Ft. Hood Soldier Faces Army Court

The trial of a soldier charged with refusing an officer's order during a demonstration protesting possible Chicago riot duty continued Wednesday into the night hours.

Pfc. Oscar Taylor of New York City was one of 60 soldiers at this Central Texas Army post who gathered in a demonstration about midnight Aug. 23 in anticipation of being sent to Chicago during the Democratic National Convention, an Army spokesman said.

When military police officers arrived at the scene, 17 of the men dispersed. Taylor was one of 43 who remained and refused to obey an officer's order to leave the area, the Army has charged.

Military prosecutors failed to get a conviction last month in the trial of the first case. Taylor is the second to be tried. One of the 43 was not charged.

The spokesman said all of the soldiers are Negroes. Some 26 of the men reportedly are Vietnam veterans. The men are all charged with refusing the direct order of a commissioned officer. They are being tried under a special court martial — the second most serious convened by the Army.

During the protest, the men were orderly and no violence occurred, the Army spokesman said. He said they were escorted to the stockade after a prolonged discussion with military policemen at the intersection.

At the time of the protest, no order had been issued to send the men to Chicago to aid in the control of any disorders related to the convention, the spokesman said.

Texas U. Regents To Consider SWC

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—University of Texas regents are expected to authorize a study Friday that will look into the friction between the state-supported and the private schools in the Southwest Conference.

Frank C. Erwin Jr., chairman of the university regents, said Wednesday the board would consider a motion to reactivate a special regents committee for study of the university's own intercollegiate athletic program and its relationship to the Southwest Conference.

"We will discuss this matter only in relation to our own problems," Erwin said. "Any speculation as to Texas-Austin's future in the Southwest Conference is certainly premature at this time."

"Erwin's comment followed publication of a story by the Dallas Times Herald which quoted a highly-placed source on the board as saying such a study could have "upheaval results."

The Times Herald article said the study could result in revival of proposals for a "super conference" to include Texas-Austin, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, and Arkansas with Oklahoma, Louisiana State and the University of Houston. Presently, the four state-supported schools are in the Southwest Conference with four private schools—Southern Methodist, Texas Christian, Baylor and Rice.

Erwin's statement made no reference to conflict within the Southwest Conference but other sources pointed out that conference votes on many issues are split 4-4 and 5-3. These sources point out that Rice, TCU, SMU and Baylor have much smaller student bodies and smaller athletic budgets, particularly the three church schools.

The Times Herald story said football scholarships are much more costly at Rice, Baylor, SMU and TCU and these schools would like to limit scholarships. Texas-

Austin feels the limitations would make the state-supported schools less competitive on the national scene.
