65th Aggie Muster Set Friday On Systems Lawn

Marine General Feature Speaker

One of the oldest and most hallowed traditions of Texas A&M will be observed Friday when Aggie Muster is held in College Station and around the world.

The 5:00 p.m. ceremony will be on the lawn in front of the Systems Building and at approximately 300 other locations circling the globe.

THE FEATURED speaker for the A&M Muster will be Maj. Gen. Raymond L. Murray of the U. S. Marine Corps, assigned to the Pentagon. President Earl Rudder of Texas A&M will introduce Murray.

Other speakers include Student Senate President Barney Fudge of Burkburnett, Campus Muster Chairman Terry Aglietti of Idaho Falls, Idaho, and Jack Crichton of Dallas, Former Students Association president.

THE ROLL CALL for the absent will be read by Head Yell Leader Tommy Stone and will include six Aggies who died in Vietnam this year. When the name of the honored dead is called someone in the crowd, usually a friend of the deceased, answers "here."

The Aggie Band, the Ross Volunteers and the Singing Cadets will participate in the services.

AGGIE MUSTER was begun in 1903 when the A&M Corps of Cadets gathered on campus to pay respect to the Texans who smashed the Mexican Army at San Jacinto in 1836.

This year's muster will mark the 65th observance with some 33 musters being scheduled for foreign countries. In Vietnam, musters are set to be held at Bien Hoa, Nha Trang, Quien Nhon, and Saigon. Others are set in Turkey, North Africa, Australia, Bolivia, Japan, Labrador, Pakistan and Thailand.

Ag Singing Cadet Group Sees Busy Days Still Ahead

The Singing Cadets continue in wide demand this spring, Director Robert L. Boone reports.

April's slate for the glee club includes songs for Aggie Muster ceremonies April 21, an electrical relay conference April 24 at A&M, a district classroom teachers' association meeting in Snook April 25, and the A&M Sul Ross Class Reunion April 28.

The Cadets will sing for a finance conference May 1 in College Station, and unveil a community concert May 5 at the Bryan Civic Auditorium.

Final scheduled program of the spring is May 13 for the Federation of A&M Mothers' Clubs.

Sandwiched between Cadet performances are a picnic, awards banquet and dance May 6, and the recording of two albums, one featuring school songs, the other spotlighting concert tour offerings.

Freshman MSC Positions Open

Freshmen interested in being assistants of the MSC Council and Directorate next year are urged to apply in the Student Programs Office at the MSC.

Interviews begin April 24. No previous council experience is required. Applicants should have a 1.5 GPR.

Weather

WEDNESDAY — partly cloudy to cloudy, occasional light showers during afternoon, winds south 15 to 20, temperature 84 high, 68 low.

THURSDAY — Partly cloudy, winds south 15 to 25, temperature 86 high, 72 low.

A SCORE FOR THE AGGIES

Aggie third-baseman Lou Camilli scores Travis Park. Looking on are plate umpire Fred Hodge and Lutheran catcher Larry Nowotny.

Matson Eyes World Records In Final Kyle Field Stand

World record shot-putter Randy Matson will make his final home appearance in Kyle Field Saturday afternoon. They day has been set aside as "Randy Matson Day."

The burly student will close out his home career with an assault on both the world shot-put and discus records.

A PROCLAMATION commemorating the occasion is in the making and will be signed by several local officials. Among them are Mayors Jack Conlee of Bryan and D. A. Anderson of College Station, Brazos County Judge William C. Davis, and J. B. Hervey, president of the Bryan-College Station Chamber of Commerce.

President Earl Rudder of Texas A&M has also given his full support for the occasion, saying:

"RANDY MATSON is making a remarkable impact upon the entire world of sports. While establishing his phenomenal athletic record, he also demonstrates uncommon interest in academic achievement. His accomplishments reflect great credit on himself and upon Texas A&M.

"Randy Matson Day" is a tribute to a young man deserving of the finest possible support."

STUDENT SENATE President Barney Fudge spoke for the entire student body when he praised the Pampa strongman:

"We want to take this opportunity to show our appreciation to Randy for the many honors and world-wide recognition he has brought to Texas A&M and the entire state.

"The best way we can demonstrate our appreciation," he continued, "is to turn out in force for his last official performance here."

THE "DAY" will highlight the triangular track meet between the Aggies, Baylor and Texas. This final home meet of the season will get under way at 1:00 p.m. at Kyle Field.

Filing Deadline In Civilian, Student Senate Election Set

Filing for Civilian Student Council and Student Senate officer elections closes Friday at noon, announced Jack Myers, election committee chairman.

Names may be submitted in the Student Programs Office of the Memorial Student Center.

From the civilian student body at large will come a president, vice president and treasurer. Candidates must be undergraduates, have a 1.5 overall and have posted a 1.25 last semester, Myers explained.

