

Grad Admissions Change Announced

A modification of policy regarding applications for admission to the Graduate College of Texas A&M University has been announced by Assistant Dean Haswell Monroe.

Previously, applicants might be permitted to enroll in graduate study, pending submission of scores.

Under the new policy, Monroe explained, all students must score total of 1,000 on the aptitude portion of the GRE and have earned a grade point ratio of at least 2.0 for the last two years of work.

Officers Receive Military Awards

A Texas A&M ROTC instructor and six officers studying for advance degrees were decorated for outstanding military service Thursday.

bachelor's degree in aerospace engineering. The graduate students are attending A&M through the Air Force Institute of Technology.

Briscoe Named Tops In NASA

Allen L. Briscoe of Rosenberg, a junior aerospace engineering major at Texas A&M, has been named cooperative education Student of the Month at NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston.

The award was announced by J. G. McGuire, A&M assistant engineering dean and director of the cooperative education program in which students alternate between working a semester in industry and attending classes a semester.

Briscoe worked during the summer in the advanced operations planning section of NASA's Flight Control Division. His supervisors cited him for "a remarkable degree of initiative and ability to originate action on assignments without being told every detail."

"They said his accomplishments, especially in August, were comparable to the work of more highly trained engineers," McGuire commented.

Briscoe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Briscoe Jr. of Rosenberg, has a 2.08 grade point ratio on a 3.0 scale at A&M. He has received recognition as a distinguished student.
