TO ALL READERS—
How and when will Mrs. Madalyn Murray O'Hair meet her end? Just like everyone else: "It is appointed unto man once to die, but after that the judgment." (Heb. 9:27) In a taped debate with Bob Harrington, chaplain of Bourbon Street, New Orleans, Mrs. O'Hair backed down from the Holy Spirit of God.

That tape will be played at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, after the service of the New Life Crusade in the All-Faiths Chapel, sponsored by the Baptist Student Union and Rev. Jack Taylor. Accompanying him are Phil Bolin, an associate of Harrington; and Bill Wiggins, member of the Castle Hills Baptist Church in San Antonio. They both said God told them to come—they want to see revival on the A&M campus! Also here today is David Perry, student at Asbury Methodist Seminary in Kentucky, who has dropped his education this semester in order to travel and preach the Gospel of Christ!

Call it fanaticism if you like. But how do you explain the sudden closing of the $70,000 Golden Gate Nightclub in San Antonio, one minute before midnight last Saturday? Owners Guy and Evelyn Linton painted on the windows: "Now we're living for Jesus!" Their testimonies on tape can be heard tonight after the service. And how do you explain the life-saving transformation of 158 persons, including the maid and friends of the Lintons? God moved a church crusade into a city auditorium in San Antonio last week—still it couldn't hold the overflow crowds of more than 8,000 persons, seeking the missing link in their lives.

God wants revival at A&M. Suppose there isn't a missing link? Well, if we're wrong, if Jesus Christ isn't who He says He is, we haven't lost a thing—BUT IF He is who He says He is and still you don't believe, then you're in trouble.

I plead with you, Ags, give Christ a try—you've nothing to lose but an abundant, transformed life to gain! Thank you.

It seems to us and many other native Texans that Mr. Brees is out of place when running down A&M. He seems to realize that he is a foreigner which he is, but does not realize that he is, as well as many of his fellow "Yankees", getting a good education at the expense of native Texans. Sure he has to pay out of state tuition, but considering neither he nor his parents are paying state taxes, native Texans are supporting his education.

To correct Mr. Brees' statement, "In fact, if we had less Mr. Cravers and more girls, this place might be bearable" to read, "In fact, if we had fewer 'Yankees' and more native Texans, this place would be better", would be more acceptable to the Aggies which are Texans.

Another point mentioned in Mr. Brees' letter is the conservativeness of A&M. Conservativeness is one of the unique parts of A&M which might have slowed down its progress but if liberalism leads to student demonstration, such as it has on many campuses, then progress can be done away with and forgotten. For a university to provide a quality education, it has a better chance of succeeding without interference from protest groups which could be associated with liberalism.

Mr. Craver's father might be an Ag-Ex and might be donating money to Gene Stallings and company, but at least he is supporting the university which he attended of his own will. This is more than can be said of Mr. Brees, since he can only find faults with the university he is attending of his own will.

not to proceed into Czechoslovakia.

Aid under the Marshall Plan was available to Czechoslovakia after the war, but again the Soviets intervened ordering them not to accept it, he added.

Alexander Dubcek's regime was beginning to deepen cooperation with America, Tobarsky said, but the Soviet invasion in the summer of 1968 "nipped it in the bud."

Matejka said that Czechoslovakia participates in scientific and cultural exchange with America, and that 40,000 American tourists visited the eastern European nation last year. Later when questioned, he admitted that only 3,000 or 4,000 Czechs visit the United States in a year, and that only a small part of these are tourists.

This is because not many Czechs have money for the trip, he said, adding that restrictions had been imposed this year for the first time on Czechs desiring to visit America.

"It is not strictly a personal matter," Matejka said in explanation of the restrictions. "Education in Czechoslovakia is free. Without restrictions a person can be educated by the state's money and then go to a country where he would earn more money."

Tobarsky commented:

"The Czechs don't let them out because they might stay abroad."