Senate positions are president, vice president, parliamentarian, recording secretary and the chairman of the four standing committees. The four committees are Issues, Student Life, Public Relations and Student Welfare.

Senate president should be classified a junior, senior or graduate student during his term in office. The vice president must be a sophomore or junior at the time of the election.

The parliamentarian must be a senior, junior or graduate student.

A freshman or sophomore may run for recording secretary.

Committee chairmen may be juniors, seniors or graduate students at the time of the election.

Senate candidates must have a 1.5 overall and have posted a 1.00 last semester. Committee chairmen need a 1.25 overall and a 1.00 last semester, Myers stated.

Scheduled for April 27, the election will be in the basement of the MSC from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Soph Pilot Cadets To Get C-130 Ride

An Air Force C-130 cargo plane will be demonstrated here Wednesday, according to Capt. Phillip I. Caleb of the A&M Department of Aerospace Studies.

The aircraft, piloted by Lt. Col. Thomas F. Hines, a former member of the department, will take approximately 80 Air Force cadets on short demonstration flights over the area Wednesday afternoon, Caleb said.

"Col. Hines got permission from the commander of his tactical training unit at Seward Air Force Base, Tenn., to make the flight to A&M," he explained. Hines, who left A&M in February to train with the 442nd Combat Crew Training Wing at Seward, will be transferred to Vietnam later this year to fly combat mission with the C-130.

Similar plans are currently being used for airlift and rescue missions in the Vietnam war, Caleb noted.

Cadets are being scheduled for flights in Aerospace Studies classes.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER

Don Janacek, junior journalism major, looks at his story in the Battalion which won second place and a $400 scholarship in the National Hearst Foundation news writing contest. His story was about the grand jury investigation of an alleged "bawdy house" in Brenham.

Batt Writer Wins In News Contest

Don Janacek, a junior Texas A&M journalism major, was awarded second place and a $400 scholarship in the National Hearst Foundation news writing contest for March.

A former physics major now in his first semester of journalism, Janacek directs the sports news on television station KBTX.

Janacek's award-winning news story was featured in the Battalion March 30. "Brenham Cautious Following Threats," reported the events surrounding a recent grand jury investigation of an alleged "bawdy house" near Brenham.

The investigation led to several threats to jurors and children in the Brenham area.

Janacek arrived in Brenham a few days after the investigation was begun.

"The only problems I had were in getting information from the District Attorney and getting a picture of the house."

"The D.A. did not want the matter publicized," the reporter said.

"He was uncooperative and became quite angry at some of the questions posed by the press.

"He got particularly mad at me because I used a tape recorder instead of trying to write down everything he said," Janacek quipped.

The reporter noted that the people of Brenham, ministers, school officials and law enforcement officers were cooperative in "many ways." The one main problem he encountered was in taking photographs of the house. The entrance gate had been locked, and the press was not allowed inside.

"Reporters had to walk through a neighboring pasture and crawl under the bushes to get a picture of the house," Janacek continued. The house was not the only source of information, however.

"Rev. Robert Gilpin of the First Methodist Church gave me an exclusive interview which raised several questions in my mind. He provided me with many other sources of information."

Janacek said he was not alone in the search for facts regarding the incidents.

"The local media worked together in cornering certain phases of the operation," he said.

"It was the most interesting story that I've ever worked," Janacek said.

Ag Rodeo Team Places Third At Regional Contest

Aggie Rodeo Association cowboys won enough points Saturday in Uvalde to place them in the running once more for the regional championship in the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association.

The A&M team placed third in the intercollegiate rodeo at Southwest Texas Junior College, and racked up enough points in the individual contests to rank them fourth in the Southwestern region of NIRA.

Warren Moore won the second place prize in bull riding, and the lead position in the regional competition. Johnny Hodges won a second place in the first go-round of the saddle bronc riding and finished fourth in the average. Mike Herrington won a fifth place in the ribbon roping event.

The rodeo last week hosted 18 colleges in the region. Four more rodeos lie ahead in the regional contests, and an opportunity for A&M's team to go to the national finals in St. George, Utah, this summer.

Parachutists Go To National Meet Saturday, Sunday

The Texas A&M Parachute team will advance to national competition at Talala, Okla., Saturday and Sunday.

Skip Herd, the defending national collegiate champion, with David Burrows, Terry Garrett, and Tom Glazer will compete in the senior class.

Bob Gusfaston and Gary Lewis will participate in the novice classes.

"Events in the meet will be judged on individual style and accuracy," Tom Luhr said.

Team style and team accuracy judging includes hook-ups, baton passes, and series work.

"Series work is the performing of several right turns, or back flips in succession," Luhr said.

A "hook-up" occurs when three jumpers leave the plane at the same time and join in forming a three-man star.

"Trophies for both individual and team competition will be awarded," Luhr noted.
