WORDS OF WISDOM

Aggie linemen listen to line coach Dee Powell give instructions at a practice session this week.

Sports Aplenty
Texas To Win In Tight Race
By GARY SHERER

It is standard procedure during the college football season to predict the results of the upcoming weekend's games in the Thursday or Friday editions of the paper. So, here it is Wednesday and its time for the fearless predictor of football fortunes to try his hand at early-bird selecting. Like William Shakespeare, this writer likes to go against procedure, so here are the musings on the top ten games of this weekend.

Texas A&M 24, LSU 14
Romeo and Juliet were crossed by the stars.
Notre Dame 34, Purdue 14
Lady Macbeth was trying to get her dog out the back door.
Michigan St. 21, USC 17
The three witches gave Macbeth a snowjob.
Texas 22, Texas Tech 15
Sir John Falstaff had quite a head on him.
Georgia 21, Clemson 7
Richard The Second needed a horse.
Nebraska 14, Minnesota 10
Hamlet never did find the answer to his question.
Miami (Fla.) 20, Penn St. 15
Burtus had already 'et'
Missouri 16, Northwestern 8
Macbeth lost his head because he couldn't see the forest for the trees.
Tennessee 26, Auburn 12
Romeo believed a little nip never hurt anybody.
Navy 21, Rice 20
All the world's a stage and it might leave in ten minutes.

Possibly the best advice for frustrated prognosticators is what Hamlet talked of in his dying speech—silence. Not being able to be quiet, my frustration will have to be taken up in picking the ten best games of the week and then suffering when finding out the error of my ways.

But like the Bard of Avon who also had a disregard for history, this corner will forget its past wrong picks and keep plugging every week.

Who knows, maybe Portia's 'quality of mercy' may fall on me and all the predictions will not take 'the petty pace' of Macbeth's tomorrow.

Table Tennis Group To Organize

Students interested in representing Texas A&M University in intercollegiate and other table tennis tournaments are invited to attend an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Student Center basement.

MSC Table Tennis Chairman Kumar Mitra said interested persons who cannot attend the meeting should contact him or one of the advisors, Dr. C. S. Giam or Dr. K. H. Pearson at 846-4766, extension 71, or at 823-0688 after 5 p.m.

Pains And Tigers Troubling Aggies

The current game going the rounds among the Texas Aggie football players is "What's my pain?"

In his Tuesday news conference A&M Coach Gene Stallings bemoaned the fact that 10 of his squad are down with injuries received in the Purdue game.

AND UNFORTUNATELY as he went through the list of the wounded in action, it sounded uncomfortably like a stadium announcer giving the game's starting lineup.

Defensive end Gaddy Wells is suffering from troublesome nerves in his shoulder; defensive lineman Bill Kubecka has an injured shoulder and will probably be out for the LSU game; Winston Beam injured his knee and his condition is uncertain.

Defensive tackle Grady Allen dislocated his elbow and will definitely be out of action for LSU and possibly longer; tailback Wendell Housley hurt his shoulder and may not be able to start against the Tigers; Larry Stegent, the sophomore fullback, broke a bone in his hand but will probably play Saturday.

DEFENSIVE BACK Lynn Fisher has a twisted ankle as does "Mo" Moorman but both will probably be back in shape by this weekend; Robert Cortez, the senior defensive guard, has a hip pointer, a painful but not serious injury and Lynn Odom, a defensive guard, reinjured an ankle which he hurt in the SMU game. Defensive end Jim Piper fell victim to the heat during practice last week and will be out Saturday.

After he had gotten past the subject of the injured players, Coach Stallings hit a more optimistic note.

"We played better this week than the week before," he commented. "Our team is playing better in the 3rd and 4th quarters. Last year we'd get ahead and then have to fight for our lives. That's not true this season."

Against the tough Purdue offensive line Stallings said the Aggie offensive line didn't do as well as it did against SMU but he attributed this to the increased size and experience of the Boilermakers.

The Aggie head coach also came up with some interesting facts concerning wingback Bob Lee.

"He's only caught four passes this season and two of them were for touchdowns." He pointed out that of the other two receivers one was a deflected pass intended for someone else and the other was intended for Stegent. It just seems to be in the right places at the right times.

WHEN QUESTIONED as to the extent of Aggie's pass game against Purdue, Stallings said that the Aggies had planned to rely on the aerial attack. He then asked if his team would take the high road against the defense-minded LSU Tigers.

"We're going to do a little of both," he answered. But maybe there'll be a whole lot of one of those little bits like last week.
