Young Democrats Call For Peace

By FRANK MURRAY
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)—A coalition of anti-Johnson forces and peace-seekers introduced a resolution at the national convention of Young Democrats Thursday night calling for "the immediate and unconditional cessation of bombing in Vietnam."

The coalition, which includes college-age Young Democrats who previously had sought a strong statement calling for President Johnson to pass up a bid for reelection, gathered behind the candidacy of Allen Reed of Lincoln, Neb., for the Young Democrats' presidency.

REED, an avowed peace candidate, said the coalition believes an immediate end of the bombing "should substantially improve prospects of negotiation while also serving the humanitarian purpose of limiting civilian casualties" in Vietnam.

The proposal was submitted by Joseph Berlant of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.

Soon after the coalition force was announced, Thomas O'Brien of Boston, a spokesman for the college-age group, said he was sacrificing his draft resolution to keep Johnson from being the 1968 Democratic presidential nominee. O'BRIEN said his proposal "would destroy the unity of the peace forces. To introduce something you know would be beaten under those circumstances would be fruitless."

Earlier Mayor Richard G. Hatcher of Gary, Ind., said "political-racial maturity in America must await the day when Negro public officials are free to fail as well as succeed."

And, in an interview on the convention's major topic, Vietnam, Hatcher said, "Young Democrats have the responsibility to prick the conscience of the Democratic party."

CONVENTION officials who support President Lyndon Johnson have called the efforts to force through a so-called peace resolution "deliberate attempts to embarrass the President."

More proposals, including two described by the chairman of the international affairs subcommittee as "hawkfish," were due for presentation.

Bulletin

Following a thorough investigation, the Board of Directors for the Texas A&M University System decided this morning not to attempt a telecast of the Texas A&M-University of Texas football game Thanksgiving Day.

"In view of the complexities involved, we have reluctantly decided against televising the game," announced Board President L. F. Peterson of Fort Worth.

"As much as we would like to accommodate the many fans who have contacted us regarding a possible telecast, and the thousands who were undoubtedly hoping this would be the case, we simply do not feel it would be in the best interests of either university to approve such action at this late date," Peterson added.

If the telecast had been made, it would have been for viewers in the Bryan-College Station and Austin area only, in keeping with NCAA regulations.

Because of this regulation Peterson noted, a national or area-wide telecast was never contemplated.

Aggie Publishes Art Magazine

Dr. Frank J. Malina, a 1934 Texas A&M graduate, is the founder and editor of "Leonardo", an international journal of the contemporary artist published in Paris, France.

Malina, originally from Brenham, earned a degree in mechanical engineering at A&M, and has enjoyed successful careers as an aeronautical engineer, geophysicist and artist. He was founder of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at the California Institute of Technology.

Dr. Malina is a past director of the International Academy of Aeronautics and a permanent representative to UNESCO of the International Astronautics Federation.

Plans call for the new magazine, published by the Pergamon Press in New York and Oxford, England, to be published quarterly, with the first edition early in 1968.

Dr. Malina said the journal, primarily a channel of communication between artists, will reflect the developing world-wide impact of contemporary works of art on mankind on a planet made small by modern communication and transportation.

Statistics Award Given To Waldron

Bobby R. Waldron of Natchitoches, La., has been named winner of the first annual William S. Connor Award of the Institute of Statistics at Texas A&M.

Waldron's selection as the outstanding doctoral candidate in statistics was announced by Dr. R. R. Hocking, professor of statistics.

Dr. Hocking said the award is in memory of Dr. William S. Connor, former professor in the Institute of Statistics.

The award includes a subscription to the "Annals of Mathematical Statistics."

Ivy League Presidents Oppose Draft Proposal

High Court Judge Joins Controversy

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

The presidents of two Ivy League universities have spoken out against a proposal to strip draft deferment from students who interfere with military recruiting.

And U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas says the author of the proposal, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of the Selective Service, is "a law unto himself and responds only to his own conversation."

Fortas spoke Thursday night at Colgate University when asked his opinion of the proposal. He also said Hershey's statement probably did not "have the approval of the executive branch of government."

