

Dr. W. David Maxwell, professor of business economics and public policy at Indiana University, has been named liberal arts dean, announced Gen. A. R. Lueddecke, acting president.

Dr. Maxwell, whose appointment is effective July 1, has been a member of the Indiana faculty since 1966, when he returned to the United States after serving a year as visiting scholar at Thammasat University in Bangkok. He was previously chairman of the Economics Department at Tulane University.

The 43-year-old Fayetteville, N. C., native received bachelor's and master's degrees in economics at the University of North Carolina and Ph.D. in political economy at Johns Hopkins University.

He is a humanities and social sciences consultant to The Rockefeller Foundation and a member of the board of editors for "The Journal of Applied Economics." Dr. Maxwell was selected Phi Beta Kappa at the University of North Carolina. He received an Earhart Foundation Senior Fellowship and Southern Fellowship Award at Johns Hopkins.

He was co-recipient two years ago of the Doctoral Candidates' Association's first teaching excellence award.

Maxwell began his teaching career as a fellow at the University of North Carolina in 1949. He later taught at Johns Hopkins and the University of South Carolina before going to Tulane in 1958.

The World War II and Korean veteran is the author of numerous scholarly articles.

Political Internship Applications Available
George Bush, candidate for the United States Senate, has announced sponsorship of a summer intern program designed to involve college students in a major political campaign.

Thirty Texas university and college students will be awarded a six-week internship beginning July 6. A small stipend will be provided, plus free housing.

Each intern will receive comprehensive training in campaign research and statistics, candidate and substitute scheduling, media coverage and organization from the precinct to the state level. On-the-job-training will also include seminars, discussion groups and field work including group campaigning and personal contacts.

Applications for the internship may be obtained at any university or college placement office or by writing Eloise Brackenridge, Bush for U. S. Senate, Box 1970, Houston, 77001. April 22 is the deadline for applying and final selections will be made by

May 18. Participants in the program will be selected competitively and judged on the basis of activities, leadership and scholarship.

Transport Conference Meets Thursday

The 12th annual Transportation Conference gets rolling Thursday with attention focused on urban problems, particularly in growing metropolitan areas of Texas.

Gen. John P. Doyle, MacDonalld Chair Professor of Transportation and conference coordinator, said the two-day meeting will attract industrial and governmental representatives from throughout the nation.

Citizens Needed For CS Committees

A job awaits College Station citizens who desire to work long hours without pay, according to Mayor D. A. (Andy) Anderson. Several city committees will soon be reconstituted for the new fiscal year, he said. Providing citizen in-put and guiding the work of the city council, the committees currently have over 100 citizens serving in different roles. Citizens interested in participating are asked to write the mayor or contact the city secretary at the City Hall, Anderson said.

Vet Prof Wins Army Research Grant

Dr. Thomas J. Galvin of the College of Veterinary Medicine has received a $64,271 grant from the U. S. Army Medical Research and Development Command.

Dr. Galvin, associate professor of veterinary parasitology, will study heartworms of dogs. The three-year project, entitled "Immunoprophylaxis for Control of Dirofilaria immitis," has a proposed cost of $154,228. Dirofilaria immitis, commonly called heartworm, is caused by a nematode (worm) in the heart which can reach 10 to 12 inches in length.

It is transmitted by the mosquito, causing mechanical damage to the heart and pulmonary artery. It is common to dogs of the Gulf Coast.

Dr. Galvin said project workers include Dr. R. R. professor and Veterinary Parasitology Department head, Dan Hightower, associate professor, Veterinary Physiology and Pharmacology Department, M. A. Price, associate professor of entomology.
