

Apollo Commander Cancels Astronauts' Space Walk

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A space walk planned for Thursday was canceled after Apollo 9 astronaut Russell L. Schweickart said he was "not feeling up to par" as the result of two sieges of vomiting earlier.

Public Affairs officer Paul Haney said the Apollo 9 commander, Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt, made the decision that the "exterior portion" of the planned extravehicular activity would be taken out of the flight plan.

Haney said McDivitt did plan, however, to depressurize the lunar module and the command module and open the hatches of both crafts. Schweickart also will don the portable life support system he was to have worn during his space walk.

Haney said the change in plans would not affect the scheduled television transmission from space.

The public affairs officer said during the private conversation, which was withheld from newsmen, Schweickart said he had not been nauseated since two sieges of vomiting struck him in the morning.

Space officials earlier announced that Schweickart had vomited once before starting a transfer from the command module to the lunar module and once after he was inside.

The extravehicular activity plans called for Schweickart to open the hatch of the lunar module and leap out into space, wearing the space suit Americans will wear when they land on the moon.

He was then to go hand-over-hand down handrails to command module and stand up in an open hatch of the mother-ship. This was to demonstrate the astronaut's ability to transfer from the lunar module to the command module should the tunnel connecting the two become blocked.

Despite his sickness, Schweickart was able to move from the command module to the linked-up lunar module, becoming the first American astronaut to transfer in space from one spacecraft to another.

McDivitt followed the space rookie into the lunar module 30 minutes later and the pair gave the moon machine its first manned space workout.

Schweickart and McDivitt spent seven hours aboard the lunar module before they floated back through the three-foot-long tunnel back into the command module.

Air Force Col. David A. Scott, the third crewman, remained at his station aboard the command module, acting as gatekeeper by removing the hardware that blocked the tunnel as his crewmates made their transfers.

Three hours after Schweickart and McDivitt returned to the command module, Scott fired up the rocket engine on the command and service engine, attempting to circularize Apollo 9's orbit. The burn, however, left the spacecraft in an orbit of 148 by 142 miles.

McDivitt earlier burned the descent engine on the lunar module.

While McDivitt and Schweickart were in the lunar module they turned on a television camera, giving earth its first inflight look at the cramped cabin Americans will fly to the lunar surface this summer. The television transmission lasted only seven minutes and voice communications went bad during that time.

During the descent engine burn, both Scott and McDivitt reported seeing pieces of the outer skin of the lunar module peel away into space.

Scott later said the pieces were only inches in size and officials said they were apparently part of the craft's thermal blanket and the loss posed no problems to the crew or the mission.

The Apollo 9 astronauts are testing a life-size version of the lunar module shown above, nicknamed "the Spider". In a later mission, the module will carry two astronauts to the moon's surface. The lower portion of the module will remain there and the upper stage will carry the astronauts back to their orbiting command module. (AP Wirephoto)

BSU To Hold Annual Meeting At Camp Lakeview

The annual Baptist Student Union's International Student Conference will be held during spring recess April 4-6 at Camp Lakeview near Palestine.

BSU Director Bob Burch said several hundred international students across the state attend the yearly event. He added 28 A&M international students have already registered.

Burch said the retreat gives international students "a place to go during the holidays and an opportunity to meet other international students attending various state colleges and universities."

"WE'RE NOT out to convert anyone to being a Baptist, rather we use this time to help international students get an understanding of what the Christian message is," said Burch. "It's an emphasis on hearing so they can understand."

A fee of $1.50 per person will be charged for the first 50 students applying. Others must pay the regular $9.50 fee. The fee covers all expenses for the three-day retreat.

International students desiring additional information are requested to contact the Baptist Student Center at 201 North Main, College Station.

'59 Grad Finishes Research School

Air Force Capt. Frederic H. Dietz of Houston, a 1959 Texas A&M graduate, has graduated from the exclusive Edwards AFB school that prepares potential astronauts, project managers, test pilots and aeronautical program consultants.

Dietz was reassigned to Tyndall AFB, Fla., on completion of the U. S. Air Force Aerospace Research Pilot School in California.

Dietz, who has served in Vietnam, studied aerospace engineering here for bachelor and master's degrees. He was in Squadron 15 in the Corps.

Electors Pick Heinemann As German Chief

BERLIN (AP)—Justice Minister Gustav Heinemann, a parliamentarian Social Democrat, was elected Wednesday in a West Berlin election hotly contested both by the electors and by Communist East Germans who ring the city.

The West Germans succeeded in ousting Communist pressure against the electoral demonstration of their presence and the former German capital. It was the fourth such election since 1954 in West Berlin, where the Communists contend is a separate and independent entity.

WITH RUSSIAN backing, German troops blockaded roads in and out of West Berlin for four hours while 1,023 members of the Bonn Republic's Federal Assembly wrestled with a ballot box with the problem who was to succeed President Heinrich Lübke July 1.

Heinemann, 60, defeated defense Minister Gerhard Schröder, a Christian Democrat, 512-504 the third and decisive vote of the assembled federal and state legislators, who represent "Who's Who in West Germany politics."

The Federal Assembly had members, but illness and other reasons prevented a handful of flying into Berlin for the occasion.

All West German lawmakers had been barred by East German surface routes. Those who did make the trip uneventfully allied planes through the Soviet Union, which shares duties with the United States, Britain and France at the Berlin Air Safety Council disavowed responsibility for safety of the planes.

HEINEMANN IS the first Social Democrat to win West Germany's presidency, its highest though largely ceremonial office. He is a silver-haired, friendly, independent lawyer who opposed West Germany's rearmament after World War II and in 1948 formed a Society for Peace and pacifist views. He has advocated reunification of Germany as a country independent of both East and the West.

Festivities Planned For Pan-Am Week

The program for Pan-American Week observance here is being organized by Dr. Gisela Mahoney, coordinator for the April 14 activities.

Dr. Mahoney of the Chemistry Department is meeting with student and community leaders to formalize various events.

Students from several Latin American countries plan artistic, cultural and athletic events for the annual celebration.

The traditional Latin-American Smorgasbord is set Friday evening, April 18. Wives of students and faculty members from Latin American countries will prepare specialty dishes from their respective countries. Miss Sarah Hatfield coordinates food preparation by local social groups.

The "hilarious donkey parade" will feature the athletic bill. The week climaxes with a spotlighting Latin-American entertainment in the Ramada on Saturday night. The public is urged to attend.
