

Junior Engineer Student Elected To Directorate

David Wilks, a junior mechanical engineering student from Pampa, is the president of the Summer Memorial Student Center Directorate.

Chosen for the position before Christmas, Wilks has been working on plans for a full summer program since then.

Wilks emphasized that the summer program is going to be different from programs in the past. A much more active directorate will sponsor "better and different functions," such as Brazos Bottom Beach Parties, and psychedelic dances.

"We're even going to rope off one of the streets and throw a street dance," said Wilks.

Because of a more generous budget for the summer programs, the directorate will be able to offer more to the whole community.

"We hope that this summer we will be able to perpetuate a 12-month directorate instead of a nine-month directorate."

Wilks said that he hoped to retain some of the members of the winter directorate because their experience with the program would be valuable.

He stressed that although it would be limited, the directorate hoped to have a summer speakers series and a small scaled Town Hall series.

A new addition to the summer program will be activities for married couples, such as bowling leagues and game parties.

Twenty-five members are needed to fill the positions on the summer directorate.

"Because of the limited number, we will have to be selective," said Wilks.

"We need people who are willing to work."

Application forms are available in the Student Programs office in the MSC, and May 10 is the deadline for turning them in.

Interviews for the various positions will be conducted shortly thereafter.

Strike Threatens Expo '67 Opening

By MAX HARELSON
MONTREAL (AP) — A strike by security forces of Expo 67 threatened to mar the formal opening ceremonies today of the Montreal world's fair.

Several hundred of the 1,500-man force walked off the job and assembled before the Expo administration building. They were persuaded, however, by union leaders to return to work until 3 p.m. while further negotiations were conducted over a disputed overtime pay provisions.

The disruption came a few hours before the arrival of Gov. Gen. Roland Michener, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and other dignitaries to take part in this afternoon's ceremonies.

Lunch for 100, ceremonies for 3,000 invited guests and parties and fun for 19,000 were on the day's program.

TERREL V. GARRETT

Ag Eco Major Gets Scholarship

Terrel Vaughn Garrett of El Paso, junior agricultural economics major, has received a $300 El Paso Electric Company Scholarship in Agriculture in recognition of academic performance, leadership and activities.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Garrett of 8624 North Loop Drive in El Paso.

Terrel has won several other scholarships during his college career, including a $100 award from the Ysleta Lion's Club. He has been designated a "Distinguished Student" three semesters.

The student was graduated from Ysleta High School in 1964, where he captained the football team.

Agriculture Study Members Meet Here

Members of an Agriculture Study Rendezvous here Monday heard four change-of-pace proposals designed to augment current programs in Texas' agricultural industry.

Councilmen

said there was no harm in a "peaceful, orderly gathering of people who assemble to try and alleviate a common problem."

Bergen suggested a possible solution to the problem.

"I suggest a plan with five and seven day meal tickets."

Larry Brown, from Walton Hall, illuminated another aspect of the problem.

"There are many foreign students on our campus," he said.

"Being forced to eat at Sbisca could cause severe hardships on them because of their needs for special diets."

Was there a way for the policy problem to be reasonably alleviated?

"I will be happy to arrange appointments for any group or any individuals with the board of directors," President Rudder said.

Could General Rudder change the ruling?

"The resolution was passed by the Board and must be changed by the Board," the president explained.

He explained the school's position.

"The total expense of food and its related functions are borne by the board fees. They must stand on their own, while attempting to bring quality food services at the lowest prices possible," he said.

Council President Oliver noted the conduct of the students throughout the night's events.

"I'm pleased that the students decided to go through proper channels with their problems."

"I personally feel that the Civilian Student Council will be much more effective than more demonstrations."

Oliver said communications were now much better with the civilian student body, and that the "non-regs" were showing more unification than has happened in "quite a few years."

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Tomorrow is Saturday April 29, the 119th day of 1967. There are 246 days left in the year.

