

EAST LANSING, MICH. (AP)—Defenders Ken Criter and Tom Domres of the Wisconsin football team wore black helmets when they played Michigan State here. All the other Badgers wore red helmets.

Wisconsin coach John Coatta awards black helmets to players who star. Criter and Domres wore the helmets as a result of their play in the 17-0 loss to Washington in their opener. Against State, Wisconsin bowed 35-7.

Came out 4-4-2 last week. With the record at 37-23-2, a sure bunch of picks is needed badly. This season, the West has taken over as the nation's college football kingdom.

Southern California is number one in the polls and UCLA would be runner-up if it were not for Oregon State who tied the Uclans last weekend. It looks like that attributed statement of Horace Greeley's might hold some water. Here is this week's ten guesses.

WENDELL HOUSLEY

The junior fullback will probably miss the Rice game because of a broken bone in his left foot. Housley sustained the injury during last week's Arkansas game.

Housley's Injury Causes Problems

By GARY SHERER
A fullback depth problem was bothering Coach Gene Stallings at his weekly press conference Tuesday.

Wendell Housley, who had just recovered from shoulder miseries, broke a bone in his left foot in the Arkansas game. The junior fullback will probably miss the Rice game as a result of the injury.

This leaves Stallings with one seasoned fullback, senior Bill Sallee. If Sallee stays healthy there won't be a problem. But if the Midland ball-toter gets put out of action, there will be a problem replacing him.

"The man backing him (Sallee) up was a tackle two weeks ago," said Stallings. The Aggie mentor was referring to Phil McAnelly, who was switched to fullback after the dismissal of Maxie Clark.

Housley's foot has been put in a cast only as a preventive measure against unnecessary movement. Stallings added that there might be a possibility that the foot would be sufficiently healed so that Housley could make both the Rice and season-ending Texas games. However, he said the chances were slim.

Sophomore Ross Brupbacher, who has performed well at defensive halfback after coming over from offense four weeks ago, is another fullback possibility.

With the exception of Housley, the team came out of the Arkansas game fairly healthy. Midland guard Bill Kubecka was limping Monday but Stallings expects to be ready for the Owls on Nov. 18 at Houston.

Stallings discussed the game and complimented the quarterback Robby Shelton. Shelton, who was injured in the opener against LSU with a dislocated shoulder played some last week. The early expectations were that Shelton would be out for a year. Stallings noted that the junior passer has shown courage in bouncing back so soon.

When asked about the Aggie four victory comeback, Stallings said the team's ability to come up with the big play has carried them through these last few games. He pointed out that some of the team statistics were as good as the rest of the Southwest Conference. Therefore, big play has been needed to make the Aggie attack successful.

Stallings is also worried about the short five-day break between the Rice and Texas games. It's brought out that this only occurs about every five years.

Texas Shorthorns Look For Clincher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Texas Shorthorns can clinch a tie for the Southwest Conference freshman football championship with a victory over Southern Methodist in Austin Friday.

Texas with three victories is the only undefeated team in the race. SMU has lost two of three games played.

Each freshman team plays five games except Texas Tech which schedules four.

Two games are on tap Thursday. Rice, 2-1, is at Baylor, 3-1, in a day contest and Tech, the defending champion but winless in two starts, goes to Texas A&M, loser of three straight, that night.

Senior halfback Gordie Rule of Chandler, Ariz., has been starring on defense for Dartmouth's football team this fall.
