Student Boycott Thwarted By TU

AUSTIN (AP) — Two days before a planned student boycott,

University of Texas President Norman Hackerman announced plans Monday to improve food service in the Texas Union and elsewhere on the campus.

The plans were based on recommendations of a student-faculty committee appointed by Hackerman last month. These included improved ventilation in the Chuck Wagon, a project estimated to cost $50,000.

Regent Chairman Frank Erwin told other regents, "the hippies have taken over the Chuck Wagon. They smoke pot down there. It's a terrible situation."

The committee said, "It is apparent that the major complaints registered against the food in the union are not motivated by the quality of food served but stem from the physical appearance and environment of the Chuck Wagon and Commons."

Architects Display Paintings In MSC

Paintings of School of Architecture artists will be on display through Wednesday in the Memorial Student Center.

Contemporary Arts chairman Tommy Ellis of La Porte said the 27 paintings include works of Joseph Donaldson Jr., John Fairey and Graham Horsley of the architecture faculty.

The exhibit includes abstracts through realistics in oil, acrylic, pencil, water color, pen-in-ink and Duboss prints. All three artists have traveled extensively and hold fine arts degrees.

Donaldson is artist in residence of the School of Architecture. Fairey and Horsley are assistant professors.

Nixon Plot Reviewed

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn grand jury was scheduled to hear evidence Tuesday against three Yamen Arabs accused of plotting to assassinate President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

The three men — a father and his two sons — also were slated to appear in Criminal Court for a hearing on charges of conspiring to commit murder, criminal solicitation and possession of deadly weapons.

One of the first witnesses to appear before the grand jury would be the 36-year-old man with an Arabic name who told police of the alleged plot.

THE INFORMANT, whose name has not been disclosed, remained in protective custody, to be escorted to and from the grand jury room by armed guards.

Detectives and Secret Service agents, some with a knowledge of Arabic, interviewed residents of Brooklyn's "Casbah," in the Cobble Hill section, for more information on the three suspects — Ahmed Rageh Namer, 43, and his sons, Hussein, 20, and Abdo, 19.

Meanwhile Los Angeles police said they had not been contacted by federal or New York authorities investigating a possible connection between the suspects and Sirhan B. Sirhan, a Jordanian charged in the slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. The FBI and Secret Service there would neither confirm nor deny the possibility of such an investigation.

The president-elect, who has an apartment in New York, was met by a heavy security force when he arrived in the city Monday night.

APARTMENTS

the third apartment manager in the College View area. "Most think that the university is doing the best it can to satisfy everyone."

STUDENTS WITH telephones have a special concern. "They are wondering if they will have to pay a transfer charge when their phones are moved," said Boudreaux. "They feel that since they must move, the university should pay the charge, if any."

"We hadn't recognized it as a requirement," said Vestal. "I don't know what will be done. It's one of those things that will have to be worked out."

"We do not require people to have phones. It is a private arrangement between them and the phone company. The phones are not pertinent to the situation," he added.

Vestal also noted that the project represents an expansion of plans announced last summer for construction of four new units. Eventually, all new units will be constructed.

Leabo And Bowers Get Appointments From Journalists

Two A&M professors have received appointments from national journalism organizations.

C.J. Leabo, Journalism Department head, has been named to the editorial board of the Journalism Educator, quarterly publication of the American Society of Journalism School Administrators.

Dr. David R. Bowers, professor, has been appointed chairman of the auditing committee of the Association for Education in Journalism.

Now Available The All-New Texas A&M University Directory

More than 15,000 student, faculty and staff listings (including home addresses, classifications, majors, titles, etc.)

- University Calendar
- Campus Map
- Student Senate Listings

(Note: The University Directory is more valuable than ever this year. With the addition of the new Centrex Telephone System, almost all students now have telephones in their dormitory rooms. Also, all administrative numbers changed when the new system was introduced. The temporary directory is now obsolete.)
