EDUCATION FAMILY AFFAIR

Mr. and Mrs. Ramon T. Mosley's doctoral dissertations are scrutinized by the entire family, which is studying this summer at Texas A&M University. The parents of Jerry (left) and Danny have accepted faculty positions at Western Illinois University.

Mosley Family Picks A&M To Get Higher Education

Every member of the Ramon T. Mosley family, 149 Lakeside, Bryan, is studying at Texas A&M.

Ray Mosley, his wife Frances and their two sons, Jerry and Danny, are working toward degrees.

Aim of each is to attain the title of Dr.

Ray and Frances are closest. Married 26 years, both have completed Ph.D. course work and are researching and writing dissertations. They will probably graduate in January.

Daniel, 21, will be a senior this fall in pre-medical studies at Loma Linda University (formerly La Sierra) in California. Jerry, 19, studied at A&M last year but plans to join Danny in pre-med at Loma Linda.

BOTH INTEND to become medical doctors. Danny works a Bryan Hospital late shift as an orderly. Jerry assists Dr. Howard Kaye, Chemistry Department professor, in a research project and studied chemistry his freshman year at A&M.

"We're going in all directions at all times," smiled Mrs. Mosley, whose Ph.D. work is in education. She completed bachelor degree studies in Spanish at the University of the Americas in 1958 and obtained the masters in education at Sam Houston State in 1960.

A Houston native, she has 10 years teaching experience, instructs special language sessions for A&M Agency for International Development personnel and is writing her dissertation on "Changing Concepts Relative to Instruction Procedures in High School History Since 1900."

EDUCATION Department head Dr. Paul R. Hensarling rates Mrs. Mosley high in ability.

"She anticipates requirements and is always a step or more ahead of what is needed," he said.

Instructor in the Modern Languages Department since 1965, Roman Mosley, like his wife, speaks fluent Spanish. He directed a U. S. State Department grant school in Mexico. While at Mexico City, he earned bachelor and master's degrees at the University of the Americas.

The Mosleys were located in Mexico six years and Colombia two.

HE GRADUATED from Texarkana, Ark., High, spent four years in the Navy and worked in payroll-personnel for a Houston geophysical firm. Ray has taught 15 years and is writing his education, doctorate dissertation on "The Development and Application of a Scale for Measuring Attitudes toward Spanish-English Bilingualism."

He is considered uniquely qualified by Hensarling for a teaching position he will take in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Mosley will join the faculty of Western Illinois University, Macomb, for the start of the fall term and make special trips to A&M to defend their dissertations.

"If it works out, we also hope to return for January commencement," Mosley said.

Soph Receives Heroism Award

Daniel L. Merkel of Bryan, a sophomore journalism major, is attending Texas A&M on a scholarship awarded in recognition of his heroism in saving a drowning youth.

Merkel, 18, received the scholarship from the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission of Pittsburgh, Pa. The award included a Bronze Medal and $750 scholarship for his freshman year of study.

Danny's sophomore year award is for $350, announced David B. Oliver, commission manager.

Danny was fishing near the Llano River bridge in the City of Llano in mid-May, 1965, when he saw a lad struggling in the water.

Merkel, then 15, went to the 12-year-old's aid, was pulled under twice in 15-foot deep water, but finally pulled the youngster 20 feet to safety.

"He was swimming in his jeans," noted Merkel, a 1967 Llano High graduate. "He wasn't a very good swimmer and the wet clothes weighted him down."

One of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie M. Merkel, 3905 Hilltop Drive, Bryan, Danny works at the A&M Press. He was employed by newspaper publisher Harold Cunningham in the Llano News printing plant three months after saving the swimmer's life.

I. Ed. Clubs Plan Pies And Steaks

The Industrial Wives Club will host a "pie supper" Monday in Room 107 of the Mechanical Engineering Shop Building, according to Judy Devlin, reporter of the club.

The supper will start at 8 p.m. All members are invited to bring a guest, their favorite pie and five copies of the recipe on an index card.

The Iota Lambda Sigma fraternity is sponsoring a steak-fry tomorrow in Hensel Park, Jimmy Hatley, member of the Industrial Education Organization, has announced.

Games will begin at 5:30 p.m., and supper will be served at 6:30 p.m. Adults will be charged $1.25 and children 50¢.

Holcomb Selected For Dominican Post

John W. Holcomb Jr., Texas A&M agricultural education professor since 1960, has been named chief of party for university personnel in the Dominican Republic under Agency for International Development contract, announced President Earl Rudder.

Holcomb, 50, will replace Dr. Jarvis Miller at Santa Domingo. Aden McGee of agricultural economics has been acting party chief since Miller left the position last year.

Former coordinator of an A&M-Ford Foundation agricultural education project with the University of Coahuila, Saltillo, Mexico, Holcomb will coordinate and supervise an A&M staff of 25 in the Dominican Republic.

The former executive secretary of the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association of Texas also will provide personal advisory service in agricultural production and maintain liaison with sponsoring agency personnel in the Caribbean country, according to Dr. Jack D. Gray, A&M International Programs director.

The A&M office coordinates AID programs that assist institutions in several countries with technical knowhow and on-campus degree training. The Dominican Republic has 85 students studying agriculture at A&M under AID contract. They account for the largest segment of the university's summer international student enrollment.

"Holcomb is qualified technically and by experience in agricultural production," noted William E. Beach, campus coordinator of D.R. programs.

A 1940 A&M graduate, Holcomb served the Agriculture Teachers Association two years. In the A&M department, he coordinated vocational agriculture services and supervised work of about 20 personnel including 13 professionals.

The Bosque County native studied at Tarleton State and A&M for his agricultural education degree. The master of education was awarded at A&M in 1953 and Holcomb did doctoral level work in educational administration at the University of Texas.

He taught in Pioneer and Brady school districts, supervised vocational agriculture for the Texas Education Agency and Adjustment Administration. He is member of numerous professional associations.

Holcomb joins the International Programs staff July 15 and after language training will depart for the Dominican Republic in early September. He will be accompanied by his wife Lola.
