Arkansas Kickoff Set For 1:30 P.M.

By JOHN PLATZER
Battalion Sports Editor

When the Southwest Conference's highest scoring offense runs up against the circuit's top defense against scoring, something is bound to break and Coach Gene Stallings would just as soon it breaks in favor of the defense Saturday in Kyle Field.

A&M ruined Arkansas' homecoming with a 33-21 verdict last season on their way to the Cotton Bowl and the Razorbacks have begun November drives against the Aggies that resulted in championships five times since 1959.

The Aggies have allowed only 12.3 points per game as they enter the 1:30 contest while the Porkers of Coach Frank Broyles have lit up the scoreboard with 31 points per game. A&M has averaged 19 points per outing while Arkansas' defense has allowed 18.

As a rookie coach in 1958, Broyles brought an 0-6 team into College Station and left with a 21-8 victory. Since that time his teams have posted an overall 30-5 record in the month of November.

BOTH TEAMS enter the game in a "must win" situation as the defending SWC champions have posted a 2-4 season and a 1-2 conference mark and the Hogs have a 5-1 season and 2-1 SWC record.

A PAIR OF record shattering quarterbacks will duel in the contest as A&M's Edd Hargett throws against sophomore Bill Montgomery. Hargett will probably emerge from the game as the greatest passer in SWC history while Montgomery is on his way to etching his name in the University of Arkansas single season record book.

In the past the game has traditionally served as a springboard to the conference title.

A nine-yard pass will give Hargett the all-time SWC lead (See AGGIES, Page 6)

Senators Hear Reasons For 'No-Speaker' Policy

Buser Cites Laws On Use Of Funds

By TOM CURL
Battalion Staff Writer

An administrative explanation of the A&M speaker policy highlighted a marathon Student Senate meeting that lasted three and one-half hours Thursday night.

"Texas A&M University has never made a case of the fact that we are unique," he remarked. "The university believes that to become involved (in political campaigns) is an abuse of its privilege," he continued.

BUSER EMPHASIZED that the administration does not want to stifle student interests in politics. It just believes that any political activity should be conducted off campus, he added.

"You need to go where the action is. There are no votes on this campus, no voting booths here," he commented.

"I think this is a very naive viewpoint," said junior senator Al Reinert.

"I can take no pride in fostering a politically-ignorant student body," he continued.

"We're not attempting to discourage you," Buser answered.

Graduate Student Senator John Harris pointed out that a memorandum recently circulated to the faculty urging them to vote for two of the proposed amendments in next Tuesday's general election. The two amendments concern retirement programs for Texas teachers.

HARRIS ASKED Buser if this was not a violation of the appropriations bill that said state funds could not be used to influence the decision on a piece of legislation.

Buser answered that several former students had contributed money as an expression of interest in the amendments and he supposed the memorandums were paid for with the contributions.

Ron Hinds, Political Forum chairman, commented that any speakers who were presented as part of the Forum would be financed by profits from vending machines on campus.

"ALL MONIES at this university are regulated to one extent or another by state laws," replied Buser.

One Senator pointed out that U. S. Senator Ralph Yarborough had spoken at A&M Wednesday.

"The man who was here the other night (Yarborough) was not a candidate so the rule did not enter into it," answered Dean of Students J. P. Hannigan.

Senate Vice-president David Maddox said that he and other members of the Senate appeared before the Executive Committee to discuss the defeated resolution and to tell why the committee

Campus Chest Fund Drive Tops $1,400, Seeks More

By DALE FOSTER
Battalion Staff Writer

Approximately $1,400 has been collected for the Campus Chest Fund, announced John Cunningham, drive publicity chairman.

He added that the program is moving well and that collections at the Arkansas game this weekend will probably really boost the drive towards its goal of $7,500. The latest tally of contributions can be checked on the fund-drive board located between Guion Hall and the Memorial Student Center.

ABOUT $1,200 has been received at the first two home games with two games left to be played. Large barrels are placed at each gate, and donors are given a note thanking them for their interest and explaining the purpose of the drive.

Squadron 9 of the Corps of Cadets is presently leading in the second part of the drive, collection among students. The outfit has collected 83 per cent of its goal, based on $1 per member of the unit.

"As an additional effort to get more students to participate, special collection booths for civilian day students will be set up next week in the Memorial Student Center and the new library," Cunningham continued.

winning Corps unit or civilian residence hall. The nominee who receives the title will appear in

Civil Disorder Cure Cited By Lawyer Here

By TIM SEARSON
Battalion Staff Writer

Gail Whitcomb, head of the Houston Police-Community Relations Program, said here Wednesday that both police and citizenry must co-operate to prevent civil disorder.

In the second presentation of the Great Issues series "The People and the Cities," Whitcomb spoke to an audience of 100 in the assembly room of the Memorial Student Center.

Whitcomb, a prominent lawyer in the Houston area, was appointed by Mayor Welch to head the program after the rioting on the campus of Texas Southern University two years ago.

