

Gibbons Advocates

By MIKE WRIGHT
Battalion City Editor
Dr. William Gibbons, Political Science Department head, told the YMCA Apollo Club Thursday evening that the maturation of the mind is more important than the maturation of the social life.

With "The Role and Right of the College Student" as his topic, Gibbons said the average student is more apt to try to live in the modern society than to prepare for his life's work.
"The role of a student in college is to be a student. He should only develop the civil attitudes as it relates to his studies," commented Gibbons.
"He has the rest of his life to be a citizen, but only a short time to study; however, students are not doing this," he continued.
The student also has the role of the university citizen in a university community. In this community, he should be advocating more changes in the administration that will aid his university community, he said.
"The right of a student to have a word in a department's curriculum should be delegated. With members of the faculty, and administration, the student would be able to express his views on courses to be required. They should also have something to say about the grading of the faculty," he stressed.
"The present system of evaluation is inadequate. The faculty should be graded and their promotions and pay scale should depend on their ranking. Each professor would be graded individually and the results made public. This has been done at other colleges and universities with very favorable results," Gibbons declared.
He added that the right for the student to demand new courses in departments and new school programs to aid the minority groups should be exercised.
"The student body should also have the right to demand and request action for a co-educational university," he said.

"The nature of a university administration is to be conservative and they will remain conservative until they are pushed. However, the student should be sure of why he is pushing before he criticizes the establishment," Gibbons said.
"The student government should be the spokesman for the student body. They will accomplish this by seizing more authority and assuming the role of taking stands on controversial items. They need to let the students know they are behind them," he stressed.

tee had taken this "no speaker" position.

"I HAD never heard of that law until Mr. Buser brought it up tonight," Maddox said.

"The decision was based on politics associated with appropriations," he asserted. "They (the Executive Committee) felt this might alienate the legislators and result in repercussions in our appropriations."

"We can't say that our present position is because of our ban on political speakers; but in the ten years President Rudder has been here, we've moved forward," Buser commented.

"WE WERE called in to give our views; and, in my opinion, we were treated fairly," said President Bill Carter about the meeting with the Executive Committee.

Another big issue of the meeting was the problem of football seating for graduate students.

Senator Tony Benedetto proposed a "consideration section" at the south end of the east upper deck for graduate students who wished to sit, pregnant wives of Aggies and injured students who could not stand for the whole game.

"I think that as exciting as our games get, we shouldn't take a chance on having the first baby born in Kyle Field," Martin said.

THE MATTER was referred to a committee consisting of Phil Callahan, Head Yell Leader Bill Youngkin and a member of the Graduate Student Council. They will determine a division line in the upper deck and give sections only south of that line to the people who do not want to stand.

A motion was passed allowing President Bill Carter to decide a method of selection for the A&M entry into a national contest to decide a College Centennial Football Sweetheart.

A suggestion by one Senator to enter the name of Annella Wright, the Aggie Sweetheart, prompted a remark from Senator Norman Jenkins.

"What we are in effect saying is that women (here at A&M) are just things walking around the campus," he commented.

A later meeting of the Student Senate will discuss proposed changes in campus election regulations.

After you've met the challenge?

If you're the kind of Civil Engineer we're looking for, you'll start searching for another one to conquer. Here at the Pennsylvania Department of Highways, we offer a host of challenges to the right man. But, to be that right man, you've got to be pretty special.

You see, we search out and encourage Civil Engineers whom we consider capable of grasping a challenge; skilled men, comparable to the great Engineers who are "building Tomorrow today in Pennsylvania." If you can measure up to the standards necessary to fulfill Pennsylvania's $10 billion plan to lead the nation in highways, we'd consider it a challenge just to get to know you.

A Pennsylvania Department of Highways Career Representative will visit your campus. To arrange for an appointment, or if you desire additional information, contact the placement office.
