The crowning feature of a woman's loveliness, say members of India's Toda tribe, is the hair on her face. The more facial hair, the more attractive the woman by their beauty standards, reports National Geographic.

CRAWFORD MARTIN

Educators To Hear Attorney General

Texas Attorney General Crawford Martin will present the capstone challenge to state educators in conference here June 9-11. School administrators and supervisors will be issued challenges by Martin; the nation's highest ranking Negro woman in education, Mrs. Elizabeth Koontz, and the 16,000-member American Association of School Administrators president, Dr. Arnold W.

Salisbury. The attorney general, re-elected last year by an overwhelming margin to his second term, will address 700 conference participants on the educator's role in crime prevention.

Crawford's public record includes initiation of the Crime Prevention Division during his first term as attorney general. Mrs. Koontz, Women's Bureau director of the federal Department of Labor, will discuss "The Challenge and the Chance" as the conference keynote speaker. Salisbury's address, "Quality—The Imperative of Education," will be the second general assembly presentation of the three-day conference.

60 Per Cent Of Ag Graduates Eligible For Advanced Studies

The quality of the spring graduating class in the College of Agriculture is reflected in the fact that 60 percent are eligible for advanced studies.

Dr. R. C. Potts, associate dean of agriculture, said that about 200 were graduated Saturday. About 380 students will have been graduated by the end of the current academic year.

Of that 60 percent of the spring class, nine students have a minimum of a 2.25 grade point ratio on a three point system, another nine have a minimum of 2.50, and two have a GPR range from 2.75 to a perfect 3.00.

Those two are Lynn Ray Irby of Irving, a wildlife science major, and Jim Cheek of Corpus Christi, majoring in agricultural education.

"All this indicates that A&M's agricultural students are more dedicated to academics, they are more motivated, serious, and come here for an education," Potts pointed out. "It also means that we are more selective in accepting students into the College of Agriculture."

The dean said he has noted more demand for graduates in the spring class than at anytime during the 33 years he has been at Texas A&M. And they are accepting jobs at the best salaries on record.

He added that three girls were graduated in the spring class. They were Linda Dugger of Waco, a food technology major; Diane Ruedrich of Marion, majoring in floriculture; and Judy Ober of Maryland, an animal science major.

Police Educator Illustrates State's Accident Losses

An A&M police educator, citing Texas Department of Public Safety statistics, offered a vivid picture of the state's increasing traffic accident losses.

Ira E. Scott described the playing area of a football field as measuring 300 feet by 160 feet and U. S. currency measuring two and five-eighths by six and one-eighth inches.

"If a football field was completely covered with one dollar bills, then with individual layers of $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500 and finally, $1,000 bills," said Scott, "and then dump 1,961 tons of silver dollars on top, it would represent the economic loss we suffered in Texas in 1967."

Scott, chief of A&M's police training division, said Texas' estimated loss two years ago was $793,094,000.

Continuing the picture, Scott pointed out the loss would provide 10,000 Texas households with new homes at $20,000 each, and supply them with refrigerators at $400; electric ranges at $350; TV sets at $350; dishwashers at $300; an automobile at $3,000 and central air conditioning units at $1,400 each, and still furnish the head of each household with a bank account of $53,509.

Scott said the DPS annually compares the loss figures in terms understandable by the general public.

Survey Course 307 Added To Statistics

Addition of a new course on sample survey methodology to Texas A&M's statistics curriculum, pending approval, has been announced by Dr. H. O. Hartley. The course, Statistics 307, was originated in response to requests by Business and Agriculture Colleges for management and agricultural economics majors.

Hartley, Institute of Statistics director who will teach the three semester hour course, said some engineering majors also are expected to take the course.

It will cover concepts of population and sample, sample survey organization, coverage content errors, questionnaire design, basic survey designs and computation of estimates and variances.
