At Washington-on-the-Brazos Museum Site
Smith Calls for 'Dedicated Spirit'

By Pam Troby
WASHINGTON - ON - THE - BRAZOS — Calling for a "spirit of dedication" to guide Texas in facing the problems of tomorrow, Governor Preston Smith dedicated a new museum in this historic state park Sunday afternoon.
The Fightin' Texas Aggie Band escorted Gov. Smith and his wife, other dignitaries and thousands of Texans into the park.
Housing a collection of items from the Texas Republic era, the star-shaped museum commemorates the signing of the Texas Declaration of Independence 134 years ago.
Gov Smith used the occasion to ask that another Declaration be written, "this time for human existence."

"Texas must do on a large scale just what has been done here," he said. "We must restore, preserve and protect the spirit and quality of Texas life that began just a few steps away."
"To restore this polluted land to some semblance of livability will require the same attributes of courage and initiative and dedication that inspired the men of 1836," he said. "It is to the principles that made them great that we must dedicate our hearts and our energies."
"If we fail, we fail them. If we fail, we fail ourselves. And if we fail, we doom our descendants to a steady degenerating existence," Gov. Smith said.

George Butler, president of the Washington-on-the-Brazos Association, presided over the ceremonies. He praised Gov. Smith and Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher, for their role in getting $800,000 in state funds for the project.
An additional $400,000 was raised by the Association and the Barrington Society.
Mrs. Mary Moody Northen of Galveston presented Mutscher with a plaque citing him for his "untiring work, wise leadership, and sincere understanding of the heritage of the birthplace of Texas."

Other top state officials attending included Crawford Martin, attorney general; Jesse James, state treasurer; John C. White, commissioner of agriculture; Martin Dies Jr., secretary of state; and Texas Supreme Court Justices Joe Greenhill, Robert Hamilton, Jack Pope and Clyde Smith.
Also attending were State Senators Bill Moore and Patman and 24 members of the Texas House of Representatives.
The Aggie Band presented a brief concert at the museum before Speaker Mutscher cut the ribbon to open it to the public.
"History is the greatest guideline for the future," Mutscher said. "The lessons of history stress objectivity in thinking and rationale."
Independence Hall and the Anson Jones home have been restored and the park auditorium was also remodeled.

Doctor to Discuss Tension, Anxiety

Dr. Ann Hughes will speak Saturday in the A&M Consolidated High School Auditorium on "How to Handle Tension, Frustration, and Anxiety."
Dr. Hughes's lecture is part of College Station's First Annual Community Institute on Mental Health. The one-day institute is being sponsored by the Brazos County Counseling Service.
Dr. Hughes is a graduate of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School. After interning at Baylor Medical Center, she completed her residency in general psychiatry at Timberlawn Psychiatric Center in Dallas and her residency in child psychiatry at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.
She was appointed to the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology in 1966.
Following Dr. Hughes' lecture, small discussion groups will be formed around the following topics: "How to Give Direction to Your Children Without Robbing Them of Freedom of Expression;" "How to Cope with Inner Turmoil;" and "How Much Can the Human Mind and Body Take?"; relating to drug and alcohol abuse.

Dr. John Prescott, Dean of the College of Science, Dr. Arthur Roach, head of the Department of Educational Psychology, Dr. Bardin Nelson, professor of sociology, and Dr. Walter Varvel, professor of psychology, will lead the discussion groups.
Morning discussions, to be led by local physicians, attorneys, educators, and ministers, will include the topics: "The Doctor Looks at Emotional Problems," "How the Law Protects the Rights of Individuals," "Good Mental Health in the Schools," and "The Minister as a Counselor."
Registration for the institute is open to the public. The $3 registration fee, which includes luncheon, may be mailed to the Brazos County Counseling Service, 412 Varisco Building, Bryan.

Players to Perform

so he makes arrangements to visit the president of the United States and teach him the formula for living in peace.
Does he succeed?
The boy and girl ants are played by Jim Collins and Lucy Egg. The male worker and female worker are played by Paul Peterson and Barbara Beals. The brown ant-diplomat-spy is played by Alec Horn.

Robert Wenck directs the Aggie Player production, Travis Miller is the assistant director and James Dennis the stage manager.
