major from Dallas; Janet Rich, a sophomore elementary education major from Brookfield, Missouri; and Kathy McLeod, a junior nursing major from Dallas.

"When you call a girl for a date, identify yourself. Don't just say 'This is John,' because the girl might have two boy friends named John," Miss Holmberg advised.

"Girls are not all 'goldiggers' and many girls would rather the boy take her someplace imaginative and fun that doesn't cost a lot of money," she continued.

"IF YOU MAKE a date several weeks in advance, then it would be best to call and reaffirm the date and assure the girl that you haven't forgotten her," Miss Holmberg explained.

Miss Rich discussed "Driving Etiquette" and "Formal and Dinner Dates."

"Don't try to impress your date with your driving. Your weaving in and out of traffic and showing her how fast your car is scares most girls."

"The boy must remember that the girl likes to be able to look at her date as her protector and her big hero. Another point is that this kind of driving is dangerous," Miss Rich said.

"When you use the girl's car, share the expenses and drive carefully, or you may never use the car again."

"Tell the girl where you will be going when you go out to dinner in order for her to know what to wear," she continued.

"WHEN THERE is to be a formal dance, give the girl time to prepare for it and always remember to find out the color of her dress before ordering the flower," she advised.

Kathi Austin spoke on when to give gifts to your girl friend, and when "Public Displays of Affection" are favorable.

"Remember that all girls are sentimental and most girls would rather have some small inexpensive gift that had sentimental value than an expensive one with no sentimental value or from someone whom she doesn't like," Miss Austin advised.

If an Aggie ever has doubts what to send a student at TWU, then Miss Austin suggests roses.

U.S. Supreme Court Denies Apportionment Rehearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court has denied without comment a motion from the State of Texas seeking rehearing of arguments over apportionment of the Texas House of Representatives. The denial leaves the job of remapping up to the current legislature.

In Houston, Bill Wright, lawyer for the plaintiffs in the case, said he expected to seek a new hearing before a three-judge federal court in Houston and to ask them to throw out the current apportionment plan.

ASSISTANT Texas Atty. Gen. George Cowden said from Austin, "We will just tell the Legislature to go ahead and rewrite the bill."

Texas Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin was in Washington Tuesday on Democratic Party matters and could not be reached for comment.

Work on the new mapping has been going on anyway, despite the fact that the High Court's previous ruling did not amount to a final rejection of the current scheme. What the court said in its Feb. 20 ruling was that the plaintiffs were entitled to a rehearing on the matter before the three-judge Houston panel and that the current apportionment is lopsided.

THE COURT explained that population per House seat varies from 54,385 to 71,301 or from 14.84 per cent over-representation to 1.64 per cent under-representation. The court suggested that Dallas and Bexar Counties might each receive an additional representative when the new mapping is drawn up.

Custodian of the job is State Rep. Gus Mutscher of Brenham, who heads the House Committee on Redistricting and has appointed himself chairman of each of its subcommittees.

Take Coffee, Voting Break To Pick Officers Thursday

By LEE MORENO
Battalion Managing Editor

Combine your coffee break with a visit to the polls Thursday. Thirteen class offices will be filled in a runoff election.

Voting will be from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Memorial Student Center. Students should bring their election registration card with them. Those who did not vote in the last election may pick up their registration cards at the polls.

CHARLES E. HOLT and Bernard Dawson will face each other for the second junior yell leader position.

Running for senior class president are Sanford T. Ward and William Ronald McLeroy. Vying for the vice-presidential position for the class of '68 are Richard L. Gummer and Maurice Main.

In the race for senior secretary-treasurer are Robert Nordhaus and Charles Joyner. Kenneth Kennerly and Michael Lenning are the candidate for historian.

IN THE JUNIOR class runoff, Daniel Ruiz Jr. and John G. Adami are up for president. Beverly Early Davis and James R. Horner are on the ballot for vice president, and Dennis Fontana and William McKean Jr. will square off for the social secretary position.

For the class of '70 Ronald Adams and Gerald Geistweid are competing for president, and John L. Cassell Jr. and Nokomis Jackson Jr. will run for vice president.

Seeking the office of secretary-treasurer are John D. Cunningham and Richard Oran Love. James St. John III and Carroll Cawley Jr. will fight it out for social secretary. MSC representative will go either to Barry W. Bauerschlag or Dean T. Eschelmann.

Mexico's Folkloric Ballet Performs Tonight In Bryan

The Folkloric Ballet of Tamaulipas, Mexico, will present a free performance tonight at the Bryan Civic Auditorium in connection with Pan American Week at Texas A&M.

The 27-member troupe will perform traditional dances of Tamaulipas, a northeast Mexico state including Reynosa, Matamoros and Tampico. The curtain rises at 8 p.m.

The Tamaulipas Folkloric Ballet was formed in 1958 by the state government.

"The Ballet has transmitted culture and folklore of Tamaulipas to numerous Western Hemisphere countries, Japan and Hawaii," notes Jose Adame, president of the Pan American Club and an A&M graduate student in animal science.

The troupe of 20 men and seven women is directed by Juan Franco-Loya. It has traveled throughout Mexico, Central and South America, Canada and the U.S.

"Governor Connally highly praised the Ballet when he saw them at Ciudad Victoria, Tamaulipas state capital," Adame added.

A Latin American smorgasbord Friday and dance Saturday also highlight the week's program.

Tickets for the 7:30 p.m. smorgasbord at the YMCA are $1.50 each. They are available at the Foreign Student Advisor's office across from the "Y" until 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Dishes prepared by Latin American students and staff wives will be served at the University Hospitality Committee - sponsored spread. Baby-sitting services will be provided, Adame said.

Dancing to music by "Manolo Y Sus Satelites" of Nuevo Laredo will be from 8 p.m. Saturday until
