Kyle Field No Home For Grasshoppers

Historic Kyle Field thought it had seen the last of the heavy equipment for awhile after the expansion project a year ago. But the machines are coming back. This time when they leave, the A&M stadium will be wearing a bright green mantle of AstroTurf...

Sometime around the first of May—a definite date hinges on spring football and track activity—the installation will begin. Monsanto officials estimate 90 days from start to finish. The first phase is handled by A&M and its systems contractor, J. O. Adams. Adams will arrange for laying of the base. The base is similar to asphalt pavement on a highway. The current Kyle Field—and practice field—playing surface will be excavated to allow laying of crushed stone covered with asphalt...

The AstroTurf on Kyle Field will contain 45 ounces of nylon fiber per square yard as compared with the 32 ounces per square yard of the turf in the Astrodome. Installation of the AstroTurf will take 25 working days, according to Monsanto officials. When the installation is completed, Kyle Field will be two feet lower than its current height, which will aid the vision of fans who are seated in lower rows. The field will have a crown of 14-18 inches to allow for drainage and a drainage system will be incorporated around the field as the base is laid. Monsanto guarantees the surface for five years, but early indications from other surfaces that have been in use for at least a year imply that the turf may last a great deal longer, in fact, may be nearly indestructible. Durability is but one of the many advantages of the synthetic surface. No. 1 in the mind of Gene Stallings, A&M Athletic Director and Head Football Coach, is the safety factor. A survey conducted by Monsanto showed that serious knee and ankle injuries are reduced by 80 per cent on AstroTurf. This is due to the fact that those injuries are most frequently caused when a player's cleats catch in the ground while his leg may be twisted due to a block or a tackle. It is impossible for cleats to catch on AstroTurf. The injury factor is also apparent in the all-weather nature of the turf. More injuries occur due to treacherous footing—particularly pulled muscles—while the footing on AstroTurf is excellent even under adverse weather conditions. Being guaranteed a suitable playing surface despite weather conditions has other benefits. There will be fewer missed practice sessions, less reasons to protect the field from use to save it for the game, no reason to keep a band from performing at halftime. And, when you have a band like the Fightin' Texas Aggie Band, that's a big, big plus.

Players and fans will get more enjoyment from not having mud battles. Other advantages include less upkeep, more attractive appearance, and tremendous utility. Texas A&M plans to use the surface for many things in addition to intercollegiate athletics. The Health and Physical Education Dept. will use the surface for instruction, recreation and research. The field will be used for such activities as intramurals, Corps of Cadets drills, and Aggie band practice. The practice field will be marked for soccer and speedball as well as football. The faculty physical fitness program will also use the facilities. Track Coach Charlie Thomas is excited about the Tartan track because of the speed factor. Times have been much faster on the artificial surface. A&M's Curtis Mills set a world record of 44.7 in the 440-yard dash on a Tartan track in Knoxville, Tenn. With the kind of athletes Thomas has on his track squad, the new track should make track buffs just as excited.

A tip of the hat is due to Roy Edwards of the Dallas Morning News Sports Department. Mr. Edwards, not usually known for his kind pen toward Texas A&M, certainly reported the last game of Mike Heitmann with vigor. Edwards writes, "The Aggies started with a slight edge. The introduction of the starting lineups was interrupted by A&M's head cheerleader, Sam Torn, who read a citation recognizing captain Mike Heitmann for "the most outstanding traits of leadership in A&M's basketball history." People are usually quick to forget such stories and remember only the times when Edwards column poisoned the minds of young men about going to Texas A&M with stories of a shake up of the Aggie coaching staff, which, as you know, has come to pass. Aggies are also quick to remember the columns after the basketball incident last spring in which A&M tried to cover-up the facts instead of owning up and apologizing. One film clip showed the action of the event from one angle, while another film clip showed the action from another angle without the benefit of mixing bodies to obscure the view. So it could be that whenever Mr. Edwards takes out the poison pen, there is valid reason, or maybe we should have a few more Mike Heitmann awards. * * * * *

The Texas Aggie Leonardo Di Vinci Masterpiece Award goes to the fans of the Texas Tech Red Raiders who tried to simulate the painting from last fall in Tech's Jones Stadium. According to S. M. Meeks, Aggie equipment manager, the red and black double T appeared during the night of February 17 (the night of the Tech-A&M basketball game) in the middle of the student section on the back concrete wall. Looks like someone else could be out of the running for the coveted Southwest Conference Sportsmanship Award.

Tennis Team On S. Texas Road Trip The Texas A&M tennis team journeys to Corpus Christi this afternoon to begin a three match road trip to South Texas against three of the top teams in the nation. The University of Corpus Christi provides the opposition for the Aggies who travel to Edinburgh Saturday to play Pan American and San Antonio Monday to battle Trinity. The Aggies brought their dual match record to 3-1 Wednesday afternoon when they defeated Stephen F. Austin State University, 7-0. FOR BEST RESULTS TRY BATTALION CLASSIFIED

Could you get enthusiastic about selling the most salable product in the world? The product is ideas.

The 2600 men who sell ideas for us are excited about what they're doing. We know that because they're successful at it. And many of them are recent college graduates.

In fact, our preference is for young college graduates who get a kick out of being loners. Bull sessions aside, college students spend at least four years being loners in the world of ideas. As a member of the Moore sales team, you'd still be pretty much on your own, with responsibility that grows as you grow.

Your job would involve you with communication problems. People problems. Problems in business logistics. You'd be looking for ways to make information more intelligible to more people. To make it impossible for carelessness to destroy efficiency.
