

Briscoe to Crown 36th Cotton King

Dolph Briscoe, prominent Uvalde farmer and rancher, will crown King Cotton during the 36th annual Cotton Pageant and Ball Saturday. King Cotton is Fred Minzenmayer of Winters, a senior agronomy major. He was chosen by the Agronomy Society in recognition of his active record of service to the organization. The Rev. Ron Birk, Lutheran campus pastor will be master of ceremonies.

The pageant, which starts at 7 p.m. in the Bryan Civic Auditorium, honors cotton as the state's main cash crop. The pageant will be followed by the ball at 9 p.m. in the Memorial Student Center.

Members of King Cotton's court are Roger Blackwelder of Pilot Point, Michael Hoch of Garden City, Galen Peiser of Haskell, Steve Perrone of Bryan, Tommy Burnside of Anahuac, John Porter of Terrell, Garland Wiemers of Hondo and Billy Mayfield of Lorena.

A pageant highlight will be selection of Queen Cotton and eight members of her court from among more than 120 young ladies representing colleges, universities, clubs and other organizations.

Selections will be made by Miss Bettye Gardner, Alley Merry-Go-Round School, Houston; Mrs. Lee Chmelik, former society editor of the Bryan Daily Eagle; and Mrs. Mary Roane, television commercials and modeling, Beaumont.

HOME SWEET LABORATORY—Teams composed of scientist-aquanauts and engineers will call this four-chamber, General Electric-built habitat home for periods ranging from 14 to 30 days.

Drug Users Now Can Get Insurance

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Something of a new insurance plan has apparently sprung up in Texas where drug users "busted" by police can be assured of bail, legal counsel and courtroom representation all for a $3 monthly premium.

The plan was outlined by "Walrus, Inc." in handbills distributed at last week's rock music festival here.

"The name of the game is not to get busted," stated the two-color brochure, "however, if you should, at least you will be free on bond, represented by qualified counsel and know that you are being backed by a corporation that gives a damn."

Walrus, however, on its handbills doesn't give an address, a telephone number, a post office box number or the name of any representatives.

The brochure said a $5 membership fee and $3 monthly dues will provide the member with full services in the event of a narcotic arrest.

Police authorities said, however, that Walrus Inc., "is a new one on us."

Oceanographers to Join Undersea Research Project

University oceanographers descend into the Caribbean Sea in the Virgin Islands in late May for a 20-day underwater research period.

Participating in the most ambitious underwater research program ever attempted will be Dr. Thomas J. Bright, assistant professor of oceanography, and William W. Schroeder, oceanography graduate student of San Diego, Calif.

They will be among 62 scientist-aquanauts, engineers and doctors participating in Tektite II, a cooperative effort involving government, private industry and universities in a research program under Department of the Interior leadership.

The scientist-aquanauts will conduct undersea research from their laboratory-home on the ocean floor. During 17 missions of from two weeks to 20 days each, they will be observed via closed-circuit communications by behavioral and biomedical teams on the surface.

Observations will contribute to man's knowledge of psychological and physiological factors associated with missions performed in an isolated, hostile environment common to manned undersea and space missions.

While marine scientific, behavioral and biomedical studies are being made, new equipment and techniques will be developed and evaluated for increasing man's performance in carrying out undersea scientific missions.

The five-man Tektite II habitat will be located at 50-foot depth in Great Lameshur Bay on the south side of St. John Island in the Virgin Islands National Park.

The habitat constructed by General Electric consists of two 18-foot high steel cylinders 12½ feet in diameter. They are connected by a 4½-foot diameter tunnel and sit on a box-like structure ballasted with scrap iron to keep it submerged.

It contains living quarters for five people — including an engineer responsible for maintaining habitat systems in safe operating condition — and all necessary furniture, plumbing and other support equipment.

They will make a detailed bio-acoustical survey emphasizing daily fluctuations in the amount of biological noise. Bright and Schroeder also will attempt to identify sources of the sounds and study the importance of these acoustical stimuli to certain animals.

Other studies of the seven-month program lasting into October, 1970, will include water chemistry, behavior, life cycles and population determinations of several species, plant life, mapping and effects of man-made pollution on the coral reef.

A second habitat, located at a depth of 100 feet south of Great Lameshur Bay, will be used at various times during Tektite II.

In addition to the Department of the Interior, universities and technical institutions, Tektite II participants include the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, National Science Foundation, Virgin Islands government, Department of the Navy, Smithsonian Institution, U. S. Coast Guard and Department of Health, Education and Welfare.
