Department Seeking Top Professors

Dr. William C. Gibbons, he of Texas A&M's new Politic Science Department, will go any length to recruit top pn fessors-even getting Red Cr help in contacting a prospect i Vietnam.

Case in point is that of Rober P. Clark Jr., Phi Beta Kappar Tulane and recipient of a Phi from Johns (cq) Hopkins U versity's School of Advanced h ternational Studies.

Following several bizarre con munication attempts Ten A&M received confirmation # week that Clark, an Army o tain stationed at Cam Ranh B South Vietnam, will join the un versity's faculty when he con pletes his service in July.

Gibbons explained he had n ceived glowing reports aout Char and understood several institu tions were negotiating with him "I figured I had to get in tour with him in a hurry," Gibbo noted. Gibbons, himself newly arrive at A&M from the Agency International Development's Con gressional liaison staff in Wai ington, initially attempted to con tact Clark through the Defens Department, but communication bogged down.

He then tried to phone Clari with equally poor results. The telephone people, he recalled, we less than optimistic from the start, pointing out Clark week have to hitchhike to Saigon take the call.

Next came a try at cable set vice. It was never confirmed that the wire went through. As a last resort, Gibbons wro

Clark a letter and hoped for the crops rather than destroying best.

"After that, I just sat and wait ed and got very frustrated," Gil bons recalled. "Had visions him taking another job befo I had the opportunity to contact him."

Just when Gibbons had all b given up, he received a call from Mrs. D. W. Howell, Bryan-Colleg Station area Red Cross represe tative, who had just been a tacted by the organization's head quarters in Washington. She was happy to inform Gibbons his a ble had reached Clark and the

he accepted the position. Clark, whose wife and pare reside in Houston, is 27, a nativ of Oklahoma and a specialist Latin American affairs. Prior entering the Army, he served a an assistant to a White House staff member who was preparing a book on political developme Come September, Clark will b an assistant professor and fact a host of eager Aggies totally unaware of the effort to get him. "The trouble was worth it," Gibbons emphasized. "We landed

Dr. Keith Arnold, assistant professor of wildlife science at Texas A&M seeks the answer through research supported by A&M and the U. S. Hatch Fund.

"Some authorities say grackles, members of the blackbird family, are helpful proves true, it's his cause a minimum of $6 million crop damage in Texas alone," Ar- and suggest they find some methnold said. "They are prevalent in od to scare grackles away from a lot of other states."

"We are finding that grackles eat a lot of moths and insect larmosquitos."
