

AND THE RAINS CAME

It was a wet, wet, wet Twelfth Man that stood for hours in the rain Saturday night to watch the Florida St. Seminoles edge the Aggies, 19-18.

Civil Defense fallout shelters and other buildings capable of shelter space in Brazos County will be surveyed in the next three weeks.

U. S. Army Corps of Engineer officials from Fort Worth will conduct the survey to locate new shelter space and usable water in existing facilities. Civil engineers Arthur F. Jones and Charles V. Dansby will make the appraisal.

"We're very happy to have Jones and Dansby with us," commented Jake Canglose, Brazos County CD director. "They are conducting a much needed phase of our Civil Defense program."

"We will look at every building previously listed as shelters and at new construction," Jones explained. "The availability of usable water is one of the principal features of the survey. Water is often trapped in a building, in interior piping, storage facilities and so forth. Recording the location of such water is one purpose."

SEC Organizes For New Year

The newly selected representatives to the Student Engineers' Council had their first meeting of the year last week.

The Council consists of three representatives of each recognized engineering society—an elected junior, an appointed senior, and the president of each department's technical society.

The primary function of the council is to serve as a media to transmit student problems, ideas, and services to the College of Engineering.

The Council organizes and supervises High School Career Day functions, the Annual College Awards Banquet, the TSPE and departmental progress reports by faculty and student representatives.

The officers selected to head the Council for the 1967-68 school year are: Edward M. Miller, an industrial engineer from Oyster Bay, New York, president; Robert B. Stiles, an aerospace engineer from San Antonio, vice-president; Fred Schwiening, an industrial engineer from Kerrville, secretary and Donald A. Swofford, an architecture major from McAllen, treasurer.

Research Architect To Address Group

George Mann, assistant research architect in the Research and Graduate Center of Texas A&M's School of Architecture, will speak during an American Institute of Architects conference Oct. 26 in Gatlinburg, Tenn.

Mann's talk, "Graduate Programs in Research and Adaptable Building Systems for Hospitals," will highlight a meeting of architects and researchers.

"The upgrading phase will also take into account new buildings and other structures that may shelter occupants. Reports on these structures will also be made."

The survey will be concentrated at Texas A&M, which has the largest complex of buildings in Brazos County.

Brazos County has shelter space for just over 20,000 persons marked and stocked, Canglose pointed out. Location of the CD shelters is listed in a pamphlet available at all post offices.

NOT IMPRESSED

This Florida St. cheerleader doesn't look too impressed with Texas weather as she stands in the downpour during Saturday's football game.

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Myerberg, veteran Broadway producer, and Donald Flamm, long active in radio station management, have formed a stage partnership.

The pair's first presentation is to be "What Did We Do Wrong?" a comedy by Henry Denker.
