The award, presented personally by the Republic's president, Dr. Joaquin Balaguer, was the decoration of the Order of Duarte, Sanchez y Mella.

The order is named after historical heroes of the Dominican Republic. Duarte is considered the counterpart of the United States' George Washington.

Buford directed construction is in charm and headed the Instituto Superior de Agricultura (an agricultural high school), which is one of Texd admission as A&M University-administered programs in the Republic. It was established through Ford Foundation support.

The other program grew out of

(AID) to organize a system to said. improve agricultural research and extension services in that island

Both projects are administered through A&M's Office of International Programs.

President Balaguer, in presenting the Order of Duarte, Sanchez y Mella to Buford, described the award as "the highest distinction in the Republic for those who have given eminent services to the

The award consisted of a large, elaborately engraved medal, a lapel pin and a large scroll.

"This honor and the fact that the school is established and thriving have given me the kind of satisfaction I wouldn't have received at home in a routine job. I have the feeling that I and my associates really helped a a $1.5 million contract which people that needed help. I felt A&M signed with the U.S. Agen- that we helped build a school from the cornerstone phase," Buford

The "cornerstone phase" is right. When Buford arrived at the future school site near Santiago in 1963, the situation didn't look promising.

"None of the scenery lent itself to development, especially the selected school site," the director recalled. "After crossing a deep gully and traveling up a steep slope to the prospective school campus, we saw the remains of an old farm house, mesquite and palm in an old field. My first reaction was 'This is impossible.'"

But Buford and his colleagues, such as Advisor-Dean J. Wallace Hawkins, stuck with the job and progressed. His wife, son and daughter were there to lend sup-

In the beginning there was the old farm house and 350 acres of land. Today there are 28 modern buildings, land holdings have doubled, and the entire physical

There are 15 teachers (all Dominicans) 47 dairy cattle, 210 hogs, and five tractors and implements. Facilities include classrooms, chemistry, physics and biology laboratories, livestock and poultry barns, machinery sheds, plant science and soil science laboratories, and an irrigation sys-

Buford said the student body now stands about 180, with 80 new and highly selected students admitted each year. The students need no money. They attend on scholarships provided by Dominican Republic citizens.

Dr. Jack Gray, director of the A&M Office of International Programs, said the institute is one of the few schools in the Dominican Republic to train students to the level that will allow them to apply to any agricultural college or university in the U.S.

Nation's First Turbine Train Begins Quiet Series Of Tests WASHINGTON (AP) — The naThe gas turbine train is to tion's first gas turbine passenger train, designed to revolutionize intercity high-speed travel, has been constructed and now is quietly undergoing a series of feasibility tests.

Department of Transportation officials said Thursday the train was completed last week at the Pullman Car Works plant in Chicago and has made a successful first run at low speed. Plans call for a series of night tests on the Rock Island Railroad facilities in Illinois before the train will be unveiled to the public.

The gas turbine train was built by the United Aircraft Corp.'s Systems Center, headquartered at Farmington, Conn., and eventually will be leased to the government for a million dollars a gin a series of test runs this summer on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad between Boston and Providence, R.I. The three-car train will provide accommodations for 156 passengers and cut the travel time between the two cities from the current 54 minutes to 38 minutes, with two stops.

Some transportation officials describe the gas turbine engine as the most important step forward in the railroad industry since the development of diesel engines. Plans have been made to display the new train at a number of New England cities before it goes into operation.

I.E. Students Take Honors

Two A&M industrial engineering graduate students won top prizes in a technical paper competition recently in Houston.

They are Leonard Lamberson, a Ph.D. candidate and assistant professor with the department, and Sidney T. Brown. Lamberson won the first place award of $50 and Brown won $25 for second prize. The competition was sponsored by the South Texas Section of the American Society of Quality Control in order to stimulate interest in quality control and related areas. Students from the University of Houston and A&M com-The first-place winner, "A Graphical Technique for Text Evaluation and Quality Assessment," consisted of detailed accounts of uses of the normal probability paper in product testing and evaluation, Lamberson noted. Brown's topic was "Weighted Estimation of Run-Out Cost."

Chapel Celebrates Folk Song Mass

On Trinity Sunday, May 21, choir and instruments will offer the popular American Folk Mass by Fr. Ian Mitchell. At both the 9:40 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. services the folk music setting for the Holy Communion will be used.

Bishop Burill of Chicago says: 'We live in an age when the Church is trying to modernize its "LONG HOT SUMMER" liturgies. It seems fitting that our music, which has been static for years, follow this modern

For centuries the music of the Bucharist has been the popular music of the day. And Fr. Mitchell's folk mass is a significant expression of a deep need within the Church to express her worship in contemporary terms now.' St. Thomas' choir under the leadership of Dr. Lannes Hope will be assisted by these instrumentalists: Jim Boone, banjo and harmonica; Bob and Larry, guitars; Jan Want, mandolin and tambourine; Cleve Want, 12 string guitar; Rick Moses, electric bass guitar.

Howard Badgett, physical plants manager for the Texas A&M University System, has received a ADDED ATTRACTION SAT. certificate of meritorious service from a national association.

Badgett was honored for 18 years of interest and efforts in behalf of the National Association of Physical Plant Administrators president of the association, Badgett has presented papers at regional and national meetings. The award was made at a meeting at Montreal, Quebec, Canada,
