

KAMU-TV Debuts Monday

universities and consumer organizations.
Tuesday at 9 p.m. is "NET Journal," also in color. This weekly series will search out pressing issues, domestic and foreign, as subjects for documentaries, debates, discussions, dramatizations and conversations.
In addition to network news will be local informative programming.
"The thing missing," Godwin said, "is strong emphasis on local events, which we will do our best to cover."

Other local color programs are "This Week," every Friday night at 8:30, and "Viewpoint," every Tuesday night at 8:30.
"This Week" is a program oriented toward activities of general interest. The first will be on the Texas International Speedway, and the "remote" production done by the KAMU-TV crew during the last race.
"Viewpoint" is oriented toward local issues and discussion of topics of public information. The first program will be a discussion of what went on behind the scenes in order for KAMU-TV to begin broadcasting. The viewer will learn the technical problems that had to be overcome, as well as what goes into preparations for a live television program.
The next "Viewpoint" program will discuss the Brazos County Community Council as a new means of community development.
Special productions will also be a part of KAMU programming. There is room in the schedule to permit use of prime television time to cover public affairs and current events.
KAMU-TV also has several children's programs scheduled for regular viewing.

Following "Misterog's Neighborhood" each day will be the well known "Sesame Street" series. Topics such as family roles, letters, numbers, the difference between "before" and "after," a filmed visit with a giraffe, counting and a demonstration of how a magnifying glass works are all regular parts of this educational and entertaining program for children.
"What's New," though initially scheduled as a children's program, has also become increasingly popular with people of all ages. Shown daily at 7 p.m., "What's New" will visit with Margie King, who demonstrates her hobby, witchcraft; take a trip to historic New Salem, Illinois, where Abe Lincoln grew up; and visit with Dan Posin, who will discuss various space themes, such as the moon and Mars.
"Kukla, Fran and Ollie" will be revived for four weeks on Monday nights at 8:30 for children and adults of all ages.
Programs of the performing arts, such as "NET Playhouse," "The Toy That Grew Up," "The Creative Person," "NET Jazz," "NET Festival," "The Show," and "Forsythe Saga" will be featured regularly on KAMU-TV.
"NET Playhouse," now in its fourth season of production, will be shown every Wednesday night at 7:30. Dramas to be shown include the works of American, British and Canadian playwrights, with the show producers constantly looking for new talent.
"NET Festival" is the home for all non-drama performance programs and generally for documentary and informational programs in the arts. Featured will be materials dealing with creative artists both of the past and present, performing groups in all areas of theater, masterworks of all periods, and unusual film studies of places, people and events.
"The Toy That Grew Up" will be shown each Wednesday night at 9:00 and is devoted to showing films of the past.
"The Show," a program for the teen and young adult set, can be seen every Thursday night on Channel 15 at 10:00. Guests usually include popular groups, entertainers and writers.
Afternoon programs on KAMU-TV will be mainly instructional, as will some evening programs.
The purpose behind afternoon programming is to offer educational aids for both teachers and students in the secondary school and college level.

Some afternoon programs will be designed to provide a review for A&M students who are taking courses which use closed-circuit TV.
Other afternoon programs are meant to provide enrichment of normal studies in the public school classroom. In many cases, teachers will be able to use a program to illustrate different aspects of a subject. One such example will be the "What's New" program, "Where Lincoln Grew Up." This feature will be shown twice daily in the afternoon so that teachers can use it in their classes.
At 7:30 on Tuesday evenings, "Folk Guitar" will be shown, featuring Laura Weber, who has 22 years experience as a guitar instructor. The show will be repeated at 4:30 p.m. on Thursdays for those who were unable to see the Tuesday show.
Study guides are available and necessary to any viewer who wishes to get full value from the series.
Another interesting and informative program is "Spectrum," television's only weekly science program. Each Monday night at 8:00 "Spectrum" explores the familiar and the esoteric in the worlds of the natural, physical and social sciences.
Channel 15 (channel 12 on the cable) will go on the air Sunday night at 8:30 and begin regular programming at 2 p.m. Monday.
