

Aggies Await Results

With Aggies everywhere holding their breaths, the Southwest Conference Faculty Athletic Committee opened Thursday in Fort Worth.

Seventeen charges have been leveled against the Aggie football program by five SWC schools. The weekend conference will finish its deliberations Saturday morning with a report to the press of its actions.

On the agenda for today is a meeting between the athletic directors and the business managers.

In Thursday's opening session the school's athletic directors and football coaches recommended that the SWC two-visit, no contact rule before a boy's high school football eligibility is over be continued.

The suggestion is in line with a proposal by Texas high schools prohibiting outsiders like Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Louisiana State and Houston from contacting the boys before the season is over and making unlimited visits. The SWC had previously talked of doing away with its rule if the outsiders don't meet the provisions.

Also suggested was that the conference adopt the NCAA rule regarding the start of football practice. The rule entitles each team to 29 practice sessions before the third Saturday in September and also provides that the first three days of practice be devoted to conditioning drills without football equipment.

A no-limit policy of basketball scholarships and the awarding of SWC radio rights to the Humble Oil and Refining Co. for the 35th straight year were also recommended.

The annual football press tour will be at A&M August 30.

Ag Booters Visit Texas

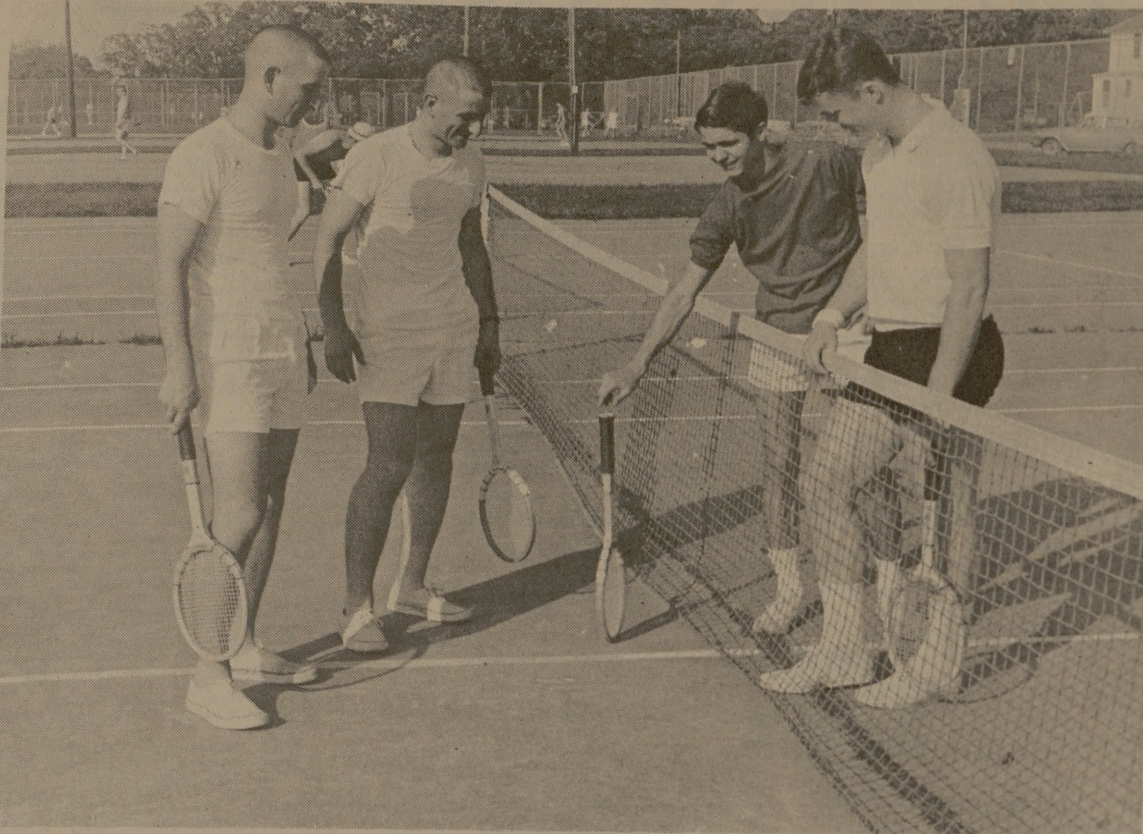

The Texas A&M soccer team plays its final road game of the season Saturday with a unique night game at Austin against Texas.

The Memorial Stadium game will begin at 7:30.

Texas has topped the Aggie booters twice previously. The Maroon and White team will be looking for revenge Saturday night.

The Aggies will wind up their season May 11 when they will host a Fort Hood team. The game will be played on the parade ground across from the Memorial Student Center.

Next year's slate has already been planned. The Aggies will open with a match against Texas and then follow with Houston, Texas Christian, Texas Tech, Arlington State, Trinity, St. Mary's and Schreiner Institute.
