HEAD COACH GENE STALLINGS

Cooking Time On the Brazos

By Mike Wright

Spring has sprung, fall has fell, summer's here and so is the hideous time of spring training.

Several years ago when Gene Stallings returned to Texas A&M to rebuild the Aggie football fortunes, he walked into a mighty sad situation. The Aggies were rebounding off a 1-9 season under Hank Foldburg. The first year under Stallings the Aggies upset Georgia Tech, Houston and edged Rice to post a 3-7 record. The next year was better with a 4-5-1 mark. Then came the year of the Aggie comeback and bumpersticker sales as the Cadets romped through seven straight wins to take the Southwest Conference championship and the Cotton Bowl.

The following year was awaited with much anticipation, bumpersticker sales rocketed with slogans of "The Aggies Are Back", "Next Year Is Here," and numerous other petty threats aimed at an institute of higher learning approximately 90 miles west of B-CS.

Well, as history and teasippers faithfully remind us, the Aggies took a nose dive and returned to the rut of a 3-7 season. It's true that injuries took their toll among the Cotton Bowl Champs, but recently one of the assistant coaches, who has left for other pastures, made the statement that the coaching staff had lost "contact with the seniors the past two years." With last season's 3-7 rating, it seems to point the finger at somebody for missing the boat.

Aggies were rocked by a news story stating that some shakeups were in the wind for members of the Aggie staff. In fact some Dallas Aggie-exs went as far as to blame other A&M sports coaches of starting such damaging rumors.

To make a long story short, those wholesale changes came to pass and a new slate of assistant coaches appeared on the scene, with some remaining coaches assuming new duties.

So now the 1970 program is being planned in spring training. Much has to be accomplished in the remaining days of practice, because opponents, including L.S.U., Ohio State, and Michigan, lie in wait. The Aggies have recruited well for the past two years, enlarged their stadium to hold overflow crowds, and now are installing astro-turf to protect fragile knees. There is one missing ingredient for such a fantastic recipe—a winning varsity football team. With the schedule facing the Aggies in 1970 it is going to take a heckofa cook to whip the ingredients into a suitable frosting for an already sagging cake.