Earlier, James A. Perkins, president of Cornell University, and Ray L. Heffner, president of Brown University, took issue with the proposal in separate actions.

Perkins urged, in a telephone conversation with Douglass Cater, a special assistant to President Johnson, that the White House abolish the Hershey proposal.

Hershey recommended three weeks ago that local draft boards find evidence that students with deferments are interfering with recruiting by U.S. military representatives remove the deferments and make them available for call-up to duty. Perkins' office said he told the White House: "I would be opposed to this policy if the incident took place off the campus but I am particularly opposed if it involves action on the university campus."

"In this latter case, draft board monitoring of student behavior would destroy the university's power to manage its own affairs and would substitute uninformed outside authority for carefully developed university judicial systems."

His call preceded a demonstration by 40 Cornell students against the appearance by two Marine recruiters on campus but his office said there was no connection between the two.

In Providence, Heffner said he intends to tell Hershey he strongly disagrees with the proposal, considering it possibly illegal and "certainly unwise."

He said students who engage in forms of protest involving physical force or physical obstruction "shall be subject to university discipline."

But he added, the rights of "peaceful assembly, free exchange of ideas and orderly protest are among the basic rights of all members of a university community."

In Geneva, N. Y., Dr. Richard C. DeBald, dean of Hobart College, called upon President Johnson to relieve Hershey of his post.

In a letter to the President he charged the Selective Service director with a "lack of ability to understand the youth in our times."

"Because I feel that our youth is our hope for a better world, I strongly urge that you relieve Hershey of a command for which he is obviously incompetent."

In Washington Thursday, the Selective Service system made public an Oct. 26 letter from Hershey to government appeals agents — who advise draft registrants of their legal rights — to report to draft boards any violations by registrants.

He told the boards the request was made so registrants who have failed to comply with the draft law "may be expeditiously processed by their local board as delinquents and that non-registrants who violate the law may be promptly reported to the Department of Justice for prosecution."

Grad Speaker To Talk On Med Research

An internationally renowned physicist, Dr. John Lenihan, will give Texas A&M's first fall University Lecture Tuesday.

The lecture, "Medicine and the Challenge of Technology," is set for 8 p.m. in the Memorial Student Center ballroom, announced Academic Vice President Dr. Wayne C. Hall.

As physicist to the Western Regional Hospital Board at Glasgow, Dr. Lenihan is concerned with applications of science and technology to medicine. His work involves direction of a large staff of research scholars and extends to more than 200 hospitals and many university clinical departments.

In recent years, Dr. Lenihan gained additional fame by using "activation analysis" on a lock of Napoleon Bonaparte's hair to prove conclusively that the French emperor's death had been hastened by regular doses of arsenic.

Dr. Lenihan, a chartered engineer, member of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, Fellow of the Institute of Physics and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, has been particularly concerned with problems of communication between basic scientists and medical men, as well as between scientists and the rest of the intellectual community.

The speaker's scholarship, Dr. Hall noted, has won him numerous awards and prizes, plus leadership positions in top-ranking societies. Lenihan's Ph.D. is from Glasgow University, the master's from Durham University.

Dr. Lenihan's publications include "Atomic Energy and Its Application," "Activation Analysis: Principles and Applications" and "Instrumentation in Medicine."

Five additional lectures are scheduled during the school year for the University Lecture series.

Westmoreland Can't See Early End To Viet War

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—General William C. Westmoreland conferred Thursday with President Johnson on the Vietnam war and gave the Senate Armed Services Committee what was described as a cautiously optimistic report.

But the U.S. Commander in Vietnam "does not see any early termination of the war" and suggested no timetable of when the fighting might end," committee Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told newsmen.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., another committee member, said Westmoreland reported that although the North Vietnamese troops are better equipped now than before, they are not well led and their quality is going down.

MAJ. GEN. HOCHMUTH

San Diego Rites Set For General

SA NDIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Funeral services for Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Hochmuth, killed in Vietnam Tuesday, will be held Saturday at 1:30 p.m. PST in the chapel of the San Diego Marine Corps Depot.

Hochmuth was commander of the 3rd Marine Division. He had commanded the recruit depot here before going to Vietnam.

