Texas A&M's John W. Hill will call the 16th National Conference on Campus Safety to order Monday when representatives across the nation meet here.

Hill, insurance and safety director, is this year's host chairman. The meeting will start at 8:30 a.m.

The June 16-18 conference will be held in A&M's Memorial Student Center.

Frank Kilpatrick, Department of Preventative Medicine and Environmental Health, University of Iowa, will open the morning session. His topic is entitled, "Environmental Health and Safety on the College Campus."

"Student Safety as Viewed by a Student," will be discussed during the afternoon by Larry Gravis, an A&M senior. Gravis has been active in several A&M safety programs.

Tuesday's program highlights "Fire Protection on the College Campus" and "Radiological Safety on the College Campus."

The fire protection program will be offered by Eugene J. Dyrek, Division of Safety and Security, Cornell. The second program will be presented by Dr. Richard D. Neff, A&M radiological safety director and associate professor.

A third Tuesday speaker will be Dr. Vance E. Moyer, head of A&M's meteorology department. His topic is "Tornado Forecasting by Radar as Related to the University Campus."

Moyer's session includes a field trip to the Tornado Forecasting Radar Laboratory in Goodwin Hall.

Concluding the three-day program will be A&M Engineering Dean Fred J. Benson and Dr. Lowell B. Fisher, University of Illinois.

Benson will discuss safety as it relates to the university from an administrator's point of view.

Fisher, chairman of the National Safety Council's school and college division, will offer the NSC's view. Fisher is university coordinator of school and college relations for the three campuses of the University of Illinois.

Hill said the conference will close with a review and critique of this year's program and plans for the 17th conference.

Directors, Rudder Tour Facilities

The Texas A&M University System Board of Directors, accompanied by A&M President Earl Rudder and other university officials, made a three-day flying inspection tour of facilities in Southwest Texas.

Stops on the whirlwind trip last week included A&M's Stiles Farm near Thrall, the Texas A&M Adjunct at Junction, San Angelo, Crystal City, Weslaco and the King Ranch.

The Stiles Farm is a large demonstration installation operated by the Agricultural Experiment Station. The Texas A&M Adjunct is a camp-type summer school conducted primarily for entering freshmen.

At San Angelo, board members inspected the proposed site for a new agricultural research and extension center and met with civil leaders.

The Crystal City visit included a tour of the Rio Grande Plains Research-Demonstration Station. The Weslaco stop was highlighted by a visit to the Agricultural Research and Extension Center.

Final stop was the King Ranch, which cooperates with Texas A&M in several beef cattle research projects.

Plotts Completes Program, Receives NACS Certificate

Peter Plotts, manager of the Book Department at Texas A&M's Exchange Store, has been awarded a certificate following completion of a management seminar sponsored by the National Association of College Stores, Inc.

The three-year course — one week of studies annually — is held at Stanford University in California.

Plotts received his certificate from A&M President of Business Affairs Tom D. Cherry.

The National Association of College Stores is the national trade association for university-owned stores.

"We are proud you made this accomplishment," Cherry told Plotts. Also taking part in the awards ceremony were Chuck Cargill, Exchange Store manager, and Howard L. Vestal, director of management services.

Vet Med Marker Dedicated Today

Texas A&M officials were to dedicate the College of Veterinary Medicine's new facilities' marker today in a memorial to one of the institution's first graduates.

The brief 3:15 p. m. service in front of the $4.2 million veterinary medicine complex was to honor the late Dr. R. R. Childers of Jasper.

The roadside marker was recently placed in front of the college's facilities by Mrs. Childers. She will attend and Dr. A. A. Price, dean, will speak at the service.

Born in 1895 in the Peach Tree Community near Jasper, Dr. Childers completed eight grades of secondary school education between 1902 and 1914. He attended school about six months of the year while working the other months.

He arrived at A&M with less than enough money for return trip home. At the close of the first day on campus, he had registered for school, found a place to live and had secured a job.

When the College of Veterinary Medicine opened in 1916, Dr. Childers, along with 12 other students, registered for the new curriculum, never before available in Texas.

He interrupted his studies in 1918 to join the Army. He returned to A&M following the war and was graduated with the DVM degree in 1921.

He then returned to Jasper where he pioneered the practice of veterinary medicine. His health failed within four years and the next 18 years was spent regaining his health.

Childers reopened his Jasper office in 1943 after rejection for World War II service.

The next 24 years was dedicated to his profession. Honored as the Outstanding Practitioner of Texas in 1955, Dr. Childers was an active member of local, state and national professional societies.
