

Sophomore Chemical Engineers To Visit Phillips Petroleum

Sophomore students of Texas A&M's Department of Chemical Engineering will receive an overall view of the petro-chemical industry from the well to products Thursday in a field trip arranged by Phillips Petroleum Company, Dr. C. D. Holland, department head announced.

The future engineers will be shown field production techniques at a well site near Alvin, petro-chemical refining processes at the company's Sweeny location, and will tour petro-chemical units at Pasadena. They also will visit a pipeline pumping station.

Approximately 70 students are expected to make the trip accompanied by Dr. Holland and Dr. Richard R. Davison, associate professor of chemical engineering.

College Dean Urged To Quit Or Be Fired

By GARY GARRISON
BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — W. T. Poulos, dean of Texas Southmost College, told a news conference Wednesday that college trustees told him Monday that he must resign immediately or be fired.

Poulos said he will not quit. He said the trustees at a Monday night meeting told him he faced no personal or professional charges.

Poulos said the dispute occurred at a very inopportune time. An intensive investigation of marijuana smoking is taking place in Brownsville after a college student was slain. But the trustees made no mention of that investigation or the slaying. The killing has not been solved.

Student leaders told newsmen they are considering a protest demonstration in support of Poulos.

"I will not resign my position as dean of Texas Southmost College," Poulos said.

"I HAVE served this college and community well and consider it unfair and unjust that some persons have tried to damage my personal and professional reputation," Poulos said.

Poulos said he felt the action by the board was taken "at a very poor time."

An intensive investigation of marijuana at Brownsville has been under way since the slaying last month of Arthur Louis Ziegelmeier III, 20, a Texas Southmost College student from Fort Worth. ZIEGELMEYER'S bullet-punctured body was found in a canal near Brownsville Jan. 30. He had been shot five times.

Poulos said he had cooperated "fully" with Brownsville and Cameron County officers during the investigation.

College President C. J. Garland would not comment on Poulos' statement. He referred inquiring newsmen to C.S. Eidman, president of the college board.

EIDMAN was not available for comment.

Poulos said he had heard unsubstantiated reports that he was being asked to resign because the incoming president of the college has already selected another dean.

Garland is to retire Aug. 31 and will be succeeded by Paul Bogart.

Poulos' contract was to expire Aug. 31. He said he had made no plans because "I really don't know what my status is."

Poulos, a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene,

Tex., has served as dean of the school has 1,085 students, junior college for three years. It is state-supported.
