Holloway Praises Livestock Judges

Membership in a judging team "emphasizes training, continuing education and application of fundamentals set forth in the classroom," Jim Holloway, senior vice president of Bryan's First Bank & Trust, told the A&M Saddle and Sirolo Club Tuesday.

As part of their training, members not only have to tell the difference in animals, but they must explain why the difference. The challenge lies in expressing this difference in their own words and correct terminology, he said.

The process of judging is the continuation of education and application of fundamentals in pressure situations where mistakes are fatal, the former Aggie explained.

"Being on a judging team gives a country boy a chance for travel, too," Holloway said. Not only that, but the social contacts these boys make might secure them a job or promote their own business after graduating.

"Social contacts are necessary, so be neat, dress right, and talk straight," he advised.

When a team goes out and does well, it is a credit to the university, he said. It puts A&M in the limelight.

Sign-Up Starts For Dance Class

Registration for this semester's Aggie dance classes will continue at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Memorial Student Center ballroom.

Cost for the instruction will be $6 for the semester. The lessons will be conducted every Tuesday night from 8-10 in the MSC.

The courses are for beginners, intermediates and advanced dance students. Classic ballroom will be the basic style taught, but modern and square dancing lessons will be given on request.

Manning Smith will instruct the course. Parties also will be included in the basic registration charge.

"I just spent 20 minutes giving him encouragement to improve his morale after his low grade! Then I find out he's worried about dropping to a 95!"

Anti-Fire Week Proclaimed Here

Mayor D. A. (Andy Anderson) and Texas A&M President Earl Rudder joined Thursday in proclaiming Fire Prevention Week here October 8-14.

Their joint proclamation states in part:

WHEREAS, every year this Nation endures needless loss of lives and property due to the perils of fires, and

WHEREAS, every community exercising good fire prevention can materially reduce this loss, and

WHEREAS, the Fire Department will endeavor to educate the citizens on effective means of fire prevention through orientations in the public schools, the press, radio and television, and through visual aid demonstrations to civic groups, and

WHEREAS, a review of our own record on fire losses each year dictates the need for continued increased emphasis toward preventing fires.

The document concludes with a plea for the support of every citizen, "at home or in his place of business, to eliminate all fire hazards, adhere to the prescribed Fire Department rules and regulations in order that ours may be a safer community in which to live and work."

engineers... don't be trapped by career myopia!

Career myopia is a condition that's brought on by taking a short-sighted view of your employment choice. It has caused many potentially fine engineers to choose their employers and their jobs for superficial reasons. □ Result? A world full of eight-to-five engineers in eight-to-five jobs, men who receive no self-satisfaction from their jobs, who are delayed in making significant contributions within their professions. □ Dallas Power & Light Company is looking for engineers with foresight enough to avoid career myopia, men who choose selectively, men who want a tough job, engineers who want to create, manage and develop themselves. □ If you're looking for an opportunity to produce and progress, consider the investor-owned electric power industry, one of America's fastest growing businesses. Plan your career with Dallas Power & Light Company, a recognized leader.
