GUITARIST FEATURED

Francisco Espinosa, one of Spain's most celebrated flamenco guitarists, will be featured Tuesday in G. Rollie White as part of the Memorial Student Center's Summer Directorate, Jack Abbott, chairman of the action committee, has announced.

MSC Action Set For 2nd Term

The Memorial Student Center's Summer Directorate is already in full swing this semester and activities are being planned for all students, Harry Snowdy, new Directorate president, has said. Approximately 30 positions with the Directorate are still open and students interested in working should stop by the office in the MSC to sign up for positions on the dance, recreation, action, and public relations committees. There is also a position open for a directorate assistant, according to Snowdy. The activities are kicking off this semester with the Chess and Bridge Clubs organizational meetings tonight in rooms 3-B and C and 2-A and B in the MSC tonight at 7 p.m. respectively.

Approximately 15 softball teams will begin play Monday in the intramural sports activities. Bowling and golf will also begin next week in the intramurals. Interested students are asked to stop by the intramural office in DeWare Fieldhouse to sign up for the teams by noon tomorrow in order to participate. No charge is made for any of the intramural sports, Ray Fletcher, director of intramural sports, says.

Francisco Espinosa, one of Spain's most celebrated flamenco guitarists, will be featured at a July 23 Summer Town Hall presentation sponsored by the Summer Directorate.

Jack Abbott, chairman of the Directorate's Action Committee, said the performance is set for 8 p.m. in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Tickets, which go on sale Friday in the MSC Student Programs Office, are $1 each for students with university identification cards and $2 for general admission.

Espinosa, 36, made his professional concert debut at the age of 15. Last year, after completing three seasons of extensive touring with the Jose Molina Bailes Espanoles as principal guitarist, he made his U.S. solo concert debut in Denver and won quick critical acclaim.

Previously, Espinosa traveled throughout Europe and North America on the annual tours of the Jose Greco and Jose Molina Spanish Dance Companies.

He comes from a guitar-playing family, in which his grandfather, father, and brother are all noted for their musical talents. He also is married to one of Spain's foremost flamenco dancers, Carmen Dominguez.

One of Espinosa's proudest possessions is the Grand Prix du Disque, France's equivalent of a "Gold Record." This was awarded to him by the Academia du Disque Francais for having made the best record in the popular music field during 1956-57.

He is said to be equally at home in the field of blues and jazz, as well as flamenco.

A "goad hole" tug-of-war is slated Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. next to the Cyclotron building just off University Avenue. About 20 men per team will compete. Lists of rules and further information may be obtained in the Directorate office.

Next Thursday will be one of the biggest parties planned at A&M, John Bendele, chairman of the recreation committee said.

Fee OK'ed To Stop Services Fund Tap

Texas A&M student leaders have requested an increased building use fee to service bonded indebtedness for new student seats in expanded Kyle Field.

Student action was initiated by David Maddox of College Station through A&M President Earl Rudder. Maddox is vice president of the Student Senate.

Joining Maddox in the building use fee endorsement were Student Senate President Bill Carter of Decatur, Civilian Student Council President David M. Wilks of Pampa, MSC Council President Benny Sims of Kingsville and Graduate Student Council President Mitty C. Plummer of Cunningham.

"This action was taken to insure the quality of student activities at A&M," Maddox noted. "Student activities are supported through the services fee. We prefer addition of another building use fee to prevent loss of support for student programs and activities."

The A&M System Board of Directors has approved the levying of a building use fee for the renovated stadium.

Student services provided by the $30 per fall and spring semester fee include hospital and medical service, student aid, athletic event admissions, intramural program, Town Hall, Great Issues, MSC facilities, student programs, summer MSC and Grove Theater activities and publications including the Battalion, Aggiland and college magazines.

Registration costs presently include a $16 per semester building use fee for MSC expansion, Coliseum air conditioning, the library and Guion Hall renovation or replacement.

Library Move Begins Monday

The Texas A&M library will begin moving into its new building Monday, announced Dr. James P. Dyke.

The Cushing Library director said the change to new quarters will be made by sections so that the regular library schedule can be observed.

"Curtailed use of certain parts of the collections will be necessary at various times," he pointed out.

A four-story airconditioned structure with shelf capacity of one million volumes, the new, $3.8 million library adjoins the present building and incorporates the previous Texas Engineers Library.

Largest building on the campus, the library contains about four acres of floor space. It will provide open stacks, lounge and study areas and study carrels.

Dyke said collections now in the Cushing building plus the engineer, business and chemistry libraries and materials in storage on the campus and at the Research Annex will be moved into the buildings.

More than 500,000 volumes plus certain furnishings will be moved. Automated checkout equipment will eventually be transferred and internal changes in all but one level of the book stacks will be made, the director added.

"The entire building will not be open for several weeks," Dyke went on. "This depends upon how long it takes to get everything situated."

Army ROTC Camp Ends This Week

"Lean and mean" concisely describes Texas Aggies in Army ROTC training at Fort Sill, Okla., according to Col. Jim H. McCoy.

The A&M commandant, Liberal Arts Dean Frank Hubert and Prof. W. E. Eckles of the College of Business visited the encampment and talked to A&M cadets over the weekend.

Summer training at Camp Eagle near Fort Sill will conclude Friday. A&M has the largest contingent of cadets—281—among 2,300 at Sill.

Hubert and Eckles were among representatives from each institution in the Fourth Army area. They observed training and dined with A&M cadets Friday evening. "Aggies, as in past years, were making their presence known at summer camp," McCoy said. "Morale was high, spirits were high and everybody seemed to be doing fine. They are getting plenty to eat."

The colonel chatted with Aggie footballer Buster Adami of Freer who had lost some weight during the six-week camp.

"I think I'll gain it all back before practice starts in late August," commented the linebacker who made a key interception in the late stages of the A&M-Texas game last fall.

Adami, a cadet major in the corps, will be commander of Company H-1 during 1968-69.

McCoy said cadet reactions to camp centered on the value of leadership training the students are receiving.

Vet College Holds Honors Ceremony

Texas A&M's College of Veterinary Medicine will conduct its annual Honors Convocation at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Memorial Student Center, announced Veterinary Medicine Dean Alvin A. Price.

Dean Price said the program will include presentation of awards to approximately 20 students and faculty members and "diplomas" to the wives of graduating students.

The Honors Convocation is traditionally held just prior to veterinary medicine graduation, which this year is scheduled Aug. 2. The College of Veterinary Medicine conducts its graduation separately from other divisions of the university because it operates on a trimester basis.

Kirby J. Warren of Fort Worth, candidate for the Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree this year, will serve as master of ceremonies for the Friday evening program.

Douglas Matthews of Waco, also a candidate for graduation, will conduct the invocation. Dean Price will handle the welcome and introductions.

Editorial

Long lines and short tempers make registration one of the most anticipated events of the school year. From standing in line to pick up the card packets to standing in line to hand in the card packets, the expressions in the crowd reflect much.

If all goes well with the new "pre-registration" system, this pictorial essay will go down in A&M history as one of the last of its kind.

Freshmen got a taste of five-minute registration this summer as they were speeded through the new system in the basement of the Services Building.

Although final figures for the second term of summer school at A&M will not be complete until Friday, enrollment for this semester is expected to be traditionally smaller than for the first summer term.

Could the long lines have something to do with the dip in enrollment? Or is it a way of resting up for the fall semester registration?
