LSU Picked Over Ags

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of college football's giants, Notre Dame and Oklahoma, crash into each other going around the first corner Saturday, and the question is which one will fall.

The odds-makers say it has to be Oklahoma, smaller, with less depth yet more speed. Notre Dame is ranked third nationally, Oklahoma fifth. But chances are the Fighting Irish will be looking over the head of the Sooners to the following week's game with Purdue.

So, it's Oklahoma in our first upset-special of the season: Oklahoma 20, Notre Dame 13: The Sooners had a 9-1 season and beat Tennessee in the Orange Bowl. Look for them to intercept Terry Hanratty.

Louisiana State 14, Texas A&M 10: The Aggies will test Texas for the Southwest title.

Penn State 22, Navy 14: The Nittany Lions are big, strong and plentiful, should repeat as Lambert Trophy champs.

Southern California 17, Minnesota 14: This one could have been played in the Rose Bowl last January.

Michigan State 19, Syracuse 7: The Spartans are bounding back after a frustrating year; Syracuse will miss Larry Csonka.

Clemson 28, Wake Forest 13: The Tigers have most of their defensive bullies back in uniform.

UCLA 23, Pittsburgh 7: The rebuilding program at Pitt is nearing fruition, but this is too big an opening bite.

California 20, Michigan 14: The Golden Bears pick up momentum from their good 1967 finish.

Florida 17, Air Force 7: The Gators are agog over a 220-pound line whacker named Larry Smith. Some others:

Card No-Hitter Sets Record

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ray Washburn of the St. Louis Cardinals pitched a no-hitter Wednesday, stifling the San Francisco Giants 2-0 and helped write major league history with the second masterpiece in as many days at Candlestick Park.

Gaylord Perry of the Giants had no-hit the Cardinals less than 24 hours earlier at Candlestick and it was the first time two no-hitters were pitched in one ballpark.

Washburn, a sturdily-built 30-year-old right-hander, struck out eight and allowed five runners, all of them on walks.

He was in complete control and pitched his way out of his only jam in the seventh inning by getting Jim Hart on a bouncer and striking out Dick Dietz.

Washburn, whose record is 13-7, had the Giants beating the ball into the ground. Only Hal Lanier, who fled to Lou Brock opening the sixth inning, got the ball into the outfield until the ninth.

He walked Willie Mays in the first with two out but retired Willie McCovey on a grounder.

In the second, Dietz walked and was erased on an inning-ending double play.

Then Washburn sailed through the Giants' batting order, retiring 12 straight batters until Ron Hunt walked to open the Giants' seventh.

Mays struck out but McCovey walked. Both runners advanced on Hart's ground ball and then Dietz struck out, ending the threat.

In the eighth, Dave Marshall, pinch hitting with two out, drew a walk but Bobby Bonds fouled out.

In the ninth, Washburn got Ron Hunt on a bouncer to second baseman Phil Gagliano, Mays on a grounder to third baseman Mike Shannon, and McCovey on a soft liner to Curt Flood—only the second ball hit to the outfield.

Washburn was locked in a scoreless duel with Bob Bolin until the seventh when the Cards got him the only run he needed.