The Marine Corps said that Hochmuth will be buried at Fort Rosecrans National Cemetery in San Diego.

Hochmuth, a native of Houston, was a 1935 graduate of Texas A&M. He was one of five 1935-36 graduates to attain the rank of major general in the Marines.

"He feels quite confident," Jackson said of Westmoreland. "He sees the enemy losing steadily and continuously."

Westmoreland conferred with Johnson in his office for over an hour, but the White House made no report on their talks.

Westmoreland flew here from Vietnam Wednesday to confer with Johnson and other officials.

Before going into the President's office, the general stood by in the East Room as Johnson presented the Medal Honor to Army S.Sgt. Charles B. Norris, a four-time wounded hero of the Vietnam fighting.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told newsmen at a Senate appropriations committee hearing that there is no foundation for reports that Westmoreland will be replaced in Vietnam.

McNamara said such speculation is natural after a general has served four years in such a demanding job, but he hopes Westmoreland will remain on for a long time.

In another development tied to the Vietnam war, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved unanimously for Senate consideration two resolutions expressing that body's sentiments that: —Johnson consider directing U. S. representatives in the United Nations to press for Security Council initiatives in search of peace in Vietnam.

—In the future, Congress be given a greater voice in committing U.S. troops abroad.

The U.N. resolution is sponsored by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and nearly 60 other Senators and is assured of approval probably next month.

The troop commitment resolution is sponsored by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. But he told newsmen he does not plan to call it up before Congress reconvenes in January, to allow time for all concerned to study its implications.

Neither resolution would be binding merely express the Senate's views.

Thanksgiving Services Set

Thanksgiving services will be conducted at Texas A&M's All Faiths Chapel Wednesday.

The YMCA-sponsored services at 8, 9 and 10 a.m. have been arranged especially for students who may have visitors arriving for the A&M-Texas football game, announced Corps Chaplain Clarence Daugherty of San Antonio.

The 45-minute service will be conducted by students with three local ministers giving the sermons. The A&M Church of Christ minister, Mr. Dan E. Warden, will give the 8 a.m. sermon; Rev. William Oxley, St. Thomas Episcopal Chapel, 9 a.m., and Rev. Arthur M. Smith, Aggie Bible Association, 10.

"Everyone is cordially invited to attend," Daugherty said.

He said the three services were arranged "so that everyone will have a chance to go." He is a YMCA student assistant and religious programs chairman.

J. Gordon Gay is religious life coordinator and general secretary of the YMCA.

Rain Expected For Weekend

Late-week meteorological data indicates cloudy skies and scattered rain will be the weather situation this weekend in Houston and Bryan-College Station.

Texas A&M students will be in Houston Saturday for a 9:30 a.m. Corps Trip parade and 1:30 p.m. football game with the Rice Owls. Bonfire work will resume following the trip.

The A&M Meteorology Department weather station forecast issued earlier will remain in effect, with slight variations, according to Jim Lightfoot, station manager.

He said game time forecast calls for clouds, scattered rain, 72 degrees, easterly wind 10 to 15 mph and 80 percent relative humidity.

The moist forecast is the result of a weak Pacific front that is expected to stall along the coast, allowing moisture to build inland.

College Teachers Schedule Meeting

The Texas A&M chapter of the Texas Association of College Teachers will hold its first 1967-68 meeting Tuesday.

Dr. Donald D. McLain, chapter president, said the 7:30 p.m. meeting will be in Rooms 2C and D of the Memorial Students Center.

"TACT has been active in the area of recent developments by the Texas Coordinating Board involving tenure, faculty leave, broadened retirement policy and academic freedom at state-supported colleges and universities," McLain said.

The assistant professor of biology said all interested faculty members are invited to the meeting. Those not affiliated with the association will have opportunity to join at the meeting.

Architect Model Exhibit Underway

A cross section of student projects in Texas A&M's School of Architecture went on exhibit Wednesday, announced assistant professor Norman Ufer.

Color collages by freshmen and sophisticated architectural models by fifth year students will be included in displays throughout the school, he noted, adding that the work will remain on display through Dec. 1.

The art includes graphics from several areas, designs of furniture by third year students, plus models of urban and regional planning projects.