"We initiated a program that would bring the patrolmen into intimate contact with the citizens they were to protect," said Whitcomb. "Through the efforts of the commission, we brought together small groups of policemen and members of the Negro community to air all grievances."

He related how the members of the force were able to gain insights into the problems of the minority groups, while the people could realize the problems encountered by the police.

"By bringing the problems out in the open, we were able to bridge the communication gap," Whitcomb said. "In the past brutality of language was used as a weapon, but we encouraged it to give vent to the built-up pressures."

In his discussion, Whitcomb stressed the need for the citizen to want to help his community. He explained how the problems of today's urban areas related to a lack of foresight in providing for the development of the nation as a predominantly urban civilization.

"The minority groups turned to the city for jobs, housing and education, but our cities were not prepared," said Whitcomb. "It is the duty of the citizens to solve their problems through understanding and justice."

Presidential Poll To Be Conducted

The Political Forum will conduct a student presidential poll Tuesday.

The poll will be held in three places: the Academic Building, the library, and the Memorial Student Center. Activity cards must be presented to vote in the poll.

An election center will be set up in the MSC ballroom for those interested in the results of the election. Colored televisions will be hooked-up to all three networks so that students can see varying views of the election from different commentators.

The center will open at 7:30 p.m. Informal discussion of the election returns will be presented by the commentators of the Political Forum as they come in.

Coffee and doughnuts will be provided at election headquarters.

By JANIE WALLACE
Battalion Staff Writer

Starting the ball rolling for A&M's third football weekend will be the Serendipity Singers in a Town Hall performance at 8 p.m. in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Other events planned for the night are the continuation of the Aggie Players' production of "The Trojan Women" at Guion Hall, an All-Aggie Rodeo held at the Aggie arena, a free APO dance at The Grove with "The Gypsy Moth" band, and midnight yell practice at Kyle Field.

A CORPS of Cadets march-in at 12:20 p.m. Saturday will precede the A&M-Arkansas game at Kyle Field. During the game, 36 A&M students will act as "Big Brothers" to orphans from Faith Home in Houston.

Other activities include a folk musical, "Good News," at 7 p.m. in Guion Hall, followed by the "Trojan Women" at 8 p.m.

REPLACING the Four Seasons, the Serendipity Singers will present a sound that has "the harder quality and more meaningful lyrics of today's popular music."

Town Hall Chairman Louis Adams noted A&M student activity card-ID and Town Hall Series season tickets will be honored for general admission. Date and reserve seat tickets are on sale at the Student Program Office in the Memorial Student Center.

The All-Aggie Rodeo is set for Friday and Saturday with each performance to start at 8 p.m.

PRECEDING Saturday's game, Lt. Gen. Harry H. Critz, commanding general of the 4th Army, will review the Corps of Cadets graded march-in.

With the three-star general on the reviewing stand will be Army Col. Jim H. McCoy, commandant; Air Force Col. Vernon L. Head, professor of aerospace studies; and President Earl Rudder.

In the march-in, the Fish Drill Team will make its first appearance. Thirty-five fourth class cadets, representing 140 on the team, will be commanded by George Barrios of San Antonio.

Also, three companies of the Texas Maritime Academy midshipmen will participate in the march-in.

The Student Senate Welfare Committee will sponsor 36 orphans from Faith Home in Houston, so that they can attend the Arkansas game.

Climaxing a week-long Christian ethics program, "Good News," a folk musical, will feature "The Expressions" from Texas Tech.

TICKETS may be purchased at the Baptist Student Union, or at the door. Adults pay $1; students, 50 cents.

The new coffee house, "The Basement," in the Memorial Student Center provides a romantic atmosphere with blue and black lights and will feature John Roby and Paul Northcut as live entertainment. The Basement will be open 9-11:30 p.m. Friday and 7-12 p.m. Saturday.

University Dance Set After Game

The junior class will present an All-University Dance this Saturday after the Arkansas game, announced Class President John R. Gingrich.

The dance will be from 8-12 p.m. on the second floor of the Memorial Student Center. The band will be The U. S. Males, formerly known as The Coastliners, from Houston.

Tickets are $2.50 per couple and may be purchased from Rick Risinger, 433 Keathley (dorm 16), Ron Smith, dorm 5, room 407, or any junior council member. They may also be obtained at the door.

Rain Showers For Kickoff

Rain showers hover in Texas A&M's football weekend weather picture, according to a revised forecast from the Meteorology Department weather station.

The possibility of scattered, intermittent rain showers Friday, Saturday morning and Saturday afternoon is the result of a new development in a Pacific cool front.

Jim Lightfoot, station meteorologist, said the front is on schedule but slowing down and may not push through College Station and Bryan until late Saturday or early Sunday.

Rain showers associated with its passage could develop into thunderstorms later Saturday, he indicated.

A&M and Arkansas meet at Kyle Field in a 1:30 p.m. contest Saturday.

Game-time conditions under the revised forecast include mostly cloudy skies, scattered rain showers, winds southeast 5 to 10 mph, a temperature of 78 degrees and 70 per cent relative humidity, Lightfoot predicted.
