enough tax money to authorize this." Dozier also listed the need to extend sewer and water lines to areas brought within the city limits, improve the sewage treatment plant and acquire a site for a sanitary land fill as immediate problems to be solved. Anderson also listed the sewage problem as critical.

"The university doesn't want the city to use the present land fill any longer," he said, "so we have to locate a new area, employ an additional man as well as buy additional equipment to handle it."

The problem is, he added, that wherever the city wants to put it, no one wants it.

Anderson said he hoped for approval this year on the HUD Workable Plan Status for federal aid, particularly in housing.

"The requirements to fulfill this are almost unlimited," he said. "Time has been used for surveys in the needed areas, and this is only partial fulfillment. It's a matter of there not being enough hours in the day." Another major problem, Anderson said, is bottleneck and hazardous intersections. Due to the daily increasing traffic, particularly during rush hours, he said, many intersections need stop lights.

"This is not completely a problem of the city's," he said. "When the intersection at South College and University Drive was constructed from the old circle, $30,000 was set aside for stop lights. Then the Texas Highway Department informed us that the lights weren't needed."

He said he also would like to see the park include an olympic size swimming pool, possibly built with the help of federal funds. The only public pool presently in College Station, he said, is the one on campus.

Ransdell included the new park as one of three reasons for running for re-election. The other reasons he listed as the need for improving and extending the water and sewer system, and the need for new and improved streets.

"We've needed these improvements for a long time," he said, "and I'm running with the hope of getting them accomplished in the near future."

He said the city's doing everything it can to finance these improvements without going into debt.

"There are different ways of providing finances, some of which include the sale of bonds," he said, "but we don't want the city in debt beyond its financial ability."

Blood Drive To Begin Wednesday

This year's Aggie Blood Drive will be from 8-5 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the basement of the Memorial Student Center. The drive, dedicated to the memory of the late President Earl Rudder, is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity, and is administered by the Student Senate Welfare Committee.

The blood collected will be used for research in heart and blood diseases by the Wadley Foundation of Molecular Medicine in Dallas.

Any person who donates blood will be able to receive blood for himself and his immediate family free during the following year. Each donor will receive a wallet-sized card acknowledging his donation and listing his blood type. The card will allow a donor to receive any quantity needed by contacting the welfare committee.

People wishing to donate blood should wear short sleeve shirts or blouses, recommended William Cronrath, APO public relations chairman. Civilian students under 21 years of age will need a note from their parents or guardians giving permission to donate blood, he said.

Students who have not previously registered may give blood at a time convenient to them, Cronrath said. "Anyone who has signed up but can't be there at that time can donate at any other time he is free," he added.

elect is Brian Derx, senior education major. Derx has been active on the committee for the past four years.

Howard Creek will head the Recreation Committee. An industrial technology major, Creek has been on the A&M bowling team for the past two years.

Freshman sociology major Glenda Freeman is chairwoman of the Host and Fashion Committee. She has been active this year on the committee.

Basement Committee chairman-elect is Gary Reid, a junior wildlife science major. Reid worked on the committee this year, and took over the chairmanship last semester following the resignation of the former chairman.

Greg Gray will head the Camera Committee. A junior wildlife science major, Gray has served this year as committee secretary. The Chess Committee will be chaired by George W. Lockwood, sophomore physics major. Lockwood has been active on the committee this year.

Garry J. Martin, junior marketing major, will head the Travel Committee. Martin was co-chairman of Ski the Alps-70.

The Aggie Cinema's chairman-elect is Virgil E. Hargett, junior liberal arts major. Hargett has been active on the committee this year.

The council postponed action on a chairman for the Contemporary Arts Committee, referring the matter to a special committee for further study.

Council members also accepted the resignation of faculty member Gen. A. R. Luedicke, recently appointed acting president of A&M and the A&M university system.

Emmett Trant, class of '45, was appointed to the council as a former student representative, replacing Troy Wakefield, '38, whose term had expired. Trant is an architect in Bryan.
