Scientist Gets Research Grant

Biological productivity research conducted by a Texas A&M oceanographer has been expanded in Antarctic waters.

The research program of Dr. Sayed Z. El-Sayed has been amended by a $13,000 National Science Foundation grant for a comparative study in the Weddell Sea.

Present work is underway in the Pacific sector of the Antarctic.

El-Sayed said research conducted from the powerful U. S. icebreaker Glacier, will be in cooperation with the International Weddell Sea Expedition, which involves the U. S., Norway, Argentina and Great Britain. The Glacier cruise will begin in February. He said the big icebreaker is presently at the North Pole, extricating an ice-bound ship.

A U. S. Coast Guard technician will assist El-Sayed's investigations aboard the icebreaker. He will arrive at A&M next month for training.

The $13,000 NSF grant is in addition to funds previously granted in March. Funds for A&M biological productivity studies now total $55,000 for 1967-68.

Aggie Sea Grad Gets Fellowship

G. S. Edwards of Houston has been awarded a Pan American Petroleum Foundation fellowship the second consecutive year for his Texas A&M graduate studies in oceanography.

Announcement was made by F. R. Yost, Foundation president.

Edwards specializes in marine geological and geophysical research and hopes to enter private industry. He is studying for a master's degree and plans to pursue a doctorate.

Dr. Richard A. Geyer, Oceanography Department head, said the Pan American Petroleum Foundation fellowship for 1967-68 will enable Edwards to continue his work without interruption. The award, one of six granted on a year-to-year basis, is for a minimum $3,500 to cover fees, tuition and expense allowances.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Edwards, 2211 Quenby Road, Houston, Edwards was graduated from Lamar High School and received his bachelor degree in geology from Tulane. He was the first student selected to continue advanced marine science studies under the program begun by Pan American Petroleum Foundation last year.

The Foundation is supported by Pan American Petroleum Corp., North American exploration and producing subsidiary of Standard Oil (Indiana). It also sponsors 14 other fellowships and 32 undergraduate scholarships in engineering, geology and geophysics.

Grant Awarded To Ag Eco Prof

Jim Preston of the Department of Agriculture Economics and Sociology has been awarded a grant to investigate the effects of problem drinking on work behavior.

Specific objectives of the research are (1) to explore the work behavior patterns of problem drinkers in industry, (2) to develop a better understanding of the early phases of alcoholism and (4) to determine the reciprocal relationship between occupational type and alcoholism.

The $3,000 grant was awarded Preston by the Texas A&M University Organized Research Fund.

Thursday, expelling 13 leaders of Wednesday's bloody anti-war demonstration.

Hundreds of angry students began an immediate boycott of classes and set up chanting picket lines outside buildings on the 33,000-student campus.

Chancellor William H. Sewell planned to meet with faculty members regarding the future of on-campus job recruiting by Dow Chemical Co., maker of napalm for the war in Vietnam.

After Wednesday's outbursts, Sewell ordered a temporary halt to Dow recruitments.

Refusals of protesters to clear jammed corridors inside a building where Dow held its interviews triggered skull-thumping skirmishes between police and demonstrators Wednesday.

About 65 protesters and three policemen were treated for injuries, none of them believed serious, after helmeted police used riot sticks and tear gas to disperse jeering students who shouted slogans denouncing police, the war and President Johnson.

Sewell, who became chancellor this past summer, had vowed there would be no repeat of last February's anti-Dow demonstrations which led to 19 arrests.

"I deeply regret that it was necessary to bring police to the campus," said Sewell. "This was done only after our officers and staff found it impossible to maintain law and order."

Names of the expelled students were not immediately released. All have the right of appeal.

Sewell's speedy action against protest leaders came on the heels of sharp criticism by the state Legislature of campus disorders.

Hashmi To Give Talk About Islam

Shariful Hanson Hashmi will present a program for the Unitarian Fellowship entitled "An Introduction to Islam" on Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Fellowship Building.

A native of Pakistan, Hashmi is associated with the Department of Biology at Texas A&M where he is an instructor and a Ph.D. candidate in botany. He is president of A&M's Muslim Student Association.

The Unitarian Fellowship, although a product of traditional western Christian heritage, holds a more universal view of religion, is interested in learning more from the great religions of the world and invites the public to attend and enlighten on Islam.

Leabo To Speak At ACP Seminar

C. J. Leabo, Journalism Department head at Texas A&M University, will speak this weekend during the Associated Collegiate Press national conference in Chicago.

Leabo, former assistant director of the ACP and National Scholastic Press Association, will conduct seminar sessions for newspaper and photography sections. More than 1,400 participants are expected.