Tomorrow's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, 28 Japanese leaders were indicted in Tokyo as war criminals.

In 1429, Joan of Arc entered Orleans, where she was to score her great victory in driving out English troops.

In 1879, electric street lights were first used in this country at Cleveland, Ohio.

In 1894, Jacob Coxey led an army of unemployed to Washington.

In 1942, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini met at Salzburg, Austria.

In 1944, 1,000 American bombers attacked Berlin.

In 1945, Germany signed an unconditional surrender agreement covering Italy and western Austria.

Ten years ago — King Hussein of Jordan accepted a grant of $10 million in American aid.

Five years ago — Russia brought its fourth Cosmos satellite back to earth after more than 72 hours in space.

The proposals came from a task force committee on supplying, processing and distributing industries. It was one of five groups that made recommendations on many facets of Texas agriculture. Purpose of the Rendezvous, which climaxed a year-long study, was to hear suggestions from agricultural leaders on how the industry could be expanded and improved in the state.

Texas A&M Board of Directors members requested the study because of the importance of agriculture to the state's economy. An internal study by the A&M College of Agriculture was completed last year as a possible reference for the industry leaders.

The supply, processing and distributing industries task force, headed by Dan Davis of Lubbock, offered these proposals: Prompt completion of construction and manning a state-wide system of Area Agricultural Centers; creation of a Texas Agricultural Planning System; establishment of an Agricultural Management Data Service; and formation of a Texas Agricultural Commodity Marketing Program.

The task force report emphasized that the Area Agricultural Centers (now known as Research-Extension Centers), which are taking the place of small, outlying experiment field stations, should have plenty of parking and meeting space for people attending demonstrations.

Each Center should be administered by one person, aided by three deputies—one for research work, one for agricultural extension work, and one for home demonstration extension. The Centers would not substitute for extension work at the county level, but would augment that activity.

The Texas Agricultural Planning System, acting at county, area and state levels, would develop long range goals and short term objectives for agriculture. A major responsibility of the TAPS should be development of a state program for each important agricultural commodity.

The Agricultural Management Data Service, the report said, would be essential to TAPS effectiveness in measuring how well goals are being reached.

"Need for improved agricultural statistics has been noted effectively by the House Interim Committee on Agriculture appointed by the Hon. Ben Barnes, speaker of the Texas House of Representatives," the report pointed out.

Data collected by the Service should be analyzed by A&M University personnel. Statistics without analysis "are of little practical value."

The Texas Agricultural Commodity Marketing Program, described as a "self-help" system by the task force, would call for passage of legislation at the state level to permit Texas Agriculture to provide its own funds to study and implement proper marketing of products.

The report said the House Interim Committee on Agriculture has advanced this proposal and documented its need.

"This provision for uniform collection of funds, with a refund to dissident individuals, would likely be the most practical course to follow in implementing this self-help program," the report said.

Arizona Prof Slated Speaker

Dr. A. Alan B. Pritsker, professor of engineering at Arizona State University, will speak at a seminar on scientific program management here June 15-17.

This was announced by the Department of Industrial Engineering, sponsors of the seminar.

Dr. Pritsker, who won the Distinguished Research Award of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers for 1966, will speak on "GERT Networks—Definition and Applications." GERT (Graphical Evaluation and Review Techniques) is used to analyze space vehicle conditions, queueing systems and personnel development.

Dr. Wilbur L. Dr. Meier said the conference is designed as a "first" in the area of scientific program management.

"In half-day, one-day and two-day series of sessions, it will bring together leading authorities in the field as speakers and instructors," he explained. "The program is so organized as to present methods, applications and research directions."

Dr. Meier also said the seminar will focus on methods, significant applications, and recent advances in technology.

Dr. Pritsker, who has been on the ASU faculty since 1962, received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Columbia University and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. In addition to the AIEE recognition, he has also received the Faculty Achievement Award for 1967. He has had 26 technical papers published in engineering journals and is a member of several honorary engineering fraternities.
